Are You Ready

When your Children Cry for It

Baby has little upsets at times. All your care cannot prevent them. But you can be prepared. Then you can do what any experienced nurse would do—what most physicians would tell you to do—give a few drops of plain Castoria. No sooner done than Baby is soothed; relief is just a matter of moments. Yet you have eased your child without use of a single doubtful drug; Castoria is vegetable. So it's safe to use as often as an infant has any little pain you cannot pass away. And it's always ready for the crueler pangs of colic, or constipation, or diarrhea; effective, too, for older children. Twenty-five million bottles were bought last year.

Eat Little Mutton In North Carolina

Few North Carolina citizens have the chance to eat home-grown lamb and mutton.

"We have less than one sheep for each three persons in the State," says Earl Hostetler, animal husbandman for the Experiment Station at State college. "In 1929 we had only 116,418 head of sheep listed. Quite a few of these were breeding animals. Then when we consider that the average 75 to 80 pound lamb cut only 12 to 14 pounds of lamb chops a very meager ration is available for each North Carolinian who wishes to follow Governor Gardner's live-at-home injunction."

Mr. Hostetler finds that 50 percent of the entire sheep population is in five western counties. While these five counties are well adapted to the industry, there are also excellent opportunities for growing sheep in other parts of the State. This is true especially of eastern Carolina where abundant feed crops, mild winters, and early spring pasture is suitable for the production of spring lambs.

As a usual thing, few lambs reach the market in May and June and therefore the price is good during these two months. Lambs dropped in January and February, if properly fed and looked after, will be ready for the market on June 1. Here is where the eastern farmer has an advantage. He can reach this market, says Mr. Hostetler. Then too, he observes, stomach worms and other parasites are more active in hot weather. Gains are slower and there is a gradual decline in price after July 1.

He concludes that sheep are more profitable than any other class of animals when the initial cost is considered. They are more susceptible to disease and cannot take care of themselves under adverse conditions. Given the right conditions and proper care, however, they will pay a good profit and should be found on every farm.

Gives Play For Alexander School

Spindale, Sept. 8.—The Epworth League chapter of the Spindale Methodist church gave a play "All on Account of Polly" Saturday evening at Union Mills, for the benefit of the Alexander School for Motherless children. The receipts from the play were given to the school. All of the inmates of the Alexander school were admitted free of charge. This play was given at the Spindale House a short time before, with splendid success, and the Leagues decided to take the play to Union Mills for the benefit of the school.

After the play those taking part as characters took up a collection and bought the inmates of the home a large amount of candy, which was greatly enjoyed by the children.

Besides realizing a neat sum for the school, the play afforded a real treat to the many children of the school.

MR. AVERAGE FARMER
BROADCASTS.

STATION YFBL—YOURS FOR BETTER LIVESTOCK. Mr. Average Farmer speaking.

There's lots of talk about the drought and farm relief. Plenty of the farmers need relief, I guess, but there are several in my neighborhood who always look ahead and who were prepared for the worst when the drought came. I had followed the example set by them and as a result I am not so hard hit by the drought, either.

It's true that my corn isn't going to make much, and my hay crop was pretty short, but I think I'll have enough alfalfa to run me. My oats and barley were good, though, and I have enough of them to feed my herd of 16 dairy cows through the winter. I'm going to cut most of my corn before it gets too dry and put it in the silo. I know I'll have plenty of silage.

I'm not even going to depend on my corn for grain feed this year, but am going to feed barley in its place. Barley is just as good feed anyway. I am now feeding a ration, with alfalfa hay, of the following grain: 200 pounds of ground barley, 300 pounds of ground oats, 200 pounds of wheat bran, and 100 pounds of linseed meal. I feel my Holsteins one pound of this grain mixture per day for each four pounds of milk, and they are giving plenty of milk.

I have several cows due to freshen during the next month and I expect to make first class dairy cows out of the heifer calves. For the first six months I am going to feed the calves skim milk and a grain mixture made of 200 pounds of ground barley, 200 pounds of ground oats, 200 pounds of wheat bran, and 100 pounds of linseed meal. They can't keep from growing with that feed.

See you again soon. STATION YFBL—YOURS FOR BETTER LIVESTOCK—singing off. Goodby.

ONLY A DOCTOR KNOWS WHAT A LAXATIVE SHOULD BE

Danger lies in careless selection of laxatives! By taking the first thing that comes to mind when bad breath, headaches, dizziness, nausea, biliousness, gas on stomach and bowels, lack of appetite or energy warns of constipation, you risk forming the laxative habit.

Depend on a doctor's judgment in choosing your laxative. Here's one made from the prescription of a specialist in bowel and stomach disorders. Its originator tried it in thousands of cases; found it safe for women, children and old folks; thoroughly effective for the most robust man. Today, Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, as it is called, is the world's most popular laxative. It is composed of fresh herbs and other pure ingredients. You can get it, in generous bottles and ready for use, at any drugstore.
