Does Landlord Have Right On Own Land?

Shelby, July 28.—An interesting legal controversy developed in county court here last week—a particularly interesting query for an agricultural county.

A tenant in No. 2 township had his landlord arrested for trespassing upon his own land, the land rented to the tenant.

Does a landlord have the right to go upon his own property when it is rented for the year?

The case came up before Judge Horace Kennedy Saturday morning and was tried before a jury of 12 men. Attorney Maurice Weathers, nominee for recorder, represented the tenant, who was the plaintiff, and Attorney J. Clint Newton, nominee for solicitor, represented the landlord. The morning hearing ended in a mistrial, nine jurors voting for conviction and three for acquittal.

At the afternoon hearing, before a jury of six men, the landlord was found not guilty of trespass. The jury of Cleveland citizens ruling that a landlord has the right to go upon his own property, even when rented, provided he goes in good faith.

The landowner's contention was that the crop had not been plowed from July 9 until July 21, and that he went to do the necessary plowing.—Cleveland Star.

New Ford Truck With Closed Cab

NEW Ford Model AA trucks and Model A light delivery cars were announced this week by the Ford Motor Company and are on display in the show rooms of Ford dealers.

Changes in the trucks are principally in the front end, which has been completely redesigned, and in the cab. The radiator is higher with more cooling surface, fenders are wide and flowing, and a black cowl strip adds a note of distinction.

The new Model AA trucks with the four-speed transmission introduced several months ago may be had with enclosed or open cab. The enclosed cab, shown above, is all steel, it is low in appearance yet with ample head room. The open cab is of black rubber top material and is easily removed. Both cabs are equipped with windshields of Triplex shatterproof glass and vacuum type windshield wipers.

Model AA trucks may be had with a platform body, which can be equipped with stakes or a panel body. The chassis has many improvements, including the four-speed transmission, larger front brakes, stronger springs, power take-off opening and optional dual rear wheels.

The Model A line of new commercial cars comprises a light delivery truck with pick-up body, a deluxe delivery truck, a small panel truck and a station wagon. These cars have the smaller wheels and larger tires of the new Ford passenger cars.

Experts Studying N. C. Government

Raleigh, July 26.—The experts from the Brookings Institution, of Washington, D. C., were hard at work in Raleigh today studying the government of the state, in order to make suggestions to Governor Gardner and the next general assembly as to how its efficiency could be increased, and how its cost could be reduced.

The efficiency experts arrived in Raleigh yesterday, and, with Governor Gardner, met the department heads, and, in the governor's office, talked over the plans and heard the governor outline to them and to the department heads some of the results which the survey was to accomplish.

Today, however, was their first day of hard detailed work on the survey. A large part of the money spent by the state government goes for clerical work, and efficiency methods in office management, saving pennies here and there, will total huge saving. In consequence, much of their work, which will save important sums for the taxpayers, is going to go pretty dull and unexciting.

However, important major changes in the mechanics of the state government may result from their studies and they will study local governments as well, and their relations with, and between the departments and institutions of the State.

The survey which began yesterday includes general administrative organization, financial organization, educational administration, personnel administration, purchasing and contracting, and, with respect to local government, the questions of the relation of the state in matters of support, supervision, control, general administrative organization, purchasing and contracting and other problems.

The survey is under the direction of H. P. Seidemann, and he is being assisted by Robert Wilson, Paul V. Betters, and G. L. Bellsley. Most of their work is being done in Raleigh, but they will probably have to visit other parts of the state, in connection with the local government angle of their survey, and also to visit the state institutions which are not in Raleigh.

An unprecedented wealth of information concerning the government of this state, coupled with expert advice, will be before the members of the next legislature. In addition to the information gathered by the general survey, which started today, they will have the report of the federal investigators, on the county road construction and maintenance systems, the report of the tax commission on the taxation system in this state, the legislative committee's survey of the educational system of the state which was ordered by the last legislature, and a survey of prison conditions in the state.
