A SALVATION LASSIE

TAMBOURINES AT SALVATION ARMY HEADQUARTERS, NEW YORK CITY

America of the old fashioned American is gone; it's all ended. Some still cling to pharosic hopes, but with the recent announcement that the Salvation Army lassies have given up their tambourines for street collecting—gaw! What's the use?

It started with the buffaloes. Some New York traveling men, dressed in the latest spring styles, ventured out West. The buffaloes took one squint, lay down on their spinal cords, closed their eyes, groaned and died.

And then there came about the passing of another beloved American institution—the front yard. Home life hasn't been the same since. With the advent of skyscraper tenements and flats front yards vanished. Now the heads of households when they come home at night worn out with arguing golf at the office all day have to sit on the front doorsteps or go to the movies.

Suspenders have gone too. And gone are 50 cent Sunday table d'hote dinners, and family surreys, and all-day suckers.

And now the time honored role of the Salvation Army lassie's tintinnabulating tambourine is doomed. You will find these once popular musical collection boxes, piled up by the hundreds at Salvation Army headquarters.

The lassies, heartened by the country's approval of their overseas war service, have found it unnecessary to waste effort in tambourine solicitations, and they devote the time thus saved to actual stum work and general service to all distressed humanity. So they've called off the year-round tambourine collecting and appeal to the nation annually for financial approval. The 1920 Appeal is scheduled for May 10th to 20th.

The lassies will still beat the tambourines in the Salvation Army praise services, however. They quote a number of Psalms as authority. Here is Psalm 149, 3:

"Let them sing praises unto Him with the timbrel and harp."

The "Umbrel" is the ancients' name for the modern Salvation Army tambourine. Well, goodbye, old tambourine. We'll miss your cheering tinkle and the acknowledging smile of your mistress, but you did your bit.

Beat Drum—Spent Night in Prison

By hitting a big bass drum just one resounding whack for which she spent a night in jail, a resolute black eyed girl changed the police classification of Salvation Army drumming from "petty nuisance" to "music."

That was twenty-two years ago, and the black eyes have grown more gentle in years of service for the poor since those battling days, but they still twinkle when the story is told.

It was Mrs. Adam Gifford, wife of the colonel now commanding the New England forces of the Salvation Army, who wielded the drumstick and struck defiance at the Pennsylvania blue coated policeman of the town where she and her husband were then stationed.

State citizens had complained bitterly of the Salvation Army and its street corner meetings and musical services, but particularly of the bass drums of the band. Night after night the drums had been confiscated by the police, but to no effect. Finally a police order went out to "arrest anyone attempting to beat a drum."

Following this Colonel Gifford in an effort to test the constitutionality of the order advertised that upon a certain evening a mousie meeting would be held and that upon that occasion Mrs. Gifford would beat the drum.

As anticipated a record breaking crowd was turned out. The police reserves were called upon to quell the riots which might ensue. At a given signal Mrs. Gifford gave the drum a resounding thump and the meeting was under way. Immediately the frail little Salvation Army lassie was plucked under arrest and escorted by a crowd of amused but sympathetic onlookers to the patrol wagon and thence to the local jail, where she spent the night.

The case was taken before the supreme court of the state, where eventually the constitutionality of the "Army" was sustained.

Following this decision the entire corps, led by Colonel Gifford, marched to the city hall to demand the drums that had been confiscated by the police. Twenty-eight of the offending "prisoners" were released in the custody of the corps. From that date to the present none of the meetings of the Salvation Army has been disturbed by the police. Furthermore, the precedent established has been maintained in nearly every state in the Union.
