SUNDAY SUPPER WILL GAIN BY INTRODUCTION OF NEW DISHES

By JOSEPH BOGGIA, Chef The Plaza Hotel, New York City

EVEN during the winter months when hot foods, generally speaking, are the order of the day, a cold dish is usually the piece de resistance of the Sunday night supper. If the dish is to have a real appetite appeal for those who have indulged in a heavy mid-day dinner, the housewife must take special care to make it appetizing.

While nothing can be justly charged against the tastiness of cold ham or chicken, and potato salad, they have done duty as the standard Sunday superdishes for so long, that their appearance frequently becomes monotonous. The three recipes given below will provide tried and tested departures from the usual routine.

Chef Boggia

SALMON MOUSSE WITH SAUCE MONTESQUIEU—Mix together one teaspoon mustard, a few grains cayenne, a half teaspoon salt, one and a half tablespoons sugar and one-half tablespoon flour. Add two egg yolks, one and a half tablespoons melted butter, three-fourths cup milk and one-fourth cup vinegar. Cook in a double boiler until thick, stirring constantly. Remove from the fire and add three-fourths tablespoon gelatin which has been soaked in one-half cup cold water. Add to this a can of salmon which has been flaked in the meantime. Place in a mold and after it has cooled put in the refrigerator to jell.

The sauce is made as follows. Beat one-half cup of cream until it is stiff. Add one-quarter teaspoon salt. Pour in slowly two tablespoons vinegar. Then stir in one pared and chopped medium-size cucumber.

EGGS AUVERGNE—Halve six hard-boiled eggs. Remove the yolks, taking care not to break the whites. Powder the yolks with a silver fork. Add one-half teaspoon mustard, one-quarter teaspoon salt, few grains of cayenne, dash of paprika, one teaspoon sugar, one tablespoon vinegar, one tablespoon olive oil. Mix until smooth with one tablespoon finely chopped parsley and place in the whites of the eggs. Serve on crisp lettuce leaves.

RICE SALAD BORAKA—Boil one cup of rice in the usual manner. Blanch with cold water and dust with two teaspoons salt and a little pepper. Chill in the refrigerator for several hours before using. Line a salad bowl with lettuce and pile the rice in the center. Halve four hard-boiled eggs. Remove the yolks and slice the whites into rings. Lay the rings over the rice. Pour over the mound a half cup of Albemarle dressing. Rub the yolks over the rice through a strainer. Sprinkle with two tablespoons chopped green peppers and one tablespoon chopped parsley.

The dressing is made as follows. Mix in the order given four tablespoons olive oil, two tablespoons grapefruit juice, one-half teaspoon powdered sugar, one-half teaspoon salt, and one-quarter teaspoon paprika. Chill and shake thoroughly before using.

Quick relief whenever you've a headache, or cold; or are suffering from neuralgia or neuritis. The distressing pains of rheumatism yield, too, if you'll only give these tablets a chance.
