VALDESIAN NURSERIES BOOSTED BY OBSERVER

The editor of the Charlotte Observer must have a high regard for our good Bostic friend, Mr. Geo. W. Jones, as that paper frequently has something nice to say about Mr. Jones or his nursery. Mr. Jones' nursery is a credit to the county, and as a nurseryman he stands in the front ranks.

Here is what the Observer had to say in last Sunday's issue.

"Located in the foothills of the Blue Ridge mountains, at Bostic, N. C., is the well known Valdesian Nursery, owned and operated by Geo. W. Jones, who has been identified with this fascinating business for more than a quarter of a century.

"The growing, planning and planting of shrubbery is more than just a business with Mr. Jones, because his heart is in his work, literally speaking. It is the policy of the Valdesian Nursery to render a genuine service in the planning and planting of home grounds, school grounds, church yards, or for factories and public buildings. 'We have at all times a mental picture of just what the completed job will gradually grow into—a thing of beauty and constant pleasure,' said Mr. Jones, in an interview with The Observer representative.

"Many specimen plants of rare evergreens and ornamentals in almost any size and age are found among the countless number of plants in this farm of more than 50 acres of shrubbery. Hundreds of plants are shipped each year to almost every state in the union.

"Several large orders have been filled recently by this progressive nursery, and the outlook is for normal business, 'Everyone loves beauty, and natural beauty which is obtained by skillful planting of grounds is the most sublime,' said Mr. Jones, 'this being true people throughout the world will continue to plant more and more shrubbery'."

LOOKING BACK OVER PLEASANT DAYS

Our minds go back to the places where we have so often been. And see the gentle smiling faces of once tried and true friends.

We have spent many pleasant hours. With our friends in their homes. Many have been the lovely flowers, in our pathway they have strewn.

When young we look to the future, and the old think most of the past. Every man that travels this road will surely find this truth at last.

For across the path of life there is a line so truly drawn. We need not think it any strife if we find it traveling on.

The young just plan for future days and think the old are very strange. But the old know all their ways by the knowledge they have gained.

So then don't think it any folly, for this I know will surely be. When you cross the midst of life youth is past and you can see.

START BASEBALL PRACTICE AT ELLENBORO SCHOOL

Ellenboro, March 9.—Fifteen boys answered the call for baseball practice here last week. With one exception the infield will be the same as last year's and this assures the team of one of the best infields in the state. The outfield and pitching staff's giving the coach plenty to worry about. Only one of last year's outfielders is found among the aspiring candidates for these positions while the pitching staff will be altogether new and untried. However, if hard work and determination will help fill these vacancies then the Country Gentlemen will as usual be a menace to all opponents. The local team opens the season March 20 against the strong Forest City team on their home ground.

The demand for lespedeza seed in Union county has become so great that county agent T. J. W. Broom is having difficulty in locating such seed.

A Tribute To You

It is nothing unusual for a business house to be grateful to its patrons.

Your banker, however, feels his interests are so closely bound to yours, that there is a special warmth in the feeling that obtains toward his depositors and correspondents.

A banker is compelled for the sake of his patrons to refuse certain accommodations. He may seem arbitrary in so doing; often, indeed, his duty goes against that action that he would, personally, prefer.

Yet his customers, as a rule, are willing—even glad—to cooperate in arranging "red tape" that may seem to them unnecessary.

When our banks are praised, the high character of the people who patronize them is entitled to high acclaim.
