

WHAT HAPPENED BEFORE

Buck Duane, quick on the draw kills Cal Bain in self-defense and finds himself an outlaw. Flying from pursuit, he meets Luke Stevens, anand Duane is shocked to find his brother outlaw severely wounded.

Duane buries Stevens. Then he goes on to Bland's camp, where he gets into a fight with a man called Bosomer and wounds the latter. He makes a friend of an outlaw at of Mrs. Bland and the girl Jennie.

Duane meets Jennie, and promises to try his utmost to get her away from Bland's camp. To avert suspicion, it is planned that he pretend to then gasped his last. care for Mrs. Bland. Euchre introgages in conversation with her.

Buck plays the game, making Mrs. Bland's suspicion, Mrs. Bland pretends to her husband that Buck has come to visit Jennie. Bland urges Buck to become a regular member of his outlaw gang.

Accounting for the short cut across grove and field, it was about five minutes' walk up to Bland's house. distance, and he had difficulty in restraining his pace.

As he walked there came a gradual and subtle change in his feelings. conflict. He could have avoided this At that moment there was a pound-ed around gun and bridle. meeting. But despite the fact of his ing of iron-shod hoofs out in the as yet felt that hot, inexplicable expulsion of blood. The motive of this amaze was changing to realization. deadly action was not personal, and somehow that made a difference.

No outlaws were in sight. saw several Mexican herders with cattle. Blue columns of smoke curled up over some of the cabins. The fragrant smell of it reminded Duane of his home-that he used to cut the wood for the stove. He noted a cloud of creamy mist rising above the river, dissolving in the sunlight.

Then he entered Bland's lane.

While yet some distance from the cabin he heard loud, angry voices of man and woman. Bland and Kate still quarreling! He took a quick survey of the surroundings. There was now not even a Mexican in sight. Then he hurried a little.

- Half-way down the lane he turned his head to peer through the cottonwoods. This time he saw Euchre coming with the horses. There was lev. no indication that the old outlaw might lose his nerve at the end. Duane had feared this.

Duane now changed his walk to a leisurely saunter. He reached the porch and then distinguished what was said inside the cabin.

"If you do-Bland, by Heaven, I'll fix you and her!" That was panted out in Kate Bland's full voice.

"Let me loose! I'm going in there, I tell you!" replied Bland hoarsely. "What for?"

"I want to make a little love to her. Ha-ha! It'll be fun to have the laugh on her new lover."

"You lie!" cried Kate Bland. "Let me go!" His voice grew hoarser with passion. .

"No, no! I won't let you go! You'll choke the-truth out of her! you'll kill her."

"The truth!" gritted Bland. "Yes. I lied. Jen lied. But she lied to save you. You needn'tmurder her-for that."

then the cry of a woman in pain.

Duane stepped into the open door -inside the room. Kate Bland lay been flung, and she was trying to get to her feet. Bland's back was turned. He had opened the door in- impressed upon Duane. to Jennie's room and had one foot across the threshold. Duane caught man's cry, hoarse and alarming. the girl's low, shuddering cry.

and clear.

With catlike swiftness caught Duane's menacing, unmistak- barrel. able position.

pals. Luke narrowly escapes capture for his gun. But he would not have a blow — a shock—then a burning time to step. Duane read in his eyes agony tearing through his breast. He For a fleeting instant Bland shifted The woman's strong hands, awkward his gaze to his wife. Then his whole from passion, again fumbled at the body seemed to vibrate with the lever of the gun. swing of his arm.

Bland's called Euchre, who tells him his gun exploding as it dug into the floor, and it dropped loose from crashed down. stretching fingers. Duane stood over him, stooped to turn him on his back. out of the door to the porch. The Bland looked up with clouded gaze, sharp cracking of a gun halted him.

"Duane, you've killed him!! cried of his bay horse. duces him to the latter and he en- | Kate Bland huskily. "I knew you'd have to."

Bland think he loves her. To avert her eyes dilating, her strong hands le shot, heavier, and Euchre's ceasclenching, her face half stunned, but ed. He fell from the horse. showed no grief.

"Jennie!" called Duane sharply. "Oh-is it you-Duane?" came a halting reply. "Yes. Come out. Hurry!"

arm, swung her behind him. how she had been duped. His action ded into the cabin. was protective, and his movement! toward the door equally significant.

"Duane!" cried Mrs. Bland.

"Where're you taking Jen?" cried, her voice like a man's.

speech, was enough for her. In an a run and thundered down the lane instant she was transformed into a into the road. Duane saw men run-

"You hound! All the time you were But there were no shots fired. fooling me. You made love to me! You let me believe-you swore you loved me! Now I see what was queer about you! All for that slut! But you can't have her. You'll never arm. leave here alive! Give me that girl. Let me get at her. She'll never win any more men in this camp!"

and it took all Duane's strength to pursuers were in sight. ward off her onslaughts. She clawed at Jennie over his upheld arm. Every he cried, exultation for her in his second her fury increased.

