

SPLENDID SKETCH OF MR. W. J. M'DANIEL

Whose Death at Rutherfordton Has Caused Universal Sorrow.

(Special to The Courier.)

Elsewhere in The Courier will be found a short article relating the death of Mr. W. J. McDaniel, at Rutherfordton. Our special correspondent sends the following article, covering more fully the history and activities, and an appreciation of this popular citizen.

Rutherfordton, July 6.—Mr. W. J. McDaniel, a prominent citizen of Rutherfordton, died early Friday morning and was buried Saturday, the funeral services being conducted at 11 o'clock, Saturday, from the Methodist church, by Rev. J. O. Ervin, pastor, assisted by Rev. T. C. Jordan, of Asheville, Revs. M. A. Adams and W. L. Latham, of the Baptist and Presbyterian churches, of Rutherfordton.

The death of Mr. McDaniel, while not unexpected, is greatly deplored by the entire town and surrounding country, many business associates and personal friends recall his courteous manner and genial demeanor and their pleasant associations with him in former days.

Born at Cherokee Springs, S. C., in the year 1873, the son of Mr. and Mrs. M. B. McDaniel, he moved with his parents to Rutherfordton in 1890 and was educated in the public school, attended the Rutherford Military Institute and later went to business college at Asheville. He was engaged in mercantile business with his father for several years and for four years served the people as Deputy Register of Deeds and was appointed postmaster, which position he filled for some years efficiently, resigning to devote his time to the firm of McDaniel & Saunders, which later as the McDaniel-Miller Co., became one of the largest and most prosperous business interests of Rutherfordton. It was at this time that his health was impaired by close attention to business and he decided to retire from active work in hope that he might regain his strength, but in spite of the best care and medical attention he did not improve and gradually grew worse until the end came peacefully, his only regret being that others would sorrow at the parting.

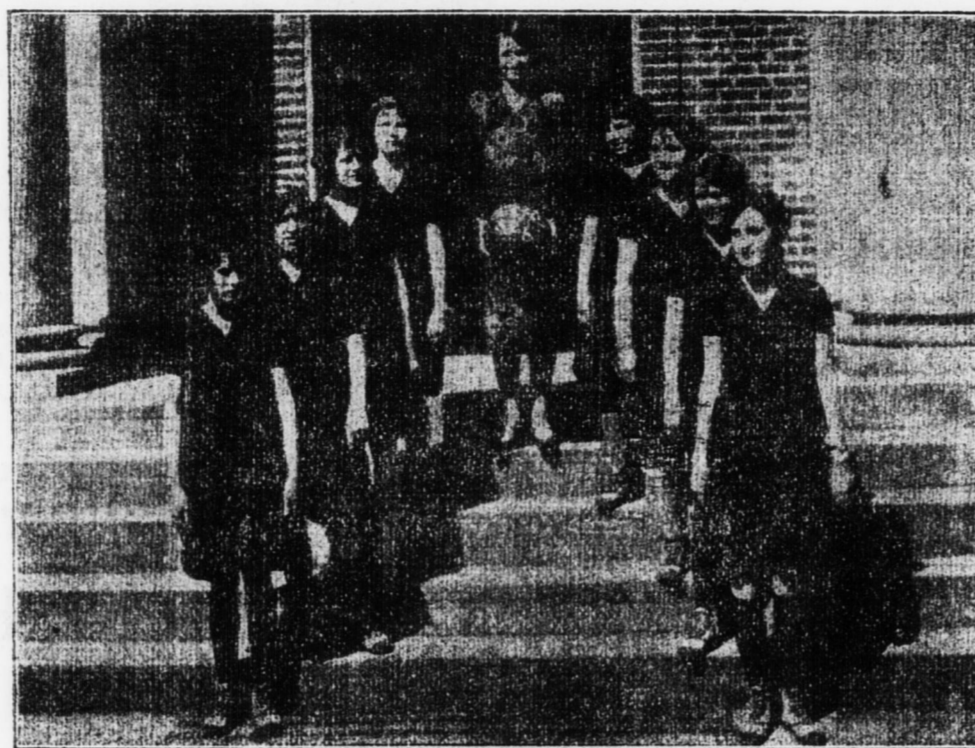

In addition to being a successful business man, Mr. McDaniel was identified with the civic and religious interests of the town. A consistent member of the Methodist church, he was a loyal supporter of every move for the advancement of the Master's cause. For several years he was on the town Board and it was largely through his influence that the era for better streets and modern improvements began in Rutherfordton and so vitally interested was he that much of the work was done under his personal supervision, leaving his own business in order to be more faithful to the trust reposed in him as a public official. Firm in his convictions, tho retiring in disposition he was ever ready to stand for the right as he saw it. An upright, honorable, Christian gentleman, may his influence go on through the ages.

Mr. McDaniel was married to Miss Annie Wilson Miller March 2, 1897. To this happy union were born three sons and three daughters, the oldest son dying in infancy. He is survived by his widow and the following children: Mr. W. J. McDaniel, Jr., a student of Atlanta Dental College; Mr. Robert McDaniel, Misses Alice, Ethel and Edith McDaniel; his mother, Mrs. Minerva McDaniel; two brothers, Messrs. H. L. McDaniel of Rutherfordton; M. B. McDaniel, of Asheville; and two sisters, Mrs. W. J. Mode and Mrs. John Saunders.

Her many friends are rejoiced to see Miss Kate Summey out again following her recent injuries in an automobile accident.
