Items of Interest From Newport School

Every Monday morning some senior has charge of chapel in the Newport school. Chapel is held three times a week but the whole student-body meets together once a week, on Fridays. On Mondays just the high school and seventh grade meets. On Wednesdays the elementary school has chapel and every Friday some classroom gives a program on the stage. Such variety in chapel programs make this period of the school day one much looked forward to and enjoyed by all students who otherwise would dread going to chapel almost as much as many boys hate to go to Sunday School. The time for chapel is the same each time—10:20, and the public is invited to any exercises.

The time for chapel is put in the middle of the forenoon so as to break the monotony of one recitation after another. It comes after two recitation periods in the high school and is followed by two periods before lunch. Another advantage of having chapel at this time is to enable the truck children to be present, as many times some of the trucks may be late for one of a hundred reasons and the pupils on that truck then would miss chapel if it were held the first thing in the morning as is done in many schools. Again, by having chapel in the middle of the forenoon, it gives the parents an opportunity to do their housework and come out to school for the exercises and then get back in plenty time for preparing dinner, whereas if chapel came earlier in the day many housewives would not be able to come as they would not be through their work at home. The training derived from standing before a student-body and being able to express oneself in his feet in invaluable, and this is just the reason the seniors are conducting chapel every Monday morning. Occasionally, some faculty member is on the program for a talk at chapel, but for the most part, it is the pupils' chapel period, of by, and for the pupils.

Girls to Play Baseball

Not because they want to be "tomboyish" but because they like it the girls of the Newport High School have organized a baseball team and every day they have quite a time playing the great American game. They do not use the hardest baseball, neither is it an indoor ball, and there is little need for gloves, mits, etc. The size diamond played on is just a little smaller than regulation size, but the rules are the same as for professional baseball. It may be that later in the spring the girls baseball team will play a match game with a girls team from some other school. They are open for challenge.

Play To Be Given

The P. T. A. of Newport School is sponsoring a play to be given on Friday night, January 29, at 8 o'clock. The name of this play is "Welcome Home Jimmie." It is a comedy-drama in three acts somewhat of the "Way Down East" type. The publishers say this is one of the best plays they have ever put out and it is meeting with tremendous success everywhere it is given. There will be a special added attraction by way of chorus girls and special musical numbers between acts. These promise to be good.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23—Since formal announcement of Mr. Hoover's candidacy for renomination would have to be made some time, it is well that Mr. Brown has acted thus early. This will end the talk, never taken seriously by informed observers but nevertheless persistent, that Mr. Hoover was tiring of the burden of office and loath to enter upon a contest such as is foreshadowed for the 1932 campaign. The announcement finds no other active Republican candidate in the field, since former Senator France can hardly be regarded as in the category. The insurgents are awaiting word from Senator Johnson, whom they have invited to make the race. Ambassador Dawes has emphatically declined to oppose Mr. Hoover, to whom he pledges his loyal support.

Senate and House conferees have reached agreement on the Walcott-Strong bill creating the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, keystone of President Hoover's relief program. All the differences between the two houses have been reconciled and steps were taken to seek final passage, so as to enable this largest governmental fiscal agency to begin operations at the earliest possible moment. Senator Carter Glass, of Virginia, and Senator Robert J. Bulkley, of Ohio, Democrats, won their fight to make corporation's securities ineligible to Federal Reserve discount. The House conferees carried their demand for immediate cash advances to depositors in closed banks up to $200,000,000, and for advance of at least $50,000,000 in loans to distressed farmers.

The House of Representatives will pave the way for a general reduction in government salaries by voting a cut of at least 10 per cent, and possibly as much as 20 per cent, in its own, it has been authoritatively stated. Similar action by the Senate was said to be certain to follow almost immediately. Initiation of this legislation in the interests of government economy and renewed public confidence is awaiting only the presentation to the House, probably some time next month, of the legislative general supply bill, which carries the appropriation for the salaries of the members of both branches of Congress.

Under our Constitution the salary of the President and members of the Federal judiciary may not be diminished during their terms of office. Leaders close to the President predicted however, that he will set an example for the judiciary by donating to relief organizations a portion of his salary equal to the reduction taken by members of Congress.

The choice of Charles G. Dawes to be president of the National Reconstruction Corporation is rightly hailed as an assurance that the corporation will get busy immediately and prove a (Continued on page eight)

Want Gas Tax Back

Half a dozen counties of the State have brought court action to recover from the State Highway Commission their part of the one cent gasoline tax provided by the 1929 General Assembly, for the period, about three months from the time the 1931 General Assembly increased the rate to six cents until the State took over the county roads for maintenance, July 1, 1931. The gasoline tax runs some two months behind and the counties claim they are due the amount, since they maintained the roads during that period.

Judge N. A. Sinclair, in Superior Court, gave the counties judgment in the amount, the highway commission appealing to the Supreme Court, where the case will be argued in the spring term. The amount involved is about $1,500,000, as the highway commission would have to pay about that amount to the 100 counties, an average of $15,000 a county, if the Supreme Court holds the counties are due what they claim. Doubt is expressed that the counties will recover.

The State Board of Equalization, at its meeting last week, reached a minimum standard agreement on school buses, samples of which had been made up and were displayed by North Carolina body manufacturers, the effort being to supply a body that is indestructible and will not crush if it should turn over on its top, or permit the children to be thrown out.

Iron linings for the standards holding the top and iron joints holding the body together, along with divisions in the windows with a central bar strong enough to hold the children inside in case of accident, are features. These bodies, thus standardized, can be made as cheaply, or cheaper, because of the regulation requirements than bodies now in use, nor are they heavier. The new bodies will be bought as needed to take places of old ones or to supply needs when new consolidations are made.

The Chowan county school row, caused by refusal of county authorities to consolidate three small schools as provided by the State Board, and efforts to continue them by volunteer teachers, was not settled. Hope is expressed that the Chowan authorities will follow the provisions of the Equalizing board as all other counties in the State have done, thus ending the controversy.
