The Bravest Battles.

The bravest battle that ever was fought Shall tell you where and when?
 On the maps of the world you'll find
 Not:
 'Twas fought by the mothers of men
 Not with cannon or battle shot,
 With sword or noble pen;
 Nay, not with eloquent word or thought
 From the mouths of wonderful men
 But deep in the walled-up woman's Heart—
 Of woman that would not yield,
 But bravely, silently bore her part—
 Lo! there is the battlefield.
 No marshaling troop, no hyonac song,
 No banner to gleam and wave!
 But, oh these battles; they last so long
 From babyhood to the grave.

Why Is It?

Why is it that—Bees never store up honey where it is light?
 The moth has a fur jacket and the butterfly none?
 Love will attract dew when boards,
 sticks and stones will not?
 A horse always gets up foreparts first and a cow directly the opposite?
 Corn on the ear is never found with an uneven number of rows?
 Fish, flies and caterpillars may be frozen
 solid and still retain life.
 A squirrel comes down a tree head
 first and a cat tail first?
 A horsefly will live four hours after the head is pinched off?
 The dragon fly can devour its own body and the head still lives?
 Don't all answer at once.

Universal Peace.

Elder F. D. Gold, of Wilson, a Primitive Baptist minister, contributed the following signed article to the Wilson Times:
 "There is an expectation in the minds of some that the world is nearing a state of final peace. This is not at present arranged or probable.
 "The foundation on which such peace must rest, or the source whence it must flow is righteousness. When men learn war no more shall be after the principle of love and good which shall control them—when men shall do to others as they would have others do to them.
 "Do we find this in ourselves or see it in others? The present slaughter of mankind in Russia exhibits as much brutality and ferocity as we read of in the dark ages of the world. The wars of modern times are as cruel as they were of old. The hate and bitterness among mankind shown in the array one class against another is as fierce and cruel as ever.
 "There is a flourish of triumphs and good will to men, but it often ends in professions and mere promises. In politics there is as much of self in its cunning and deceitful arts practiced now as of old. So that we still must owe that man is corrupt and his claims to great progress in sanctity have not been proven."

There are nuggets of wisdom in what Elder Gold says. When we read of the horrible state of affairs in Russia where even women and children are slain we wonder what advantage the white man's so-called civilization has over that of the wild tribes of Africa. Even revelations in our own country cause no doubt whether we are as civilized as we imagine. The precepts and practices of the great teacher whose birthday is to be celebrated December 25th are not generally followed.—Wilmington Morning Star

Not A Good Law.

The Merchants Journal, of Raleigh, is of the opinion that two thirds of the merchants of the South would be forced to retire from business if the proposed Parcel Post law should be enacted by Congress. We do not know, of course, whether it would work serious harm to the home dealers who are entitled to every protection that generous laws can afford. The scheme is simply intended to build up the department stores and mail order houses of the East by putting into effect a postage rate much cheaper than anything enjoyed to day. The big deficit in the Postoffice Department is proof enough that the government cannot consistently order the change, and yet there is a powerful influence and a powerful lobby at work in the interest of the cause. It would divert trade from Southern business houses and it would build up the trade of the establishments in New York and other cities by depriving our merchants of that which rightly and logically belongs to them. Many misguided people in North Carolina are advocating it. They believed that it will help them at the expense of our merchants without whom we could not secure the necessities of every day life. "All of these measures," says the Journal, "affect the mercantile life of the country and should be given careful and serious consideration by the business men commercial organization." What is more, our representatives in Congress should feel the pulse at home before using their influence to support a bill which will hurt the people whom they were elected to serve.—Raleigh Times.
