Pretty Indian Legend

The custom of sacrificing a beautiful maiden by sending her over Niagara falls in a canoe was practiced by the Indian tribes about the falls. The maiden selected paddled a white canoe, filled with fruits and flowers, over the falls. It was counted a great honor to be chosen as the sacrificial victim. Once the only daughter of a Seneca chief was selected by the gathered tribes. Her father loved her dearly, yet he showed no sign of grief. The revels continued during the whole day, and when night came and the moon rose the girl paddled her canoe toward the falls, amidst much tumult and shouting. Suddenly another white canoe darted from the opposite bank. It contained the chief, her father; the canoes met, and together they went to their death over the falls.

English Official Mark

The "broad arrow," used as a distinguishing mark on British government property, was the "cognizance" or heraldic symbol of Henry, Viscount Sidney, who was master-general of the ordnance from 1693 to 1703, says an article in the Montreal Family Herald. In time it came to be used by other government departments besides the ordnance board (now the war office), with which it first was associated. Curiously enough, the "broad arrow" was a symbol of power and authority among the ancient Druids. It is felony to obliterate this official mark.

Not a Major Crime

A soldier walked rapidly from a railroad train in London, gazing nervously down at a suitcase he carried. A railway detective looked at him for a moment and then leaped in pursuit. Blood was dropping from the bag. A few days later the soldier was found guilty by court-martial. The charge was stealing six pounds of fresh meat from the company kitchen.

Careless Pedestrians

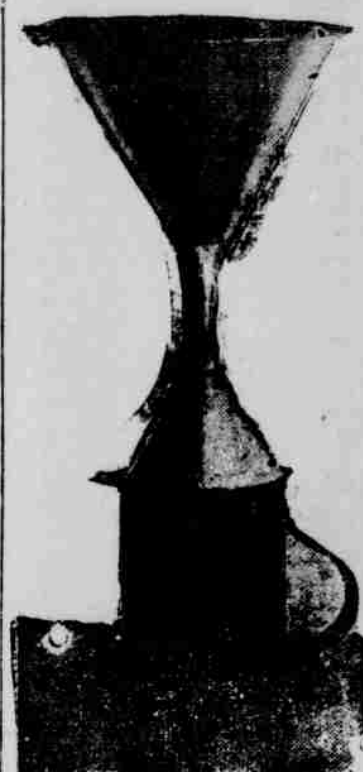

In Nuremberg they seem to have hit upon a plan which secures some lasting results. Any person who drops a paper or an empty cigarette box in the street is liable to a fine of one mark. A watchful policeman steps up, names the offense, collects the quarter and hands over an official receipt for it. The streets of Nuremberg are astonishingly free from litter.

BIRTHDAY DINNER AT ATLANTIC HOTEL

Miss Mary Taylor Hinnant, the attractive young daughter of Captain and Mrs. W. K. Hinnant of Beaufort was hostess to fourteen of her friends at the Atlantic Hotel last Wednesday evening at a dinner, the occasion being her thirteenth birthday. A delicious course dinner was served, and at the last a beautiful birthday cake with thirteen lighted candles was placed in front of the hostess for cutting. Miss Hinnant was the recipient of many attractive gifts. At a nearby table which was prettily arranged for the occasion, Mr. and Mrs. Hinnant and the hostess grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. N. W. Taylor, were seated.

Dr. Graham said that education could not run up and down with the fluctuations of the business world. No zig zag line is possible in a successful educational system. The schools must be maintained in order to develop the youth of the State to their highest efficiency. "To tear down is a wasteful way to pay up," he said and "we must not surrender to depression."
