NEWLY DESIGNED RAYON CREATIONS

Every woman, regardless of her age, her station in life or her income, has the desire to be called well-dressed. That is as it should be. The male sex may not admit it, but they also take pride in knowing that their women folks are looked upon as among those who know how to wear clothes. Five stunning creations are shown in this photograph. The creation in the upper left is from "London Trades"—that young house so famous for its sport clothes, makes this original French frock in rayon and wool jersey, worn by Dorothy Smart. All the lines converge up and toward the front. The top right—A new shade sponsored by Patou—in a bouffant lace frock of rayon worn by Miss Peggy Fish. One side is ruffles, the other side flounces. The bottom right—One of those expressive simple frocks by Molyneux developed in a domestic rayon fabric—a two-piece model by Molyneux in rayon crepe moire—all in rose beige. The bottom left—Lavin designed the rose and blue rayon taffeta frock worn by Miss Gwen Lee, charming Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer player. An adjustable peplum can either be worn around the neck in capelet effect or form the peplum. The bodice shows the lingerie strap neckline and is snug fitting. The extremely circular skirt shows an uneven hemline. The insert—Anita Page, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer player, poses in an original model frock by Callot. A satin lunasol robe de style is used with pink lunasol petals edged with blue rayon and metal lace is seen between the rows of petals. (Herbert Photos)