"Help! Help! Help!" she shrieked ed to the remotest cabin in the val-! he faced her.

low and sharp. He still held his gun trembling finger. in his right hand, and it began to be With her words Duane became hard for him to ward the woman off. aware of two things-the hand he in-His coolness had gone with her shriek stinctively placed to his breast still for help. "Let go!" he repeated, and held his gun-and he had sustained he shoved her fiercely.

the chamber and cocking the weapon, sense of weakness yet. The cleanburning his face.

"Jennie, run out! Get on a horse!" He said, still low and sharp. Jennie flashed out of the door.

With an iron grasp Duane held to the rifle-barrel. He had grasped it with his left hand, and he gave such a powerful pull that he swung the woman off the floor. But he could not loose her grip. She was as strong

"Kate! Let go!"

He tried to intimidate her. She did not see his gun thrust in her face, shivered the girl. Bland cursed horribly. Then fol- or reason had given away to such an lowed a wrestling sound of bodies in extent to passion that she did not violet straining contact—the scrape care. She cursed. Her husband had of feet—the jangle of spurs—a used the same curses, and from her crash of sliding table or chair, and lips they seemed strange, unsexed, his wounds. The fresh horses made more deadly.

Like a tigress she fought him. Her open places Duane looked down. face no longer resembled a woman's. half across a table, where she had The evil of that outlaw life, the wildness and rage, the meaning to kill Rock, with no signs of pursuit down was even in such a moment, terribly the valley, and with the wild, broken

He heard a cry from outside-

It made him think of loss of time. "Good morning!" he called, loud This demon of a woman might yet he said with gladness. "I'll be well block his plan.

wheeled-then froze on the thresh- lips stiff. In the grimness of that in- travel by night. I can get you across hold. His sight, quick as his action, stant he relaxed his hold on the rifle- the river."

With a sudden, redoubled, irresist-Bland's big frame filled the ible strength, she wrenched the rifledoor. He was in a bad place to reach down and discharged it. Duane felt the desperate calculation of chances. staggered backward, almost falling.

He caught the rifle-barrel again, Duane shot him. He fell forward, this time in his right hand, and pulled. She tripped over a chair and

> Duane leaped back, whirled, flew He saw Jennie holding the bridle

Euchre sat astride the other and he had a Colt leveled, and was fir-She staggered against the wall, ing down the lane. Then came a sing-

A swiftly shifted gaze showed to Duane a man coming down the lane. Chess Alloway! His gun was smoking. He broke into a run. Then, in an instant he saw Duane, tried to She came out with uneven steps, check his pace as he swung up his seeting only him, and she stumbled arm. But that slight pause was fatal. alone. I'll lone wolf it, as they say over Bland's body. Duane caught her! Duane shot, and Alloway was fall-He ing when his gun went off. His bul- Jennie?" To Duane it seemed long in time and feared the woman when she realized let whistled close to Duane and thud-

Duane bounded down to the hors- go far away?" It was no time for talk. Duane back, dead, a bullet-hole in his shirt, but a man must live. Never mind Again he was going out to meet in edged on, keeping Jennie behind him. his face set hard, and his hands twist- about me, Jennie."

courting the encounter, he had not lane. Kate Bland bounded to the cried Duane as he dragged down the go to the Governor. I'll tell him your door. When she turned back her horse she was holding. "Up with you story. I'll tell him mine. I'll get you now. There! Never mind long stir- a pardon." she rups! Hang up somehow!"

"Get out of my way!" replied Du- re's clutching grip and leaped astride. dress and disheveled hair, her face me. His look, perhaps, without The frightened horses jumped into pale and quiet, a little stern in sleep, ning from cabins. He heard shouts.

> Jennie seemed able to stay on her horse; but without stirrups she bounced so hard that Duane rode closer and reached out to grasp her

Thus they rode through the valley to the trail that led up over the steep and broken Rim-Rock. As they began She was a heavy, powerful woman, to clomb Duane looked back. No

"Jennie, we're going to get away!"

She was gazing, horror-stricken, at in a voice that must have penetrat- his breast as, in turning to look back,

"Oh, Duane, your shirt's all "Let go! Let go!" cried Duane, bloody!" she faltered, pointing with a terrible wound.

Suddenly she snatched a rifle off He had been shot through the the wall and backed away, her strong, breast far enough down to give him hands fumbling at the lever. As she grave apprehension of his life. Little jerked it down, throwing a shell into pain attended the injury, and no Duane leaped upon her. He stuck up cut bullet-hole bled freely both at its the rifle as it went off, the powder entrance and where it had come, but with no signs of hemorrhage. He did not bleed at the mouth; however, he began to cough up a reddish tinged

Jennie, with pale face and mute ips looked at him.

"I'm badly hurt, Jennie," he said; but I guess I'll stick it out."

"The woman-did she shoot you?" "Yes. She was a devil. Euchre told me to look out for her. I wasn't quick enough." "You didn't have to-to-

"My God, no!" he replied.

