DALTON BROS., INC. STORE NEWS

(By J. W.)

Here is another store secret. People who work in stores are insulted almost daily. If we were to go out and say to the public what they say to us in the store we would have a fight on our hands before we went a block. The public expects a clerk or salesman to be congenial, happy, and smiling all the time, while they in turn, show the very worst kind of spirit by insinuations, and lots of times in plain English. The public has been taught that they have that right, but you ought to see how it looks across the counter. I had a lady to ready my titles clear because I would not give her back one dollar more for goods returned than she paid for them. I never dreamed she would come in this store again, but behold, the other day she was back in as good humor as ever. We do not accept the policy that "the customer is always right," because we have found them wrong too many times. However, if there is any doubt about the transaction the benefit of the doubt goes to the customer always. Perhaps, the best loved customer is the one who makes you show a lot of things on a busy day, and says, "I was only looking around today; will be back when I get ready to buy."

Nearly always, if a person admires your goods and says a lot of nice things about them they are not going to buy.

Now I have written all this without saying a thing about what we have to sell. Is this good advertising or not?
