"Poppy Day" To Be Observed Saturday

Work of preparing for the annual poppy sale of the American Legion auxiliary went into full swing today when the memorial poppies which will be worn on Poppy Day, May 23, in honor of the World War dead, were received at auxiliary headquarters here. The little red flowers, packed in neat boxes, came from Oteen where they were made by disabled veterans under auxiliary direction. They must be counted and arranged for distribution to the volunteer workers who will offer them on the streets on Poppy Day.

The poppies are paper replicas of the wild European poppies which bloomed on the battle fields in France and Belgium during the world war. It was this flower, growing between the rows of wooden crosses above fresh battle graves, which inspired the famous poem, "In Flanders Fields," by Col. John McCrea. Since the war the flower has become recognized throughout the world as the symbol of war sacrifice.

"I wonder how many of the people in Forest City who will wear these poppies this year, realize the story that is behind each little flower," a member of the auxiliary remarked, as she examined one of the little paper blossoms. "Each poppy has been made individually by some disabled veteran who through this work has been able to help himself or his family in the long struggle against the handicaps of war disability. Often there is a tragic and pathetic story wrapped up in these flowers."

"Each poppy made means one cent earned by some needy disabled veteran for the support of family or to aid him when he attempts to reestablish himself in the world. Three hundred flowers a day is the limit usually placed on the workers to prevent them from overtaxing their strength, but three dollars a day is a God-send to men who have earned nothing for months, and years. Approximately 10,000,000 of the poppies have been made this year and about $100,000 has been paid by the auxiliary into the empty pockets of the disabled men."
