There were about 200 out to hear him, and he held his audience spell bound the whole way through. A good many people were heard to say that it was the best oration they had ever heard. Mr. Hollowell, who is a student in Earlham College, Ind., is certainly making a mark in the world and it makes us always feel good when we hear of one of our North Carolina boys starting out so well. This young man expects to enter the National peace contest this year, and we hope for him success.
