THROUGH A Woman's Eyes
By JEAN NEWTON
CLINGING TO THEIR BIBLES

"DEAR Jean Newton: Did you see the news that six people in an automobile accident clung, through the crash, to their Bibles and hymnals? Their car was overturned, and when they were extricated from the wreckage they were still clinging to the Bibles. They were all unhurt and went on to the prayer meeting, which was their destination. I suppose they figured out it was holding on to their Bibles that saved them. "What do you think about it, Jean Newton?"

I think those people are among the world's luckiest—because of their faith which will help them through "tight spots" all along the way. They have something, those people who confidently held on to their Bibles when their car turned over and everything spun around them. They have something more important than wealth in the world's goods, something that will carry them over many difficulties that money cannot smooth away. In this day when religious faith is a rarer thing than it used to be, when religion is being challenged outspokenly, when a whole nation and a political creed expresses as one of its tenets the abolition of religion, it is heart-warming to learn of people who still have Faith.

I am sorry to differ with the implication of the reader whose letter is above. But I feel that many who may take very lightly the faith of people who clung to their Bibles in a crash, may well envy them.

TIMELY FARM QUESTIONS ANSWERED AT STATE COLLEGE

Raleigh, Dec. 17—
Q. How much land should be set aside for the home garden?

Ans. This depends upon the number of folks in the family. One tenth of an acre will produce an abundance of vegetables for one person and, when multiplied by the number in family will give the proper acreage required. Where cantaloupes, watermelons, Irish and sweet potatoes are grown in the garden it will take a somewhat larger acreage but, as a usual thing, one tenth of acre is sufficient for each member of the family.

Q. What is a full ration for a dairy cow?

Ans. The full ration differs with each individual animal and means that each cow is fed to her full capacity for milk production. To determine this each animal is given all the roughage, including hay and silage that she will eat. Grain is fed in proportion to the milk produced. One or more trials will determine the amount that is profitable to feed. A gradual increase of grain to the ration should be made. If there is a satisfactory milk increase this feeding should be continued until the milk flow reaches its peak. If there is no increase in milk production then the grain ration should be decreased. In this way the herd owner can soon determine the exact amount of grain necessary.

Q. How can I cure colds in my poultry flocks?

Ans. The first thing to do is to isolate all birds showing symptoms of a cold. As this tribute is usually caused by poor ventilation, overcrowding, or poor feeding the cause should be found and corrected. Check carefully on the feeding program and give the flock Epsom salts at the rate of one-half pound to three gallons of water. The house should be thoroughly cleaned together with all drinking and feeding utensils. Slight cases may be treated by the use of a ten per cent argyrol solution—a drop of this being placed in each eye, each nostril and in the slit in the throat. Where the disease is well established it is not economical to treat individuals and these should be destroyed.
