"And they came to worship Him who was to be the Light of the World," and for whom Christmas was named and last, but by no means least, I would fill to overflowing this wonderful stocking with God-fearing employees.

At Caswell, all employees are teachers, because by the actions of grown ups little folks are taught either good or bad. One more little package for each employee. This little package, no larger than a mustard seed, is a package of faith to believe that finally everything will eventually be done for this wonderful school, "For verity I say unto you, if ye have faith as a grain of mustard seed, you shall say unto this mountain, remove hence to yonder place, and it shall remove; and nothing shall be impossible unto you."

We must begin to fill the little stockings of the 650 children at Caswell. We must hurry for it is getting late and not a child must be overlooked. Those little folks have been looking for 365 days and night for Old Santa. Oh; it has been so long to wait and old Santa must not fail a single boy or girl, because most of the children at Caswell have no one but Santa Claus to give Christmas presents. So here we go—the stockings are counted and filling begins—confections first and a toy next, then a little personal trinket, such as a bracelet, a pin, ear rings, handkerchief, or tie. In every stocking, I would put on order for each child to have an apple or an orange each day during the winter months and a lemon each day for the summer months. I would put an order into each stocking for a quart of Grade A milk for each day of the year. I would put into each stocking a bag full of kind deeds, kind words and a bag full of kind instructions from each employee at Caswell. On each of these bags, I would put a bag with these words, "From the ones who are acting in the place of parents to those little ones." And last, but by no means least, I would put at the top of the stocking a draft for $1.00 drawn on the County from which the owner of the stocking came; this dollar would give this child a chance to buy something he wanted, Oh! ever so much.

stockings filled as above would answer for these children for all time the oft repeated question that comes at Yuletide, "Is there a Santa Claus?"

By now, dawn is beginning to break in the East and I hear sleigh bells jingling on my restless reindeer: Dasher, Dancer, Prancer and Vixen.

Comet, Cupid, Dunder and Blitzen Happy Christmas to all and to all a good night.

What Duke Did With Its $40,000,000

THIS YEAR 420 people asked, "What will Duke college do us the main beneficiary of the $40,000,000 James B. Duke endowment?" This excellent air panorama gives the answer. On the edge of Durham township in North Carolina is Duke university, surrounded by a 5,000-acre campus; one of the most compact and beautiful in America. The unit was first occupied in 1930 after the completion of a $20,000,000 building program. In the foreground is the stadium, seating 35,000 persons. Also shown are the various athletic fields, baseball diamonds and tennis courts. The building unit is 4,156 feet long and is dominated by the 210-foot chapel tower which contains a carillon of 50 bells. The unit includes a medical school with a hospital of 456 beds with a separate $8,000,000 endowment. All of the buildings are of Gothic architecture. Physical development has been paralleled by academic growth. The Duke library has nearly 400,000 volumes and the faculty includes many internationally known scholars and scientists.

Caswell Train'g School

IF I WERE SANTA CLAUS

KINSTON, Nov. 23—If I were Santa Claus and could give good gifts to every one, both young and old on "The Night Before Christmas," as soon as I entered North Carolina from Santa Claus Land, I would drive directly to Caswell Training School. I would get there early, because I would have much to do because a great number of grown ups and children had long been looking for my coming.

I would first put into the stocking of the school, sufficient funds to build four or five new cottages in order that crowded conditions might be improved and other children cared for, who seem to be and are misfits everywhere except at Caswell, also sufficient funds to put buildings and grounds in first class condition.

I would also put into the stocking, fruit trees, nut trees, dewberry and strawberry plants, so that Caswell would have fruits and nuts in such quantities that each child would have a plenty and to spare. I would put in to the stocking a large flock of turkeys in order that Thanksgiving and Christmas could be celebrated each year in regular American Style. I would also put into this stocking a cold storage plant and ice making machine in order that foods could be kept in a sanitary manner and plenty ice made for employees and children. I would also put into this stocking a fire proof dairy barn to take care of the finest herd of cows in the State.

I would also put into this stocking an assembly hall on ground floor and an up to date moving picture machine. Another thing that would go in to this large institutional stocking would be fifty passenger bus to carry a group of children to Church on Sundays to hear the beautiful story of Him whose star appeared to the Wise Men of the East 1934 years ago.

FAREWELLS AND WELCOMES

ALL through the long summer Peter watched his feathered friends and learned things in regard to their ways he had never suspected. As he saw them keeping the trees of the Old Orchard free of insect pests, picking up countless seeds of weeds everywhere, and helping Farmer Brown in his garden, he began to understand something of the wonderful part these feathered people have in keeping God's Great World beautiful and worth living in. He had many a hearty laugh as he watched the bird babies learn to fly and to find their own food. All about him all summer long they were going to school, learning how to watch out for danger and how to use their eyes and ears and all the things a bird must know who would live to grow up.

September Came and Some of Peter's Friends Bade Him Good-by

As the days grew shorter and fall drew near Peter discovered that his feathered friends were gathering in flocks and roaming here and there. It was one of the first signs that summer was nearly over, and it gave him just a little feeling of sadness. He heard few songs, for the singing season was over. Also he discovered that many of the littlest most beautifully dressed of his feathered friends had changed their fiery for sober traveling suits in preparation for the long journey far south where they would spend the winter. The fact is, he actually failed to recognize some of them at first.

September came and some of Peter's friends bade him good-by. They were starting on the long journey, planning to take it in easy stages for the most part. Each day saw some fly away. As Peter thought of the dangers before them he would wonder rather wistfully if he would ever see them again. But some there were who lingered even after Jack Frost's first visit. Welcome and Mrs. Robin, Winsome and Mrs. Bluebird, Little Friend the Song Sparrow and his wife were among these. But by and by even they were forced to leave.

Sad indeed and lonely would these days have been for Peter had it not been that with the departure of the friends he had spent so many happy hours with was the arrival of certain other friends from the Far North, where they had their summer homes. Some of these stopped for a few days only. Others came to stay, and Peter was kept busy looking for and welcoming them. A few old friends of the summer would stay all winter. Sammy Jay was one, Downy and Halcyon, the Woodpeckers, were others. And one there was whom Peter loves dearly; it was Tommy Tit the Chickadee.

THEY ALL GET A LIFT WITH A CAMEL!

CIVIL ENGINEER, Capt. Eric Loch: "Camels have been my cigarette for nine years. The longer I smoke them the more I appreciate their milder flavor. I smoke all I want and they never jangle my nerves."

EXPLORER, Mrs. Wm. LaVarre reports: "My husband and I are devoted to Camels. Any time I'm tired I stop and smoke a Camel. It wakes up my energy in no time. And here's an important point. Smoking Camels steadily, I find, does not affect one's nerves."
