Bids for the inside dredging from Fort Macon to the Morehead City Port Terminal site will be let in Wilmington on Friday. Whether a private dredging company or a government dredge will get the job depends on the differential. Private dredges must come within 25 per cent of government estimates to secure the job. This work will be carried on by pipeline dredges and is included in the $1,555,000 allotment by the U. S. War Department for the deep channel from beyond Beaufort Inlet to the Terminal site. Later the T. A. Loving Company, builders of the terminal will let a dredging job of 180,000 cubic yards at the site of the terminal. Date for that letting has not been announced.
