Watching the Game

For spectator sportswear, this neat little jacket of pressed caracul, topped with charming bicorne boasting an individual flower trim, is worn by Lily Danila, Radio Pictures star. A manish scarf, purse, belt and gloves of black, give the final touch.

"Doctor, what's your favorite sport?"
"Sleighing."
"Ah, but I mean apart from business."
—Tit-Bits.

Where Union County farmers poisoned for the boll weevil this summer there are few infested squares now, says Tom Broom, county agent.

A TRIBUTE TO MRS. REBECCA GILLIKIN

On December 3, 1849 there was born to Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Lewis a baby girl. She was called Rebecca and was one of the six children born to her parents. The days of her childhood glided happily away as do most all childhood days. Finally she merged into womanhood and became the devoted wife of Mr. W. T. Gillikin. She went to work to lay the foundation for a home. Within the walls of their little shrine some babies were born. The pattering of baby feet, the childish whims, the childish joys and sorrows came to aunt Becky's ears to be met with a sweet smile and word of cheer. She watched them with a love that only a mother knows for her children. Later, with a love made deeper by time she watched them one by one as they chose their work in the different walks of life. Shadows came. Her husband departed in the beyond but with her sweet smile and the love light shining from her eyes she kept the home fires burning. Her devoted children came and went bringing joy to her heart.

Then one day her steps became feeble and slow. On June 28, 1931 after traveling on Life's Highway for 81 years she became weary and Jesus seeing her weariness took her in His arms to the land where we are told, there is no sorrow nor night.

As the fading of the last flower in a certain garden, came the death of Aunt Becky. Her life may fittingly be compared to the life of a beautiful flower. The leaves grow, the bud comes, and then the flower in full bloom. The radiance and fragrance causes the passers-by to stop, wonder and in admiration to go on. The rain beats upon this flower but when the sun shines again the flower is more upright and beautiful than ever. The home was Aunt Becky's garden. She adorned it and never did she fail to give a morsel of bread to the hungry, a word of cheer to the distressed or a helping hand to the orphan. Her neighbors and friends could only love and admire her. She stood by and saw mother, father, husband, brothers and sisters die but as the flower after the rain she was cheerful and submissive. Truly it can be said "She was good."

The funeral services were conducted by Rev. C. A. Lineberger, pastor of the Baptist church of Marshallberg. All the children were present upon this occasion, besides the many relatives and friends. The many floral tributes showed the high esteem in which aunt Becky was held. Her entire life was spent at Marshallberg.

Those left to mourn her loss were the following:

Mrs. Brady Way of Beaufort, Mrs. J. B. Gillikin, Miss Margaret Gillikin, Mr. F. D. Gillikin, Mr. J. K. Gillikin, Mr. T. Gillikin of Marshallberg; her many grandchildren, two great grandchildren, and a host of relatives and friends.

A Friend.

Read The News

The events that happen in Carteret county are of more interest as a rule to the people of the county than those that happen any where else in the world. The big newspapers are all right for news from far off places but they do not give you very much information about what is happening in your own county. To get news of this sort the best plan isto read

The Beaufort News

This newspaper prints interesting news items from all parts of the county every week. This is the main object of its existence. Special attention is paid to county affairs. Proceedings of the County Commissioners, Board of Education, news pertaining to Farm and Home Demonstration, Superior Court, Recorder's Court and the like are published regularly. Some national and State news is published also and special articles and editorials on various subjects. The News comes out fifty two times a year and it costs less than four cents a copy. At such a small price can any intelligent person afford to do without it? If you pay $3 in advance you can get it for two years. One year $2, six months $1.00, or three months for fifty cents.
