WORK PROGRESS ON SOUND BRIDGE

Bridge Across Bogue Sound Will Cut Time To Ocean Considerably

The work of filling in the causeway across Bogue Sound from Morehead City to the banks is making good progress. The contractor expects to finish it within the next three weeks. A few piles have also been driven for the bridge and in about ten days pile driving will be going right ahead. The Davis Construction Company has the contract for building the bridge, for the Atlantic Beach Bridge Company, and expects to have it ready for public use some time this fall.

When the bridge is completed a person living in Raleigh, Greensboro and many other up State cities, can leave his home in the morning in his car and that afternoon can take a surf bath in the Atlantic ocean. People who live in Goldsboro can make the trip in three hours and Kingston folks in two. New Bern will be less than an hour from the ocean beach. The completion of the Beaufort-Morehead City bridge will enable Beaufort people to use the other bridge and to get to the ocean beach in fifteen minutes.

Contract Has Been Let For Bridge Approaches

A contract has been awarded by the State Highway Commission to the Simmons Construction Corporation to build the approaches to the State Highway bridge. The contract also includes paving the fill between the two draw bridges, alongside the railroad tracks and building the road from the Atlantic hotel in Morehead City to the foot of the bridge.

A fleet of trucks began hauling sand Tuesday for the abutment at the foot of Ann street in Beaufort. It will take about 3200 cubic yards of sand for this job. Good progress is being made on this and it will not

FIVE PRISONERS ON DEATH ROW

One Is To Die Friday. Smallest Number Awaiting Execution In Some Time

RALEIGH, N. C., June 6—(INS)—The population of State Prison's Death Row has dwindled to five.

The removal of Mose Green to Wilson for a new trial granted him recently by the Supreme Court left the lowest number of inmates along death's row in many months.

One of the inmates, a white man, W. L. Ross, convicted Warren County slayer of two, is under the observation of experts who will decide his sanity. He collapsed when he was taken to Warrenton for his second trial recently.

Ross is the only white inmate of Death's Row. The other four are negroes.

Two of the negroes have their doom dates set.

Pearl Mitchell, Chatham County slayer, is under sentence of death on June 10.

Joe Anderson, Franklin County, is under sentence to die in the electric chair on July 1.

Mitchell has lost an appeal to the Supreme Court, but Anderson still has time in which to perfect an appeal.

Add Domestic Science To School Curricula

Considerable business was transacted at the meeting of the Board of Trustees of the Beaufort Graded Schools last Thursday evening as well as a general discussion of school matters.

The board has been thinking some time of installing a domestic science department and at the meeting last week adopted a resolution to put this department into operation when school opens in the fall. The matter of getting equipment for the two new buildings was discussed and it was decided to buy this on the 16th and the dealers have been notified to this effect. The board elected several new teachers for the fall session. Work on the new buildings is making rapid progress and it is thought they will be ready for the fall opening.

COUNTY CALENDAR EXPLAINS THINGS

Various Duties Required By Law Set Forth. June A Busy Month

Raleigh, June 5—Considerable interest has already been shown on the part of county officials, newspaper men, and others, in the county calendar recently prepared and distributed by the County Government Advisory Commission. Several newspaper offices have already requested that a copy be sent to them.

This calendar sets forth on one large sheet the various duties and functions required under the county laws, the officers who are held responsible for these duties and functions, and the dates on which meetings are to be held, reports rendered, and various other matters attended to.

The calendar runs from May 1 through to the end of April, but fully half of the items listed come in the first three months, that is in May, June and July.

Two outstanding matters were due to receive attention in May, though there were several entries for that month. One of these was the duty of setting up the machinery for listing taxes and other matters with regard to taxes. In short, the bulk of the work in May fell on the sheriff, though the commissioners were due to hold several meetings. It was in May also that the heads of departments and officers in charge of functions were required to submit their budget estimates for the coming fiscal year.

June is a busy month, according to the calendar, for in this month the county accountant, that official whose duties and responsibilities have been considerably increased by the new legislation, begins his work of preparing a budget estimate based on the figures submitted to him by the heads of departments or officers in charge. This report must be ready for the commissioners at their meeting on the first Monday in June. At this meeting, also the commissioners receive a report of all taxes collected since last report. Immediately thereafter the sale of lands for uncollected taxes begins.

In July the results of the first two months' work under the law must be made public. The published statements will show valuation, debt, deficits, miscellaneous income, uncollected taxes, tax sales, unnumbered balances, and comparative tax rates for county and subdivisions.

Interested persons may secure a copy of the county calendar by writing to Chas. M. Johnson, Executive Secretary, County Government Advisory Commission, Raleigh.
