GASTONIA EDITOR COMMENTS ON WELFARE ASSOCIATION.

In an editorial comment the Gastonia Daily Gazette, of last Saturday, calls the attention of Gastonians to the Family Welfare Association of Forest City. "What has become of the movement in Gastonia for an Associated Charities which was inaugurated a few weeks ago? Forest City started this thing long after Gastonia did and now they are having their campaign today. Preparatory to today's campaign there have been several days of intensive effort looking toward the campaign. The season of the year approaches when there is need of charity and from indications there will be nothing but the usual source from which to draw in Gastonia."

That Forest City is advancing in many things more rapidly than many other cities of much larger population is evident from such comments as the editor of the Gazette makes. This is mighty good advertising and it will be up to Forest City to "make good." The charity organization is one move in the right direction and there are so many others we could make that our town might be a bigger, broader and better town.

Courtesy to strangers, co-operation of commercial, industrial and financial interests and service that satisfies to all, with plenty of legitimate publicity will cause people to know that Forest City is a mighty good town in which to locate. Mills, factories and other industries have made the larger towns of North Carolina what they are and they will make Forest City. They can be had if the brainy business men of Forest City will go after them. It isn't your town, it is you that makes or mars and you can make your town what you will.

ASHEVILLE'S ENTERPRISE.

We must give the city of Asheville credit for unselfishness in its elaborate plan for advertising itself in the fruitful field of Florida, because, while Asheville will be directly benefited, the whole of western North Carolina will share in the profits flowing from the Asheville enterprise, says The Charlotte Observer. The Asheville Chamber of Commerce is embarked on what The Citizen calls "a tourist hunt" in Florida, and it will beat the fields where the largest covies are located, Miami and St. Petersburg being the objective points. Half the Chamber of Commerce, says The Citizen, will go to Florida the first of the year and make a big showing for Asheville "with newspaper, billboard, road and other advertising. There will be intensive publicity concentrated on big crowds and not half-way effort like that of the merchant who advertises sporadically. The new campaign is by far the best planned Asheville has known."

And, while Asheville is doing this for herself, she is also doing it for North Carolina in general. The main tide will be directed to the mountain city, but the overflow will be dispersed in as many directions as good roads lead. It is a fine bit of enterprise Asheville has undertaken, and not only that city, but the State, in general, is destined to benefit from it.

MISS MARTHA HOPPER DEAD

Harris, Dec. 2.—Miss Martha Hopper died at the home of her brother, Mr. Junius Hopper, Nov. 25. She was born April 2, 1846. She had been afflicted for many years but bore her misfortune with Christian fortitude. She joined the Methodist church early in life. She is survived by two brothers and two sisters, Mr. Junius Hopper and Mr. Millard Hopper, Mrs. D. F. Morrow and Mrs. McDaniel, both of Rutherfordton. The burial was at Providence church Nov. 26.

West Heard From

Gov. Mrs. Nellie Ross, Wyoming's dynamic leader, made a special trip to see Pres. Coolidge and protested granting concessions in Colorado River Basin giving private interests control of water power. Wyoming and other Basin State Governors will appear before Federal Power Commission in public's interest.

PROVIDENCE NEWS

Forest City, R-2, Dec. 1.—We are having some cold weather at present.

Mrs. Roxie Rippey from Shelby, N. C., spent the week-end with her aunt, Mrs. Elizabeth Blanton.

Miss Mable Smith spent the week-end with Miss Ila Phillips.

Mr. J. W. Phillips and family and Miss Mabel Smith spent Sunday afternoon in Shelby visiting Mrs. Mary McSwain, who is sick.

Mr. and Mrs. John McDaniel spent Sunday afternoon at the home of Mr. R. L. Goble.

Who Knows?

Animals are such agreeable friends—they ask no questions. They pass no criticisms.—George Elliot.

Forests Moderate Climates.

