(Tune—Sweetheart of Sigma Chi)
The Senior Class is the dearest class
Of any class to me
The classmates there, are so good and true
And loyal as they can be.
The teachers there are loyal, too,
They smile and help you thru',
Oh, my hear o'er flows,
As I bring to a close,
My days at Cool Springs High.

Famines Of Ages Are Recalled

Shelby, R-5, April 27.—As people who read my communications are aware, I don't feature as a news grubber. This department of writing does not require anything but a tissue of dry, dismal facts expressed in turgid English. Then when the contributors of "news", so-called finds a dearth of material from which to draw,—he draws a recital of hard times as a sweet morsel under his tongue. As everybody living is familiar as to destitution that prevailed during and just after the close of the War Between the States and as this topic has been worked overtime by the alleged gifted ink-slingers; I shall try to chronicle some hard times worth talking about that have been handed down by history and tradition. The first of these is so remote that the memory of man goeth not back to the contrary; for it resteth for confirmation in the sacred chronicles. As most of people do not read the Bible, it will be startling news to most of your readers. I have had long-legged, wild-eyed oracles to rebuke me for attending Sunday school and learning the unsearchable riches; but my conscience approves my course and also the ethics I practice when in attendance, I am censured and criticised for promptly leaving the church building at close of religious exercises, when approved decorum requires that I help through the aisles and shed tranquilizing tears on the accumulated mangle collected on back of some lawless, depraved roughneck. I care nothing about what appeals to such cattle, for I am enjoined by Holy Writ not to cast pearls before swine nor give that which is holy unto the dogs.

The period of hard times and destitution recorded in sacred History, is found in the Book of Exodus; beginning, really in Genesis. Joseph was one of the wisest, purest and most exemplary characters. Like all decent white men, he was the envy of grafters, and was imprisoned at instigation of a hellion in high life for conduct unbecoming any decent white man. Of course the charge was false and malicious; and his skill as an interpreter of dreams brought him in demand among prominent State prisoners. This caused his release from prison and, later, King Pharaoh had two very disquieting night visions. The conscience of one of the liberated prisoners smote him, and he performed an act of tardy justice by calling attention of His Highness to the gifted interpreter of dreams. Two prisoners were favored by his miraculous skill; but one lost his head and was not prepared to show his gratitude.

At any rate seven years of plenty were foretold and seven of famine Joseph was promoted to second place in the kingdom; and during the seven years of plenty, garnered the wonderful yields of grain into granaries of Egypt. Upper Egypt is a very fertile region, and its productivity is enhanced by overflow of the Nile. According to sacred narrative the Israelites had a visitation of destitution that would have made the hard times co-incident to posterity of Jacob, headed by the old patriarch himself migrating to Egypt.

It will be remembered that a "starving period" occurred in both the Jamestown and New England colonies. Judging from the historical account, Captain John Smith saved the Jamestown colony, for a gang of political trimmers called themselves gentlemen; but Smith saw that they went to work. He enforced the scriptural injunction:—"If a man will not work neither shall he eat." New England had a more inhospitable climate and a very sterile soil, but in the language of the cowboy epitaph:—"Every man did his best; angels can do no more."

As all well-informed people know, the Irish depend for subsistence largely upon the potato of that name and the Emerald Isle is very fertile. They have suffered from at least half a dozen serious famines within the last fifty years, as have the Chinese and the natives of India. The time is coming here when grim-visaged squalor and famine will prevail if people don't practice skillful and intensive cultivation. We are now assured that lawyers and politicians are our prosperous farmers and husbandmen. Those of us reared to hold plowhandles, to swing a scythe and cradle, to clear new ground, pile and burn logheaps, mow grass by hand or by machinery, raising turnips, melons and potatoes of two varieties, know how much of that to believe.

Some people regard an ignoramus and provincial as ideal material for a farmer. George Washington, Thomas Jefferson, Patrick Henry were all dirt farmers, as was James A. Garfield, Robert Broadnax Glenn and about every other man that amounted to anything. Consider Ben Tillman of South Carolina, when the deeds of the grafters ascended to high Heaven, Benjamin took a farmer's implement, the pitchfork, and chased corruption, panic-stricken, to cover. He and his pitchfork are badly needed again. Of course he has gone to his eternal reward, but he being dead yet speaketh. If he and the patriotic William J. Bryan could be reincarnated, every frog-eyed grafter would quake in his boots.

GASSY STOMACH, . . . HEARTBURN

Winston-Salem, N. C.—"I used to have a great deal of trouble with my digestive organs, my food soured and gas would form. The best medicine I ever took for this condition was Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It regulated the digestive organs, my appetite improved and I had no further trouble with fermentation and gassy stomach or heartburn."—J. M. Hollaway, 604 Cleveland Ave. All druggists.

IN congratulating the winners in the great Camel contest we want at the same time to thank most cordially the approximately million men and women who displayed their friendly interest by sending in an entry.

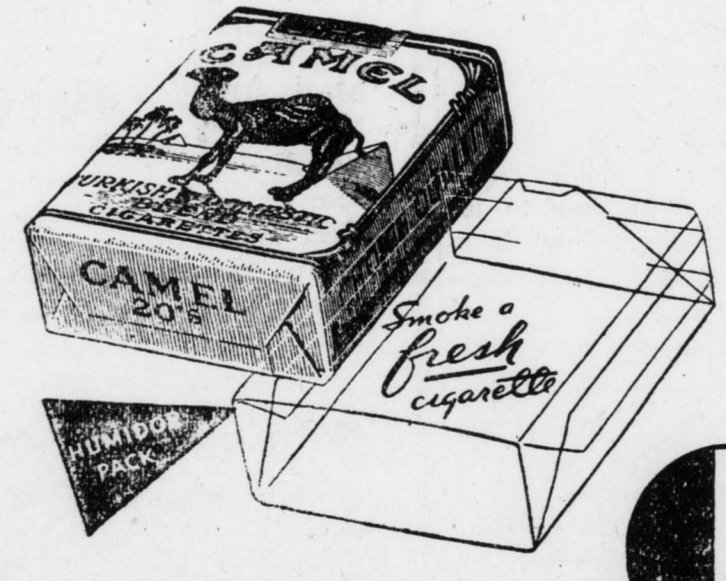

We wish also to thank the millions of smokers throughout the country for the appreciation they are showing for our new Humidor Pack as is evidenced by the notable increase in the sale of Camel cigarettes.

By means of this dust-proof, germ-proof, moisture-proof Cellophane wrapping the rich aroma and full flavor of choice Turkish and mellow Domestic tobaccos have been air-sealed in Camels for your enjoyment.

If you have not tried Camels in the Humidor Pack all we ask is that you switch over to this brand for one day.

After you have learned how much milder, how much cooler, how much more enjoyable it is to smoke a perfectly conditioned fresh cigarette, go back to the harsh hotness of stale cigarettes if you can.
