THE INTERNATIONAL in fifteen large, but not unweldly, Royal Octavo volumas, can treat of its 50,000 titles with a degree of fullness sufficient to their importance. It is the fullest, not only in number of titles, but in the relative amount of matter given each title.

2. It has the advantage of being International. The Britagenica is lamentably deficient in American matter, and Appleton's is silent on many foreign subjects of interest. In THE INTERNATIONAL the articles on foreign men, places, histories, laws, etc., are written chiefly by foreigners of distinction, while the articles pertaining to American interests have of chasing the culturing lox with nord and hounds. Reynard was tailed, and brought in. Development offers, choice accommodations ing in other Cyclopedias.