The forest service says that cutting down trees has a decided effect on climate and soil fertility. It is an established fact that forests tend to prevent extremes of temperature, either hot or cold, and thus moderate climate. They also prevent the washing away of soil, retard and often prevent floods and thus make cultivation of much land possible which without trees would be arid waste.

Selected Church Bell Over Phone.

Listening by long distance telephone from Boston to the tolling of several bells at Troy, N. Y., enabled a church committee deputed to purchase a bell to make a decision without the expense of a trip to the factory.

Ralston's Successor

The public and political circles greeted the announced appointment of Arthur R. Robinson to fill the unexpired term of U. S. Senator Ralston of Indiana, with no little surprise.

Social King at White House

J. Pierrepont Moffat, returned from the Constantinople embassy to direct all social activities at the White House this winter, and generally expected to be the most impressive for many years.

FOX HUNTERS MEET HERE IN ANNUAL BANQUET

(Cont'd From Page One)
vidson was as follows:
All sports are fine—we love them all, Swimming, fishing, golfing and ball; But the sport to which our heart most thrills
Is an old time fox hunt in the hills.

You take your dogs, just after dark,
To grounds where wild life loves to park—
Where birds and rabbits both abound
And there unleash your starter hound.

He makes a circle through the fields,
And if no scent of fox it yields,
On, on he goes—he'll not come back
Until he finds sly Reynard's track.

You wait and listen for some time,
Then like a distant belfry chime,
You hear a note both strong and clear
Ring out upon the evening air.

Old Lead is bugling on a trail,
And all the dogs begin to wail,
You hesitate, and then you yield—
They're loose, and off across the field.

And soon we hear the flying pack
A-baying on old Reynard's track,
An orchestra with tones like this,
Could fill the hunter's heart with bliss.

Old Drum is singing second bass,
While just behind the little Ace,
Sings high tenor, sweet as a flute,
With variations in to boot.

Old Limber leads with baritone—
His notes as clear as a trombone;
And hear, distinct above the rabble
Old Fashioned Kate is singing treble.

Such range of voice from low to high,
Such wealth of tone as they speed by,
In hot pursuit of Reynard's brush—
A medley sweet as a wood thrush.

The dogs are now in full voice crying,
While o'er the ground their feet are flying,
And out in front the old Red Sheik
Is going like a lightning streak.

He leads the pack o'er hill and glen,
Around a turn and back again—
Doubling, circling, hiding, spying—
Sometimes he goes like he was flying.

Of all wild game he is most cunning,
And while before the pack he's running,
He's working tricks to lose the dogs,
As running roads or walking logs.

For when he needs a little rest
He pulls some trick that he thinks best,
And while the dogs work out the trail,
He strolls off to some distant vale.

From hill to hill sly Reynard flits—
Both he and dogs are matching wits,
You're never sure from start to end,
Just which of them at last will win.

But Kate and Limber are fox wise
And can't be fooled by a disguise
And so at last to save his soul
Poor Reynard takes a hated hole.

Now sounds the hunter's horn aloud,
In comes the dogs to swell the crowd;
'Tis then you feel, as echo rings,
That this is sport quit fit for kings.

WINDMILL OF HOLLAND

Hans—Student of music, in love with Wilhelmina Harry Kendrick
Fraz—Rich farmer's son, in love with Hilda Lee Moss Reinhardt
Katrina—Rich farmer's daughter Virginia Mills

ACT I. A group of Holland work hands sing of love for their wind-mills; a song written by a Hollander.

An American salesman, Bob Yankee, tries to sell machinery to take place of their old mills.

Wilhelmina and Bob become great friends much to the distress of Hans, who is in love with her.

The first act ends with a chorus of girls—(Wooden Shoes).

ACT II. Hertogenbosch and Bob Yankee clannet the putting up of a new mill. Bob accomplishes his wish and hopes about the mill. They are going to build a new electric plant in order to run all of the machinery so there will be nothing to do.

However, lovers of the old mill strike if the old mill is torn away and Hertogenbosch decides that their mill must stay.
Admission 25c and 50c.
