Female of the Species

Absent-mindedness is sometimes deadly, and doubly so in the female of the species. Or, possibly it wasn't absent-mindedness. Anyway, when Blimson left for the office the other morning his wife reversed a certain daily custom, or at least she got it mixed up with certain other domestic duties. As he passed out onto the front porch she was standing in the kitchen door with a skillet in her hand. And she hurled the skillet at him and threw a kiss at the cat, which was trying to climb up onto the kitchen table.

"That's true," agreed Douglas. "But the searchlight is one of the loveliest of wonders—it's so pretty," said Dorothy. "And oh, how glad I am to have had one light up the very bus we were on. That's a real adventure we'll be proud to remember all our days."

"Indeed we will," said Douglas. "For we not only saw a searchlight upon a ship, but we had one thrown upon us—two children in the city."

"And to think," he added, "we told Uncle John at first that it was so dark we couldn't see anything when he was planning this adventure."

"Well, it was a surprise party," said Uncle John. "And tomorrow we will take the same ride by daylight so we can see the warships then as we did before when we were on our boat trip. And we can, too, see how little the searchlight could do beside old Mr. Sun!"

Daddy's Evening Fair Tale

THE SEARCHLIGHT

It was evening and Uncle John had taken the two children, Douglas and Dorothy, who were visiting him in the city, for a ride on top of a bus.

They went along the riverside and suddenly a strong light was thrown upon them.

In fact it was so strong that both the children put down their heads, for they really, really, could not stand the strong glare.

"It's a searchlight on one of the battleships in the river," said Uncle John, who was sitting back of the children. I thought you might enjoy seeing the searchlights tonight."

"But how can it get way over here, Uncle John?" asked Douglas.

"Oh," explained Uncle John, "a searchlight is used so a ship can see things all about. They are having a fine time looking at the apartment houses and the other ships and at the monuments along the drive, such as

The Children Put Down Their Heads, the Soldiers' and Sailors' monument, and later they will have a look at Grant's tomb.

"And they looked at us, too," said Douglas.

"They thought that was a great joke, eh?" said Dorothy.

"Maybe they thought it was a joke," said Douglas. "But I have never seen anything so wonderful as a searchlight before. To think that it can light up objects far away and can suddenly turn darkness into light!"

"Well, we think almost each thing we see is more wonderful than the last," said Dorothy.

Air Made to Order

An apparatus is operated at the University of Pennsylvania hospital, in Philadelphia, which enables doctors to determine the cause of hay fever, asthma and other bronchial ailments. It supplies an atmosphere to the patient either cleared of all possible irritants or charged with pollen, dust, etc. By studying the effects of various irritants, the doctors can tell which is causing the patient trouble.

Paper Buildings

Paper and seven other ingredients which are being kept secret are used in a new cheap building material invented by a Serbian sculptor, Yovim Peshitch. The product is lighter than brick and is said to be fire and water-proof, fire merely softening it a little. Its only limitation is that it is unsuitable for buildings of more than two stories.—Washington Star.

"How Much will you allow on my used car?"

This is a commonly asked question, since most new car sales now involve the trading-in of the purchaser's used car.

Theoretically, you can get almost any allowance you want, if you are willing to buy a new car whose price has been arranged to permit an excessive trade-in offer.

Practically, the largest allowance is not the best deal for you unless the new car has been priced to give you full new car value, without regard to trade-in.

When you trade-in your present car for a new car, remember that after all you are making a purchase—not a sale. So be guided by these basic facts.

- 1 Your used car has only one fundamental basis of value; i. e., what the dealer who accepts it in trade can get for it in the used car market.
- 2 Your used car has seemingly different values because competitive dealers are bidding to sell you a new car.
- 3 The largest allowance offered is not necessarily the best deal for you. Sometimes it is; sometimes it is not.
- 4 An excessive allowance may mean that you are paying an excessive price for the new car in comparison with its real value.
- 5 First judge the merits of the new car in comparison with its price, including all delivery and finance charges. Then weigh any difference in allowance offered on your used car.
