Community Club Had Large Attendance

On Thursday afternoon June 2, the Community Club members met for the final meeting of the club year. The attendance far surpassed any June meetings of previous years.

Annual reports were read by chairman of departments and members of official board.

Mrs. U. E. Swann, chairman of library committee reported fifteen new books added to library several of which were donated, also one magazine subscription. For the first time, a paid librarian is being employed, and the committee hopes to make it a county library. This was an excellent report considering the only library fund has been library memberships and fees.

The Public Welfare committee reported five dollars. The monthly allowance, used for charity each month, with an additional Christmas fund, totaling seventy dollars this year.

The membership committee reported the largest member of paid up members in the history of the club. The yearly report of the Music Department was as follows:

Franceska Kespar Lawson, noted soprano, gave a vocal concert Dec. 12.

A Colonial Musicales, under the direction of Mrs. O. B. Moore and Mrs. H. M. Hendrix, was given in February. This was well attended and the profit was gratifying.

Mr. Blair was scheduled to give an Art lecture in April, but due to some confusion in his dates, he could not come.

The Music Department helped Miss Gladys Chadwick and the Art Club with the Art Exhibit in the public school.

Two small loving cups were offered one to the pupil in each school who showed the greatest improvement in Music during the year.

The closing report was read by the president, Mrs. S. F. Hildebrand, and is as follows:

"Ladies of the Community Club, Visitors and Associate members: We have come to the close of another year, the sixth in the history of the club. We finish the year with a paid up membership of eighty-six members, seventy-five of whom are active, and eleven, associate.

"We are indeed indebted to 'The Beaufort News' for the generous space allowed us in its columns during the year.

"Our ideal of service must be kept constantly before us. The Federation of clubs does not recognize clubs that are purely social in nature, but requires that clubs must stand for social betterment.

"No club can stand still—it must either go forward or backward. Let us strive to be pushing on. There is still much undeveloped woman power in Beaufort. If we can only help this power to develop, it will be the greatest year in our history.

"We have a vision and a goal for the coming year which nothing can prevent us from reaching if all work together. Those things upmost in our minds are:

1. The establishing of a county library with a well equipped reading and rest room that will be open to the public every day in the week.

2. To perfect a system of organized charity work to work with our county welfare officer for the poor and needy of our town.

3. To maintain a booth at the Inlet Inn pier during the summer months, as the means of providing our contributions to charity.

4. To organize a troop of Girl Scouts.

5. To present a three day Home Chautauqua shortly after the club opens in the fall.

"This looks like a stupendous task, but it is not an impossible one, if we work together. Our dreams can be realized and our visions broadened if we stand together, and by June 1928 we can have finished the work that now looms like a mountain ahead of us and be looking ahead for new worlds to conquer."

"To the retiring officers I wish to say that each one of you has given me loyal support throughout the year attending to your duties in such an efficient way that I have been relieved of much responsibility. I feel very grateful to you and to every member of the club for the hearty co-operation extended me.

"This has been a busy year, as our reports from departments and committees have shown. We have had reverses that at the time seemed almost insurmountable, but in each case we have been able to forge ahead, and to become more closely united by working together.

"Early in the year we pledged ourselves to have an emergency building fund started by June—unforeseen difficulties have prevented this fund from assuming very definite proportions, but the idea of a community building is uppermost in our minds, and we hope to make rapid strides toward that ideal during the coming year.

"We are indeed indebted to 'The Beaufort News' for the generous space allowed us in its columns during the year.

"Our ideal of service must be kept constantly before us. The Federation of clubs does not recognize clubs that are purely social in nature, but requires that clubs must stand for social betterment.

"No club can stand still—it must either go forward or backward. Let us strive to be pushing on. There is still much undeveloped woman power in Beaufort. If we can only help this power to develop, it will be the greatest year in our history.

Several matters of importance to be taken up with the Board of Town Commissioners was referred to a special committee, this was in regards to a booth at the Inlet Inn pier during the summer, the contribution of a fund to the organized charities, also a petition signed by many leading citizens asking for iron benches along the water front.

Next in importance was the installation of new officers. Those elected for the coming year are: Mrs. S. F. Hildebrand, president; Mrs. James S. Gutsel, 1st. vice-president; Mrs. A. D. O'Bryan, 2nd vice-president; Mrs. R. Hugh Hill, recording secretary; Mrs. T. M. Thomas Jr., corresponding secretary; Mrs. O. B. Moore treasurer. Chairman of Departments are: Civics, Mrs. Hugh Overstreet; Health, Mrs. W. G. Mebane; Music and Art, now vacant, since Mrs. M. S. Rose sent in her resignation. The Music Club will elect its own chairman.

At the conclusion of the business program Mrs. Chapman of Tennessee, a visitor to our club, spoke a few words in behalf of the great work being done by women's clubs.

After a social hour the club adjourned, discontinuing regular monthly meetings until October.

Potato Shipments Are Now Almost Over

The potato season is drawing to a close. Up to and including today's shipments 154 car loads have been handled by the Norfolk Southern from Beaufort. Some have been shipped also from the western part of the county but the bulk of the crop is raised in the Beaufort section. The cars contain about 200 barrels each which makes an estimated total of 30,000 barrels. Prices have been better this year than for a number of years. The high water mark was reached Saturday and Monday when primes brought $9 a barrel. The price is down today and primes are bringing $7 a barrel.

