CONDITIONS NOW AND IN 1865

According to General Sherman's Memoirs, History Seems to Be Merely Repeating Itself.

A single page in the story of the Civil war, the Memoirs of General Sherman, carries observations by two Ohio men prominent in that war, General Sherman himself and Secretary of War Stanton, that have a strangely familiar sound now amid the distressing conditions that have followed the World war here.

General Sherman has arrived with his story at the opening of the year 1865, and he is dealing with the closing events of the Civil war. He is at Savannah and the secretary of war is there, partly on an official visit and partly for recreation. The policy of enlisting slaves is under discussion and the order giving the freed slaves the right to occupy seized lands is agreed on.

"He professed to have come from Washington for rest and recreation," writes General Sherman, "and he spoke unreservedly of the bickering and jealousies at the national capital, of the interminable quarrels of the state governors about their quotas and more particularly of the very existence of the government itself.

"He said that the price of everything had so risen in comparison with the depreciated money that there was danger of national bankruptcy, and he appealed to me, as a soldier and patriot, to hurry up matters so as to bring the war to a close.

"I was quite impatient to get off myself, for city life had become dull and tame, and we were all anxious to get into the pine woods again, free from the importunities of Southern women asking for protection, and of civilians from the North who were coming to Savannah for cotton and all sorts of profit."

High prices, weariness of the war conditions, eagerness on all sides for the return of peace, swarms of people at Washington—official and private citizens, with axes to grind, and speculators from the North pushing right down to the hostile lines in promoting their profiteering enterprises. But we came through it.—Columbus Dispatch.

Tells How Ziron Iron Tonic Helped His Daughter After Operation for Appendicitis.

AFTER any serious illness, the first thing you notice when you begin to get around is your lack of strength and energy—a tired, weak feeling.

The sooner you get your strength back the better. The thing to do is to eat plenty of good, nourishing food, get all the fresh air you can, exercise conservatively, and take Ziron Iron Tonic three times a day.

Your doctor will tell you this is sound advice, and urge you to follow it.

Read this letter from Mr. J. B. Kelly, vice-president of the First National Bank, Graceville, Fla.: "My daughter had been in bad health since last April. She was operated on for appendicitis. She has been taking Ziron for two weeks. Her appetite is better than it has been. Her nerves are better, and she says she feels better. I know that Ziron is good for weak and feeble people."

Ziron is a scientific, reconstructive tonic, prepared from valuable strength-building ingredients, for weak people with thin blood. Druggists sell Ziron on a money-back guarantee. Try it.

Radio Telephoning.
The first experiment in long distance radio telephoning was made in 1914, the attempt resulting after many efforts in successful transmission of speech from Washington to Paris and San Francisco.

Seal Herds Increasing.
The protective measure adopted by the government for the benefit of the seals in our waters has been entirely successful, as indicated by the great number of animals seen to be migrating to the Arctic sea. The migration was three weeks earlier than usual, and an unusually large amount of animals were noted on their way to the north.

Cured by Gold Injections.

The very latest post-war discovery is the curing of certain ailments by means of injections of diluted gold. This very expensive method of restoring lost health was discovered by a French doctor, who has completely cured a wealthy Parisian of a complaint similar to shell-shock. Although gold is very scarce at present, a limited supply is available for medicinal purposes. The price for one injection of good quality gold sometimes reaches the fifty-pound mark, while in one or two exceptional cases gold injections have cost over a hundred pounds each. Consequently, only very rich persons can at present undergo this gold treatment, which has been successful in relieving several cases of complete nervous breakdown. It should be remembered, however, that the gold itself is of no great value as a tonic. The idea in making the injections is to liven up the patient and prevent him or her from brooding too seriously. This done, doctors believe that half the battle is won. Strange to say, the injections are not made through the usual type of syringe, but generally through a conical-shaped tube of pure platinum costing over twelve hundred dollars.

Money.

After having studied the careers of many of our richest men, and after having obtained from many of them an outpouring of their inmost thoughts, my conclusion about money is this, says a writer in Forbes Magazine: "Money is a very desirable thing, even a lot of it. Its possession enables one to do a great many things which are impossible if one lacks it. There is no such potent material instrument for enabling one to do worthy deeds in large numbers and on a large scale. Money, indeed, is so desirable, so useful, so rich in possibilities for worthy accomplishment, that one should exercise every honorable effort to acquire every dollar of it that one can earn, but there is not enough money in the world to compensate one for turning even one sharp corner, for never have I known an instance of ill-gotten money to have yielded true happiness to possessor and his offspring."

Bird Protection Important.

Preserving birds as game is only one part of the duty of the government. They are even more valuable as enemies of noxious weeds and insects. They are the farmer's best friends, though he is too often oblivious of the fact, says the Philadelphia Inquirer. "Those who care nothing for their beauty of plumage and song must recognize the circumstance. Yet the birds have been too long the prey of their human hunters. Some species have been well-nigh exterminated in consequence. To protect them in the United States and Canada will accomplish much, though to make the protection of many of the migrants complete Mexico and Central American countries should join in the work."

Cats a Source of Danger.

Cats are great carriers of disease germs, and scratches from their claws are sources of real danger, as those claws are generally coated with a mass of germs which may cause infection, and for these reasons alone should not be allowed to associate too intimately with young children whether the latter are asleep or awake.

Motors Displace Mules.

The First cavalry, stationed at Nogales, Ariz., has abandoned mules in favor of motor equipment, but the change is not so revolutionary as it sounds, because you can swear just as fluently at a balky carburetor as you can at a stubborn quadruped. And it does just as much good.—The Home Sector.

Wedding Ring Once Banned.

The Puritans of the seventeenth century used no ring at the wedding ceremony, as they considered it "a pagan symbol and superstitious contrivance." All that they required was that the men and women should join hands when stating their purpose to live together in wedlock.
