LIVER GOOD FOOD FOR PALE PEOPLE

Raleigh, Nov. 21—Those who like liver well cooked will be gratified to know that they enjoy a food that is packed with minerals and vitamins. Those who do not care for liver, should lose no time in cultivating a taste.

"Liver is a good source of supply for many food elements," says Miss Mary Thomas, nutrition specialist of the home demonstration division at State College. "The food contains proteins of unusual value and also an abundance of minerals and vitamins. We know of the splendid results obtained when cod liver oil is used for babies and grown people. Just lately much more interest has been aroused by certain investigations which show that liver is rich in iron and has other substances favoring the utilization of this iron by the body for blood building."

In other words, liver will help cure anemia. Medical authorities are recommending liver, especially beef liver, with an abundance of fresh fruits and vegetables as a cure for this disease. Even in pernicious anemia, this diet has been found very beneficial in bringing about an increase in the red cells and hemoglobin. Not only is liver valuable for the blood, states Miss Thomas, but it also contains many food elements which give tone to the entire body.

Miss Thomas states that there are many ways in which this liver may be prepared for the table. She also states that there are other and more attractive dishes than the regular fried or boiled dish so often served. To prepare the liver for cooking, it should be cut into slices about one-half inch thick, covered with boiling water and allowed to stand for five minutes. Then drain off this water and remove the outside skin and the veins.

Braised liver, baked tomatoes stuffed with liver and Russian baked liver are three new dishes advocated by Miss Thomas. She states that these make excellent dishes and those who wish to have recipes may get them by writing to her.

PUBLIC HEALTH

A recent report from the United States Public Health Service shows that eighty-three percent of the rural population is as yet unprovided with official local health service, approaching adequacy. This report shows that thirteen states are without a single full-time health officer in rural districts while other states reach only a few. The states leading in this regard are Ohio, Alabama, North Carolina, South Carolina and Maryland, all the rest of the states reaching less than thirty-five percent of the rural population.

The report further states that at the rate of progress made since 1919 it will take about eighty-five years for reasonably adequate full-time local rural health service to be extended to all communities of the United States in which such service is needed.

In 1926 there were thirty counties added to the list of those having full-time health officers—The Nation's Health.

CARTERET COUNTY ISLAND PARADISE

No Flivvers Or Bright Lights In This North Carolina Eden

An island paradise, where the flivver horn squeaks not and the bright lights of amusement palaces are unknown, has been discovered by a newspaper man in ultra-modern, twentieth century Tar Heels, at Salter Path and the Garden of Eden, on Bogue Sound just below Morehead City.

The fisher folks who make up Salter Path's population of 200 had never seen a newspaper man that any of them could remember, and only by eluding the myrmidons who sit sentry over the gates could entry be gained into the Garden, the property of a Mrs. Hoffman, of New York and Paris.

"In God We Trust. No cursing or vulgarity allowed on the beach" is the sign that greets the Salter Path visitor, and next to it another reiterates the whole spirit of the village with "Blessed is the Peace Maker." Visitors are few at Salter Path, and a good many of those who go there find mostly they are not wanted.

A hand-power railroad which runs the short breadth of the island is the only mechanical means of transportation in the village. There was once an automobile, say the inhabitants, but it has vanished. Until a few years ago the natives cooked on "spiders" which have more recently gradually given away to the inevitable can opener. There is a single radio in the community.

Mrs. Hoffman has held sway for fifty years. Hoffman has held sway for fifteen years, is a checkerboard of cultivated flower gardens and dense native growth, a 3,500 acre kingdom over which she reigns with true queenliness. Guards patrol her borders and turn back invaders of the small domain. She lives alone with the exception of French handmaids

The Green Cloak
 By Yorke Davis

Who was the mysterious recluse who lived in the old house? Why was he killed and what strange method was employed to bring about his death? In what manner did the green cloak figure in the crime?

These and other interesting matters are unraveled in Mr. Davis' fascinating story.

and the myrmidons. Parties of friends from the north are no more now, and the queen reigns over few subjects. A far cry indeed are Salter Path and the Garden of Eden from the hustle and bustle of Charlotte or Greensboro or Winston-Salem or others of the North State's brightly lighted and hurried commercial centers.—(Raleigh Times.)

House's Drug Store Is Popular Place

Directly after the World War Mr. Joseph House, who was a lieutenant in the army, came to Beaufort from his home, Scotland Neck, and entered into the service of the Beaufort Drug Company. He acted as manager of that store for several years and then decided to embark in business for himself. He first opened up in a wooden building which stood on the corner now occupied by the Standard Oil Company's business. When this property was bought by the oil company he moved into his present quarters in the building owned by the Bank of Beaufort. This store was remodeled last year and is now one of the nicest looking drug stores in the county.

By careful attention to business and good service to his patrons Mr. House has built up an excellent trade. He has as his assistant Mr. Roland King who is an experienced druggist and registered pharmacist. House's is also the Rexall store in Beaufort. As a result of the new bridge and other improvements made in the town and county the House drug store is expecting an era of prosperity in which it hopes to share.