Mr. I. T. Noe of Beaufort seems to hold the record for a yield this season. He planted one bushel on a small plot of ground and harvested eleven barrels of which 10 barrels were primes. He sold them for $7.25 a barrel. Some growers have done very well this year, others not quite so well owing to a short yield.

WALLS AND THEIR COLORS.

When we enter a room, nothing pleases us so much as its color. We like to see nice clean walls, fresh from the painter's hand. The idea once prevailed that the inside of every house must be pure white—that this made the rooms brighter and more attractive because whiteness suggested cleanliness. Since we have learned more about color, we have found that a combination of colors of varied intensity makes a more pleasing interior than the pure white.

We wish to discuss the kinds of walls and colors suitable especially for kitchens of various exposures. The kitchen walls should be of a non-absorbent material as tile or paint; they should be pleasing to hard-finished plaster with water-proof look at, for nothing gives us a "first impression" of a room so much as does its walls. The kitchen must be easy to clean too. While the walls of tile and hard-finished plaster have a great initial cost, yet a wall less expensive than these means constant renewal and refinishing. For this section of the country, we find that the plain pine ceiling is the least expensive and the most satisfactory when covered with a coat of water-proof paint.

We want our kitchens to be bright cheerful, and colorful, for color exerts a wonderful influence upon our happiness and health. It soothes, stimulates, depresses or delights, according to the appropriateness of its selection and the other colors with which it is used. If we surround ourselves with dull and gloomy colors, they are reflected in our spirits and we become disheartened and depressed. Our spirits droop under the influence of a dark and dismal day, but revive immediately with the return of the sunshine. Spring acts like a tonic through the harmony of its blue sky, its green foliage and varicolored flowers. Imagine what this world would be like if there were no color, and we all moved among dull gray or black and brown substances. Living would be robbed of the great part of its zest and beauty. It is not natural for people to live amid drab surroundings.

Color is the most effective and the least expensive of all modes of decorations. A colorless home, far from being an evidence of good taste, is an evidence of colorless personality, ignorance of the important influence which color exerts on life and temperament, or fear and inability to express one's self through this wonderfully responsive medium.

The pleasing and correct use of color is not a difficult thing if a few simple and easily understood rules are followed. Color has a direct influence on the apparent size, lightness, darkness, coolness or warmth of a room. As the walls are the largest area in a room and provide a background for the entire furnishings, it is the selection of their coloring that color can be used to work its magic. Light colors on the walls make rooms appear larger. Light blues and greens or colors tinged with blue and green are particularly good for the reason that they have a tendency to make surfaces appear more distant than they actually are. Dark colors on the walls make rooms look smaller. The use of comparatively strong colors on walls will go a long way towards decreasing the apparent size of a larger room and therefore make it more hospitable.

If the ceiling of a room is high, it should be tinged a darker color than ordinarily, in order to bring it down and make it appear lower. This may be done by using a color only a little lighter than the wall color. For example, if the walls are cream, the ceiling should be ivory instead of white.

Dark rooms may be made to look lighter than the wall color. For example, light gray, cream, buff, and ivory are good in dark rooms as well as in small rooms, but a soft yellow is best for this purpose. Yellow reflects more white light than any other hue of equal strength. Pure white produces a glare thus destroying the good effect of light.

Glaring and unshaded rooms may be made more restful and cheerful by the use of blue or green on the walls. The stronger and natural light of the room, the deeper may be the green or blue employed.

Red and yellow are warm colors. Wherever these colors are used they give a feeling of warmth. This is true of both the light and dark tones of these colors, and also mixtures of colors which contain red and yellow. But, I say unto you, use these colors advisedly, and do not commit the atrocity of painting a kitchen a "barn red"—I mean a red which we see used on the barns of the farm! I saw such use of it not long ago, and I felt as if I were being smothered. In rooms of bleak northern exposure, warm colors should be used to obtain the effect of warmth and cheer.

Greens, blues and violets are cool colors and they give a feeling of coolness to a room. The floor and woodwork should be of a slightly deeper color than the walls, while the ceiling should be from two to three shades lighter than the walls. Avoid ceilings of darker shade than the walls because they give one an uneasy feeling as if the roof might fall in.

BIG IMPROVEMENTS IN SCHOOLS WORK

The average reading ability for the fourth grade has reached the state standard for that grade.

Spelling in the fourth, fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth grades is about the state standards for those grades. The high rank in spelling is probably in part due to the tandard tests sent out from the office each month. Both teachers and pupils worked to improve individual and class scores made each month on these tests.

Arithmetic scores on the standard tests show that the grades are not up to standard. Next year Arithmetic will receive special attention. In general the objective for class room work next year will be to give pupils better preparation for promotion and to prepare more pupils for promotion.

Along with the special work in Arithmetic next year the special work in Reading and Language will be carried and the right kind of physical and recreational activities will be promoted.

The improvement in the work this year over that of the previous year was possible because of the work which the teachers did and the splendid cooperation which they gave throughout the year.
