MUSEUM CREATED FOR METHODIST SOCIETY BAZAAR

Numerous Old Relics of Historic Interest Shown in Cliffside Memorial Building

Cliffside, Dec. 6.—The Ladies' Missionary Society of the Methodist church held their annual bazaar in the R. R. Haynes Memorial Building last Friday and Saturday. Booths were fitted up in the large banquet room around the walls where fancy work of all kinds were sold. The girls had a booth also where in addition to fancy work they sold home-made candies. On one side was a "postoffice" where the children mailed their letters to Santa Claus. At the delivery window was Santa himself who for one dime would hand out packages of all sizes wrapped with appropriate Christmas wrappings. On Saturday evening at six o'clock the ladies began serving dinner. There was chicken, dressing, creamed potatoes, rice and gravy, and a number of other things on the plate including cranberry jelly. They served coconut pie with ice cream and coffee for dessert. Despite the bad weather they had a good number to take dinner with them and sold a large number of the articles they had on display for sale.

World War Relics

In another large room adjoining the one just described was a very interesting "museum" where many articles of historical interest were displayed. On the right as one entered was a display of World War relics which claimed the attention of all. Prof. B. P. Caldwell, Mr. John Roach and Dr. T. C. Lovelace were the chief contributors to this display, though there were others who contributed a few articles each. In Dr. Lovelace's collection there was a German officer's uniform. There was a bayonet taken from a British soldier at the battle of King's Mountain. This was loaned by Mr. G. K. Moore. In the World War collection were guns, gas masks, and many other things including swords. There were Indian relics, such as arrow heads, tomahawks and beads. A splendid tomahawk was loaned for this exhibit by Mr. J. A. McKinney.

Ancient Fancy Work Shown

A dress worn by Prof. B. P. Caldwell in infancy was shown, though we failed to learn how old it was. Dr. J. M. Allhands contributed a baby quilt made by his mother when the Doctor was a baby. It was about four by three feet and made of small strips of silk and one of the pieces was a piece of the wedding dress of the Doctor's mother. Mrs. C. D. Hughes contributed an old time shawl ing from appearance were used for making "tongues and grooves." Mrs. Billie Ramsey contributed an old time skillet which attracted much attention. She also had some lovely quilts of the beautiful patterns used many years ago. Also Mrs. Ramsey had a white and dark brown bed spread which is very old. It was "home-spun." There were many, many things of interest on display and it is impossible to describe them all.

Mr. J. G. Roach Loans Old Books

Among several old leather-bound books was one: "Modern Reports of Select Cases Adjudged in the Courts of King's Bench, Chancery, Common Pleas and Exchequer." This was printed in England in 1794. It was loaned by Mr. John G. Roach. He had another old law book published in Dublin, Ireland in 1790. Mr. B. E. Roach loaned two old law books that was the property of his grandfather, the late John Roach. They are leather-bound and one was printed in 1819, the other in 1821. W. H. Haynes had the key to the house where his father, the late R. R. Haynes was born.

Curios From the Isle of Nippon

Rev. and Mrs. R. C. Smith contributed a number of articles they brought home with them from Japan. Among them were Japanese shawls, sashes, shoes, both wooden and woven for all occasions. There were kimono, bronze vase, Japanese doll, a laquered bowl with an intricate design in gold covering it, a Buddha Priest and an image of Buddha, and a fine piece of tapestry. In this collection there was a masterpiece of art in needle craft. It was a baby blanket, or quilt made of pure Japanese white silk and a beautiful design of delicate tinted flowers in the center and corners. It was filled with wool. Mr. John Roach had a fine collection of coins and bills. In the collection was a twenty mark piece cut by a piece of a hand grenade that killed the German soldier who owned it.

Aged Newspapers Shown

Mr. Clarence Griffin, News Editor of the Forest City Courier who is also County Historian loaned three very interesting newspapers. One was "Dunlap's American Daily Advertiser" printed in Philadelphia, May 14, 1793. Another was "General Advertiser" published in Philadelphia on Thursday, October 8, 1807. The other one was a copy of "The New York Herald" printed Saturday, April 15, 1865. Each column had a large black dividing bar and in the first column was an account of the assassination of President Lincoln by J. Wilkes Booth the evening before and stated that the President was in a serious con-

Exhibit to Remain

Mrs. D. F. Scruggs had a bucket that was said to be nearly two hundred years old. There were costumes of all ages and some of them looked very funny to most of the younger people who never saw them worn. There were many beautiful quilts and home spun bed spreads of various designs. Last, but by no means least was the old time cards and spinning wheel with Mrs. M. E. Goode demonstrating how they were used. The exhibit was so interesting that the ladies decided to let it remain and show it again on Tuesday and Thursday nights of this week. Admission is only ten cents.
