

A Newsy Trip Around The World

By Elizabeth Saunders

Robert Lockyear, saloon keeper of Whimple, Devonshire, England, killed himself because of a whistling heart. He would whistle so loudly that people in the same room could hear it. An autopsy failed to disclose the reason for the whistle.

Mrs. Istvan Sagi, 20-year-old insomnia victim of Cagled, Hungary, is reported to have gone without sleep for 13 years.

Ras Lindemood, Union County, Tenn., held up work on the TVA project until a method had been devised to carry to his new home a fire started by his ancestors more than 100 years ago and never extinguished.

California's newest prodigy is Deana Ramona Spencer, 3-1/2 years old. She uses a typewriter deftly, reads newspapers and can recite 34 poems.

The world's largest fish is said to be the whale shark found in the Indian Ocean, which measures as much as 45 feet in length and weighs 13 tons.

A rat at last has killed a cat. In New York, a blue-blood Persian cat, owned by Joseph Dunninger, hypnotist, attempted to swallow a rat the other night. The rat got stuck in the cat's throat turned around, and the cat choked to death. The rat escaped.

A purse stolen from Mrs. Edith Petty of Chicago, was returned to her home with a note saying that the thief feared the $13 it contained would be unlucky for him.

In Grainesville, Ga., Hamby Patterson, 70 year old blacksmith, made himself a set of false teeth out of old aluminum pans.

Nemiso Santiago of New York City, was killed by a needle stuck in a mattress. He rolled over on it one night and it pierced his heart.

Owen Barlin, a pugilist of Cardiff, arrested for wife-beating, proved that his wife was the one who did the beating.

In Mt. Carmel, Pa., a crack of a wet towel cost Edward Showonski 9, the sight of one eye.

Paul Kramer, of Tinicum, Pa., has built up a prosperous business collecting water lice from stagnant pools and selling them as food to owners of tropical fish.

After eating a heavy dinner, a man in London went to a theatre and started to light a cigarette. As he raised the match, a bubble of gas from his stomach came up to his throat, making contact with the flames, exploded in his mouth, blowing the cigarette across the theatre and setting fire to his whiskers.

To silence the chatter of horses' hoofs on city pavements, Michael Gruenfield, a farmer of Schweinhelm, Central Bavaria, has invented rubber heels for horses shoes.

In New York City, a subway guard, noticing that Mrs. Gertrude Rudolph, 31, seemed in pain, asked her what was the matter. She said she thought "something is going to happen." It did. She gave birth to a son in the subway car, which was cleared of passengers. The child and the train arrived at the same time.

The single horned sheep of Nepal really have two horns but they are encased in a single outer sheath almost to the tips.

Joseph Coonery of Belfast, was arrested for kidnapping his own wife, who had left him to live with her mother.

In Frankfurt, Germany, the health court saved a young musical student "form sterilization altho he is suffering from "depressive insanity." The court said he had such extraordinary talents it must be expected he could bequeath some on his progeny, if any, and sterilization hence might mean greater loss than gain to the community.

Cotton yarn production in Japan broke all record when 322,000 bales were produced in a recent month.

Each living creature is supposed to have some purpose in nature's plan, but the road hog must have been a zoological error.

One little error in judgment has caused a lot of grief. Alcohol is all right in the radiator, but not in the operator.

Raleigh, Feb. 19—"Provide your seed supply immediately and buy the best," is the advice C. L. Newman, associate editor of the Carolina Co-operator, given in the current issue of this new farm journal.

Mr. Newman points out that "to wait until the latest possible date for purchasing seed may and often does mean the following:

- "1. Poor quality, because the best is nearly always sold first.
- "2. Delay in planting, which may result in loss equal to many times the cost of the seed.
- "3. Higher price in case of scarcity, and sometimes inability to secure the particular varieties wanted.

"4. Disarrangement of plans with reference to what is to be planted in each field, which may result in loss."

Mr. Newman points out that "certified seed are always the best, and most dependable."

Beware of Seed Crooks Farmers Are Warned

Raleigh, Feb. 19—Farmers are warned against "seed crooks" by Dr. R. Y. Winters, Director of the State Experiment Stations, in the lead article in the current issue of the Carolina Co-operator.

"Now that cotton is bringing a little better price many seed crooks are coming out for your money," he writes. "They are distributing circulars that tell of impossible performance."

Dr. Winters advises farmers to get in touch with their county agent or with the experiment station for reliable information about seed.

were lowered and the passengers filled these to capacity. In the meantime with the burning ship settling rapidly into the water there was another crash and the vessel broke in two in the middle.

Fire that had started when the boiler exploded was soon extinguished as the bow and stern sank into the ocean. Nothing remained but drifting pieces of the wreckage, with those who had been thrown into the water making every effort to clamor aboard something which would give them a chance to escape death by drowning.

Two of the four lifeboats which had cracked open due to long exposure on deck in the sun sank shortly after they were lowered and those who had taken refuge in these were taken aboard the other two filling them past capacity.

Knowing their approximate position those aboard the two remaining boats started towards the north-west, a general direction of the land. It was the following afternoon they sighted land and breakers. Reaching the shore safely through the breakers the refugees started looking for subsistence. At the point of perishing from exposure and hunger they reached the cottage of one Siglee Redd of Onslow county about 10 o'clock. "On Monday they reached Wilmington where they found deep sympathy.

On the forward part of the vessel 22 persons had taken refuge. Under a burning sun those aboard this temporary raft drifted aimlessly Friday and Saturday. Toward evening of the latter day they were within a half mile of shore when a light breeze growing stronger, again blew them to

Never Treat A Cough Lightly

IT MIGHT BE DANGEROUS
Never send a boy to do a man's work. That's why we say to you, go today to Joe House Drug Store and get a bottle of that famous, smooth creamy, creosoted Emulsion known to pharmacists as Broncholine Emulsion. It's a medicine for grown-ups for coughs that hang on and never seem to let go. No sweet syrupy concoction that simply plays with a cough—no dope or habit-forming drugs—it quickly strikes at the source of the trouble. Get a bottle and enjoy a good night's rest.

BRONCHU-LINE EMULSION

sea. Early Sunday all were so hungry that they started discussing who would be the first in the group to 'go for food.' One Major Heath aboard the raft said, "No, we are Christians." So they gave up the idea of casting lots to see who would be sacrificed for food. Late Sunday afternoon a light rain fell which revived the party considerably.

On Monday they sighted four vessels, tried to signal them but could not. Tuesday morning after four days without food, water or sleep (they were so crowded it was impossible for a person to sleep) they again discussed the feasibility of drawing lots when they sighted another vessel which seemed much nearer their track. It almost passed them by but finally someone aboard sighted the refugees and the vessel (she was the Henry Cameron of Philadelphia, bound for Wilmington) picked them up. They were given medical aid by the captain of the schooner and put ashore the following day in Wilmington.

Of the 150 persons a board only fifty-nine were saved. The following acknowledgement for the 'kindness and affectionate conduct' of persons who aided the nervous was the finale to the story:

"To Capt. Davis of the schooner 'Henry Cameron' of Philadelphia, to the citizens, physicians and authorities of Wilmington, to the president and directors of the Raleigh and Wilmington railroad company, to the hotel keepers there and enroute to Portsmouth, Va., and stage owners on the same route and also to Capt. Sutton of the steamboat, "Alabama." The latter transferred the passengers from Portsmouth to their destination, New York.
