Mothers Day Fittingly Observed--Colored School Commencement--Mayor Cobb Gives Barbecue Dinner

Mrs. F. A. Ruffin delightfully entertained her club at a Bridge party at the home of her sister, Mrs. S. A. Norfleet, last Wednesday afternoon from 2:30 to 4:30, in honor of her guest, Mrs. Henry White, of Hobgood. Miss Florette Peele of Roxobel won the top score.

Mothers Day was fittingly observed with appropriate services at Kelford Baptist church Sunday morning. Sweet sentimental songs of Motherhood were sung by the choir and beautiful Scripture and poetical readings were rendered by the pastor, Mr. M. P. Davis. A touching solo was charmingly sung by Mrs. J. E. Tyler, entitled, "Mother McRee," and another by Mr. F. A. Ruffin, entitled "Absence." A beautiful quartette was delightfully rendered by Mr. L. R. Modlin, Mr. R. C. Barnes, Mrs. H. C. Stephenson and Mrs. P. T. Roane. As the sweet and beautiful words of mother's devotion fell from the lips of the singers accompanied by the charming notes from the piano as the ivory keys were softly touched by the trained hands of Mrs. F. A. Ruffin, the whole congregation seemed filled with the thoughts of mother and what mother means to the home.

Mr. M. P. Davis, pastor of Lewiston and Kelford Baptist churches, and Ex Mayor Geo. T. Parker, of Kelford, addressed the colored people at their school commencement last week. The colored people of Kelford school are making great progress under the leadership of Prof. Wilder, and their white friends of the community are glad to encourage them.

Mr. C. L. L. Cobb gave a delightful barbecue dinner to his children and near relatives and some friends at the Kelford school grounds Friday, May 7th, in commemoration of his seventy-second birthday. Besides the most delicious barbecue the table was laden with all kinds of dainty dishes known to the art of cookery, in the midst of the table which was handsomely dressed with roses, stood the beautiful birthday cake studded with seventy-two tiny white candles, each nestling in the bud of a tiny rose. As the fifty guests assembled around the table under the spreading bows of the massive oaks with bowed heads in humble thanks for this sacred occasion, Mr. M. P. Davis, pastor of Kelford Baptist church, pronounced the blessing and returned thanks for the life of this good man whose birthday they were then celebrating. Those present and enjoying this delightful occasion were: Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Norfleet, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Tynes and children, Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Ruffin and son, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. T. Parker, Mr. W. C. Evans and Mr. R. H. Norfleet, and Mrs. E. E. Tyler of Kelford, Mrs. A. W. Early and Mrs. Royal White and son of Aulander, Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Holman, and children of Merry Hill, Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Cobb and daughter of Norfolk, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cobb and daughters of Windsor, Mrs. F. G. Cobb and son of Hinton, W. Va., Mr. and Mrs. A. V. Cobb of Republican, Mr. and Mrs. James Forbs of Union, Mr. and Mrs. M. P. Davis of Lewiston, Miss Julia Cobb of Union, Mr. Cecil Cobb of Republican, Mr. and Mrs. R. E.

FARM DEMONSTRATION WORK

CRIMSON CLOVER

Farmers that will cut crimson clover for hay this month should remember that it should be cut not later than when in full bloom. After this stage is reached the short hairs on stem and flower heads become stiff and dry and are likely to form hair balls in the intestinal tracts of horses and mules. If cut later it should be fed to cows.

Saving crimson clover seed: If cut at proper stage to save seed crimson clover should be utilized as cow feed and not fed to work stock. Cut when about 10 per cent of the heads will strip off easily without breaking the stems. Rake at once and put in small stacks, about two feet in diameter. Make small high stacks. If weather is dry can house next day. Load by running fork or stick under stack and two men placing on wagon. Seed can be thrashed out when other work is not pressing.

If the weather is bad when clover is in this stage it will soon get too mature to handle in this way. You will then have to cut when the dew is on and haul as soon as the sun dries it off.

E. P. GULLEDGE,
County Agent.
