

Striped Cottons for "Sun Sports"

IN tune with the modern tempo of simplicity in play-time costumes, striped cottons have already taken their place as the smartest thing under the sun. There are colorful awning stripes, bright Roman stripes, gay candy stripes, classic shirting stripes and an amazing galaxy of new variations.

Roman striped broadcloth—to play in—to be ever so gay in—is just right for the beach shorts with their boyish tuckin blouse of plain broadcloth. Canvas espadrilles are comfortable and smart for beach games, while the huge sombrero lends a "sou'west" touch to the costume.

Awning-stripe cottons are smart in both beachwear and general sports costumes, as illustrated by the costume at the right. The interesting use of the stripes in this double breasted model subscribes to the shirtwaist mode. The hat and sun-brella of matching duck are distinctive accessories, while the shoes of a lacy cotton fabric are smart and cool.

More Than Million in Twenty States Fed by Red Cross Volunteers

Hot School Lunches and Balanced Rations Given to Drought Victims—Seed Programs Instituted on Wide Scale

More than 1,000,000 persons in 852 drought-stricken counties of 20 States came under the care of the American Red Cross in what developed into the most extensive relief operations in half a century of ministering to stricken humanity.

Measures to lessen the severity of the blow inflicted by drought were taken as early as last September, when seed was distributed to more than 58,000 families for the planting of rye and other pastures, and to more than 27,000 families for the planting of kitchen gardens. The expenditure for this purpose amounted to $326,800. Green vegetables were made available up to the first of January.

Early in February another Red Cross garden program got under way and 507,000 packages of seed were distributed in 15 states. Quarter-acre plots were planted to beans, beets, cabbage, carrots, collard, sweet corn, kale, lettuce, mustard, okra, onions, peas, spinach, squash, tomatoes and turnips. Once again were farm families given the opportunity to participate in their own salvation.

A comparatively mild winter contributed to the success of the Spring and Fall seed campaigns. Many habitual single-croppers were introduced to the advantages of kitchen gardens, balanced cropping and balanced diet. Numerous land-owners have expressed the opinion that this constitutes the one apparent blessing to come out of the drought catastrophe. The United States Department of Agriculture and the local county agricultural agents and home demonstration agents cooperated in making this part of the relief operations outstandingly successful.

Balanced Meals Served

Red Cross feeding was aimed at adequacy and scientific correctness, as well as simple economy. In large numbers of schools, where children were found to be attending with little or nothing in their lunch boxes, hot meals were served at noon. A typical menu consisted of vegetable soup and bread one day; thick beef soup or stew with vegetables another day; cocoa or milk and cheese, peanut butter, or jam sandwiches, a third day.

In some places where lunches were not served in the schools, but were provided for in the regular food orders, each family having school children received extra staples for school lunches including peanut butter, raisins, prunes and tomatoes. Red Cross nutritionists instructed mothers in the preparation of lunches.

County health officers and private physicians commended the adequacy of rations procured on orders issued by Red Cross chapters, which were filled at local stores. Besides the usual staples, such as corn meal, flour, lard, meat, beans and potatoes, such items as canned salmon, cabbage, tomatoes, vegetables and milk were provided, each order being adapted to the special needs of the family for whom it was issued. Where pellagra threatened, eggs, yeast and other preventives were given.

Thousands of Volunteer Workers

Many thousands of volunteers, through their local Red Cross chapters, gave freely of their time, experience and efforts, as in other Red Cross disaster operations. They searched out needy cases in their communities, many persons being restrained from asking assistance because of pride. Chapter committees investigated circumstances, distributed food and clothing.

More than 500 carloads of foodstuffs were contributed. These were given free haulage by railroads. Farmers of more fortunate sections embraced the opportunity to help their pastoral cousins of the affected area. Shipments ranged from live poultry to fish, from grain to grapefruit. Carloads of flour, eggs, beans, vegetables, onions, rice, corn and mixed vegetables were included.

As the result of co-ordinated Red Cross chapter efficiency, not one authenticated case of starvation as a result of drought has been uncovered.

Large quantities of new and used clothing were distributed. In direct consequence many school children resumed their studies who had been kept at home for lack of sufficient protection from the elements. In some instances, rural schools that had been closed were enabled to reopen as a result of Red Cross relief work.

States involved were: Alabama, Arkansas, Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Mississippi, Missouri, Montana, North Carolina, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, Texas, Virginia, West Virginia.

Many of these States had been hard hit by a succession of floods, crop failures, low prices and economic depression, and drought constituted a climax to the cycle of distress.

"Wherever I went," wrote one observer, "I made a point of asking what would have happened if the Red Cross had not been able to respond. In widely scattered points, from leading cities, came the answer that undoubtedly there would have been many deaths directly from starvation, with epidemics preying upon the undernourished."

Conquering Disease

The Thrilling Story of Man's Relentless War Against the Foes of Health

In discovering the whole ruthless world of microbes under the powerful lenses of microscopes; in isolating the germs of deadly diseases in tropical swamps or in research laboratories—hundreds of scientists have risked their lives. Their accomplishments read like a drama.

The world has benefited beyond measure by the discoveries of these microbe hunters; by the preparations of chemists who work in the field of preventive medicine; by the physicians who diagnose diseases; and by the skill of the ethical druggist who must be depended upon to compound the doctor's prescriptions.

Get your prescriptions filled and buy whatever pharmaceuticals you need at the store displaying the "Reliable Prescriptions" sign—the symbol of protection. Here you will find courteous and efficient registered pharmacists trained in the observance of the highest professional standards. You can depend on them.
