Hay Statistics Shown In Farm Forecaster

According to no less an authority than Dr. Clarence Poe, of Progressive Farmer, "Our farming is one armed until it includes livestock in its operation. It is unbalanced. It is unfinished." The hay crops have a direct relation to livestock activities. Our mountain counties lead in livestock and hay crops. The Central Piedmont comes next. The East can grow the heaviest yields—even two crops per year on the same land. These crops require the least labor—meaning the least expense. They can be handled entirely by machinery, meaning the most acres per worker.

Looking at our county, we find in the State's Annual FARM FORECASTER the following hays. Small grains cut green 213 acres; cowpeas for hay 311 acres; soy beans for hay 622 acres; all clovers 1000 acres; mixed hays 154 acres; meadows 4 acres or a total of 2304 acres of hay crops in Carteret county. Ashe County, with 21,395 acres, leads in the mountains counties; Rowan, with 31,374 acres; tops the State for the Piedmont area, while Robeson, with 15,483 leads the east in hay and the State in total farm acreage and number of farms.

Children who are guests of the hotel, from the summer cottages, and from Morehead City, Beaufort and other towns attend the Children's Hour at the Atlantic Hotel. Once or twice through the season a costume ball is held for the children, and prizes are given for the best costume. At many of the dances special favors are presented, fans, whistles, and other novelties that are a delight to the childish heart.
