Apples From Alaska

The first commercial shipment of Alaska-grown apples has been made. Boxes of a variety known as yellow transparents were sent from Hope, on Turnagain Arm southeast of Anchorage, to Anchorage. The trees on which the apples were grown have been bearing for five years. Absence of blemishes on the fruit was noticeable.

Helping Out Tourist

Among the newest inventions is a small pocket interpreter for the tourist in foreign countries. It consists of revolving disks with the English phrases commonly used on one, and the foreign equivalent on the other. By setting the indicator at the proper section of the first and turning the other, the translation appears through a slot on the reverse side.

More Sheep Than People

New South Wales need have no fear of a mutton shortage inasmuch as there was reported for August a sheep population for that Australian state of 45,000,000 as against the 2,272,000 men, women and children who live in that section of the commonwealth.

Doesn't Matter

"I would like a book," said the girl. "Something light?" asked the librarian. "It doesn't matter. Daddy'll carry it home."—Christian Science Monitor

Not Exactly

Customer—I'd like to see the cashier of the bank about buying some bonds. He isn't out of bonds, do you suppose? Teller—No sir, he's out on bond.

Odd Characters, Husbands!

Mrs. Biggs—Husbands are certainly odd, aren't they? Mrs. Diggs—Yes, indeed. Mine gets mad every holiday because I make him go out to enjoy life.
