M'SWAIN OFFERS SALES TAX BILL

Twenty-Seventh District Senator Proposes to Levy Tax on Scale Basis.

Raleigh, Feb. 9.—Senator Peyton McSwain, of Shelby, attracted interest in the Senate here last week by introducing a bill, another "sales tax" measure, in which he proposes to tax all retail merchants in North Carolina.

He explained on the floor of the upper house that the principal virtue in his measure, as he saw it, "is the rich harvest that it will reap from the chain stores."

Part With Teeth.

The portion of the McSwain bill termed the "biting part" follows:

"Every retail merchant who opens, operates, or maintains in this state any store or stores, place or places of business shall first apply for and procure from the commissioner of revenue a state license for each of said stores or places of business for the privilege of engaging in such business in this state and shall pay for such license a tax in accordance with the annual gross sales of said store or places of business as follows:

- "Annual gross sales $20,000 or less—$15.
- "Annual gross sales more than $20,000 and which amount to $100,000 or less—$25.
- "Annual gross sales more than $100,000 and more than $200,000—$50.
- "Annual gross sales more than $200,000 and which amount to not more than $400,000—$100.
- "Annual gross sales more than $400,000 and which amount to not more than $600,000—$200.
- "Annual gross sales more than $600,000 and which amount to not more than $800,000—$300.

"That in addition to the license tax levied in the preceding subsection every retail merchant owning, operating, or maintaining any store or stores, any place or places of business in this state whose annual gross sales shall exceed $800,000, shall pay a license tax equivalent to one per cent of his, their or its annual gross sales in excess of $800,000 for the privilege of engaging in such business in this state."

BONDED DEBT OF COUNTIES GIVEN

Figures On Other W. N. C. Counties Given In State Report.

Raleigh, Feb. 2.—Six of the seven worst debt-ridden counties in North Carolina, based on the percentage of bonded indebtedness to the property valuation, are in the western part of the State, according to figures made public today by the State tax commission.

Carteret county, which has been in default in bond payments for several months, has pledged 42.5 per cent of its total property assessment for bonded indebtedness.

Henderson county comes next with 28.6 per cent, while Transylvania county is only a few points away with 28.2 per cent. Buncombe comes fourth with 26.1.

The next three counties in order are: Cherokee, 22.8; Clay, 22.6; and Macon county, 22.1 per cent.

Basis of Figures.

These figures are based on the bonded indebtedness, including bonds issued and notes sold in anticipation of bond issues. They do not include the millions of dollars in revenue anticipation notes sold by Buncombe, Transylvania, Henderson, and other counties in the State.

The total bonded indebtedness of Buncombe, including bonds and notes issued in anticipation of bond sales amounts to $43,237,667, divided as follows:

Total bonded, $37,306,400; non-bonded, $5,931,267; total, $43,237,667; county-wide, $13,443,000; school districts, $5,256,000; special districts, $3,983,000; total districts, $9,239,800.

Other Counties.

The figures for other counties in Western North Carolina are as follows:

	Total	Pct.
Avery	681,070	12.0

Feeding Corn To Hogs Increases Market Price

"The most profitable method of marketing corn this year, and probably for the next two years, is by feeding it to hogs and then marketing the hogs," W. W. Shay, swine extension specialist of State college, says, in speaking of the low price of corn and the profit to be made in hogs at the present time. "Feeding corn to hogs is the safest farm investment and the surest way to make a profit in farming this year."

If the corn is produced at a low cost per bushel, Mr. Shay says that it is always profitable to feed such corn to hogs. Even, if the corn is high in price per bushel or the yield per acre is low, the feeding of corn to hogs will increase its bushel value. "When the farmer has a big loss in the cost of corn, due to low production per acre, this loss can be cut down by feeding to hogs, but not always eliminated."

The person who cannot produce at least 30 bushels of corn or more to the acre had best stay out of the hog raising business.

Self-feeder demonstrations in the eastern part of the state this past year showed that corn will increase enormously in value if fed to hogs. One demonstration showed a profit of 485 per cent on corn by such feeding, despite the death of one hog during the demonstration. The hogs, in this case, ate 209 bushels of corn, which would have brought $188.10 if sold as corn. After paying all other charges, and deducting the value of the hog which died, $19.75, the hogs still paid a profit of $285.94 for the corn and left plant food worth $49.35 on the farm, whereas $31.35 worth of plant food would have gone out with the corn, had it been sold. The other two demonstrations proved the same thing. In the demonstrations, the hogs were put on self-feeders half the time and then turned in on standing corn, supplemented with fish meal.

The raising of plenty of corn and hogs will be a great boost for the "Live-at-Home" movement, Mr. Shay believes. He wants many hog feeding demonstrations this year, with accurate records kept.