They did not stop climbing while Duane tore a scarf and made compresses, which he bound tightly over fast time up the rough trail. From

When they surmounted the steep ascent and stood on top of the Rimfastnesses before them. Duane turned to the girl and assured her that they now had every chance of escape. "Jennie, we're going to get away," in a few days. You don't know how Bland "Let go!" he whispered and felt his strong I am. We'll hide by day and

"And then?" she asked.

"We'll find some honest rancher." "And then?" she persisted.

"Why-" he began slowly. That's as far as my thoughts ever got. It dled and bridled. was pretty hard, I tell you, to assure myself of so much. It means your safety. You'll tell your story. You'll be sent to some village or town and taken care of until a relative or friend is notified."

"And you?" she inquired in strange voice.

Duane kept silence.

"What will you do?" she went on. "Jennie, I'll go back to the brakes. I daren't show my face among respectable people. I'm an outlaw." "You're no criminal!" she declared with deep passion. "Jennie, on this border the little difference between an outlaw and a criminal doesn't count for much."

"You won't go back among those terrible men? You' with your gentleness and sweetness-all that's good about you! Oh, Duane, don't don't

"I can't go back to the outlaws. at least Bland's band. No, I'll go on the border. What else can I do,

"Oh, I don't know. Couldn't you hide? Couldn't you slip out of Texas es. Jennie was trying to hold the "I could never get out of Texas plunging bay. Euchre lay flat on his without being arrested. I could hide,

"Duane, if ever I'm safe out of "Jennie, you've nerve all right," this awful country," she cried. "I'll

As he looked down upon her, a He caught his bridle out of Euch- slight slender girl with bedraggled of Miss Ruth Crowder Sunday.

and her long, dark lashes lying on spent Thursday night at the home of her cheeks, he seemed to see her fragility, her prettiness, her femininity as never before. But for him she might at that very moment have been a broken, ruined girl, lying back in that cabin of the Blands.

Tomorrow she would be gone, among good kind people, with a possibility of finding her relatives. He thanked God for that; nevertheless he felt a pang.

She slept more than half the day. Duane kept guard, always alert, whether he was sitting, standing, or walking. The rain pattered steadily on the roof and sometimes came in gusty flurries through the door. The horses were outside in a shed that afforded poor shelter, and they stamped restlessly. Duane kept them sad-

(Continued next week)

SMITH'S GROVE

Forest City, R-3, Dec. 10.—There will be preaching next Saturday afternoon at two o'clock, and Sunday at eleven o'clock.

Many people of this community are ill with the "flu" at this writing. We hope they will soon be better again. Mrs. Frank Gregory was the visitor of Mrs. Yelton Sunday.

Little Miss Emma Sue Fortenberry, who has been ill, is some better

Mr. Roy Hardin, Astor Small and Misses Alma Hardin, and Pauline Crotts were the visitors of Misses Pearl and Mary Elizabeth Crowder Saturday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Forest Fortenberry spent the past week end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Lee, near Ellenboro.

Misses Geneva and Lunette Newton spent one day last week with Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Allen.

Miss Alma Hardin spent this week end with her parents. Mr. Reid Bridges spent Sunday afternoon with Mr. Shuford Humph-

Miss Lucy Crowder was the visitor of Miss Lorena Bridges Sunday. Mr. B. H. Bridges is on the sick list this week. His many friends wish him speedy recovery. Miss Alice Hardin was the visitor

Mr. Ernest Lee, of Ellenboro and

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Fortenberry. Miss Pearl Crowder spent Sunday afternoon with Miss Mossie Yelton

Miss Annie Mae Andrews spent Sunday afternoon with Miss Sarah

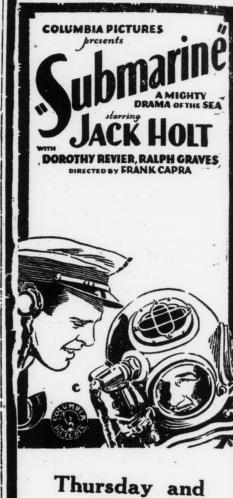

Watkins. Miss Ruth Louis of Forest City. spent the week end at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Gregory. Mr. Howard Carter has returned to his home after spending several days in Avondale.

Miss Mary Wilson spent Sunday with Miss Lorena Bridges.

Mr. Grady Bridges spent Sunday afternoon with Mr. Clifford Forten.

John Sparks of Morganton reports that he harvested 225 tons of cured alfalfa hay from 40 acres this sea-

Friday

Admission, 10c and 40c

Princess Theatre Shelby, N. C.

. මෙන්න අතුත්ත ක්රමය ක on't put off

Our Fifth Anniversary Sale Is Going Big

If you need to save your Money why not come to see us. It does not cost you anything to look us over.

For example, look at these:

Iron Beds $6.98

Chairs

Big Arm Rockers ... $1.98

Mahogany Davenport $6.98 Cotton Mattress $6.98 Tables No. 8 Cook Stove

$14.85

Eagle Line These are just a few sample prices. Everything cut accordingly.

Sale continues through the 24th of December, but why wait until the others get the best of it.

SPINDALE FURNITURE COMPANY

Spindale, N. C.