

Jr. Legion Team Plays Saturday

When they met Greenville on her diamond Wednesday, the local Legion Juniors did not do so hot—probably because it was hot—unusually so in the tobacco town. The outcome was 11-2 in favor of Greenville. But a chance for revenge will come on Saturday, the fourth, when the locals will again meet the own climate here, the local boys, strong Legion Juniors of Greenville here in Beaufort. In their own climate here, the local boys, despite the fact that they have not played as many games as their visitors, will probably make a much better showing. The game starts at 10 o'clock—local school ball park.

the Norfolk Southern or the Atlantic and North Carolina railroad will have to see to it that service is maintained along the extension.
"Apparently no arrangements can be made for organizing a new company to take over the line between Beaufort and Morehead City," asserted Oliver E. Sweet, of the L.C.C. financial section.
"In the event the Commission refuses to permit abandonment of the Beaufort extension, the Norfolk Southern has offered to lease the stretch of track to the Atlantic and North Carolina, for $10 a year, rather than continue its own operations there," Pritchard said.
"And yet, there is nothing to show whether the Atlantic and North Carolina would accept the Norfolk Southern's offer," Pritchard said.
"In any event," he said, "the railway service on the Beaufort extension is not yet doomed, and will not be until the Commission has reached its decision on the case."

SEELEY AND DAVIS ATTEND HEARING

Fred R. Seeley, president of the Chamber of Commerce and M. Leslie Davis, commerce counsel for the Town of Beaufort in the railroad matter now pending before the Interstate Commerce Commission returned home late last Thursday after attending a hearing before Examiner John Pritchard. The hearing had to do with the proposed abandonment of the Beaufort and Western trackage between Morehead City and Beaufort by the Norfolk Southern, owners of this trackage which extends across the Newport river and terminates here—but serves many communities east and north of Beaufort.

The hearing marked the completion of testimony by Col. M. A. Butler, chief engineer of the A. N. C. Col. Nicholson, chief engineer of the Norfolk Southern and Mr. Dugan, of the traffic division of that railroad. Mr. Seeley, interviewed by a Beaufort News reporter learned the following:

Col Butler testified that it would take from fifteen to seventeen thousand dollars to put the tracks and trestle in perfect condition. Col. Nicholson, on the other hand declared and testified that the tracks and bridges are in better condition now than in many years and that they are thoroughly safe. Mr. Dugan, gave a report on traffic, stating that the decrease in freight shipments this year is because crops have been short generally, and the movement of vegetables over the line in question was lower than usual due to a very dry spring.

"The Examiner stated that briefs should be filed by August 1, by attorneys representing the different interested parties," said Mr. Seeley. He further ordered that at the convenience of the Commission, and I. C. C. engineer should make an inspection and report on condition of the trackage and the trestles, based on Interstate Commerce Commission standards. This report would not in any way interfere with the filing of briefs or further handling of the case.

Fletcher Eure

job, told a Beaufort News reporter late last night that no one aboard knew in what manner he fell from the scow.

Beveridge stated that the pile driver outfit was leased by N. F. Eure, father of the deceased youth, and that he headed the construction company which would install beacon lights in Wainwright Slough, recently obtained for that area by Congressman Barden. Preparations were being made to start driving the first beacon pile when young Eure was missed. At first others aboard thought perhaps he had fallen into the hold of the vessel in some accidental manner. But failing to find him, they started searching the surrounding waters.

In the meantime, Fred Hooper of the lighthouse beacon service who was supervising the placement of the new lights, left for Atlantic in his boat to send word to the youth's parents that he was missing and to notify Core Banks coastguard station. Word of the tragedy was received here between 11 and 12 o'clock. Core Banks coastguardsmen started for Harbor Island 15 miles away to aid in the search, but before their arrival the body had been found by members of the pile driving crew. "It was lying on the bottom when discovered," Beveridge stated. Every effort was made to revive the youth through artificial respiration methods, but to no avail. The body was found about 45 minutes after the youth was missed from the pile driver scow.

Fletcher Eure was very popular in Beaufort and well liked by all who knew him. He was a member of the Junior class of Duke University and before enrolling there had attended Oak Ridge Military academy for two years. Besides his parents two sisters, Mrs. Jack Roberts, Morehead City; Miss Dorothy Eure and one brother, Thomas Eure, Beaufort.

HOEY FOR GOVERNOR

In the Democratic primary, July 4th it is confidently believed as the next governor of North Carolina, he will be nominated. It seems to be the consensus of opinion among those who have honestly tried to inform themselves and forecast the prediction that Clyde Hoey will be nominated by a very substantial majority. I sincerely believe that prediction will come to pass.

In this appeal to the electorate of Carteret County I speak not only as Mr. Hoey's Campaign Manager for this County but as a citizen who has always been interested in the welfare of Carteret County in particular and the State of North Carolina in general. I fully and conscientiously believe that it is by far the greater interest of the public generally that Mr. Hoey be nominated, and I cannot help but feel that if the people of Carteret County were familiar with the record of the two candidates they unhesitatingly would give Mr. Hoey their loyal support.

If Mr. McDonald has a record of service to the Democratic party in North Carolina, it has never been made known to the people of the State. The record shows that he never manifested enough interest, either in the Democratic Party or the public welfare of the State to register and vote (or even declare his party affiliation) until 1932. He did not register and vote in 1924, in 1926, in 1928, nor in 1930. As a plain and undeniable truth, he has voted in only two elections since he has been living in North Carolina (12 years) and they were the elections of 1932 and 1934. It is a significant fact that during those years when Clyde Hoey was going up and down North Carolina on behalf of his party and speaking from hundreds of platforms, Dr. McDonald not only was very silent, but did not manifest the interest of the average citizen to go to the polls and vote, or even authorize his name to be placed upon the registration book.

Dr. McDonald is so much interested in the State, its public institutions and all that they stand for, why is it that he did not indicate a willingness to make some contribution to their support by listing his personal property for payment of taxes. The record shows that he did not list taxes (not even his poll tax) in either 1929, 1930, 1932, nor 1935. According to the Tax Supervisor of Forsythe County, Dr. McDonald has made voluntary tax returns to that County (the County of his residence) only three times since becoming a resident of that County in 1928. He listed and made voluntary returns only for the years 1931, 1933, and 1934, and his County taxes for the year 1935, according to the report of the Tax Supervisor, are only $6.35, including poll tax.

For the first time during the period covered by my memory of the political history of North Carolina the people of this State are being urged to nominate and elect to the highest office of the State a man who prior to the time of his undertaking political ambitions of his own, manifested no interest in either his party's welfare or the common welfare of the State.

We are told by certain Representatives who served with him in the 1935 General Assembly of the State (for verification see Representative Wade of Carteret and Ward of Craven) that on one occasion when he had an opportunity to show himself either friendly or unfriendly to a great undertaking in which all Eastern North Carolina was and is especially interested (the final Legislative Act insuring the construction of The Port Terminal project at Morehead City) he actually voted against the measure and used his influence in trying to defeat it. (We know that Mr. Hoey that he has experienced a change of heart and would show himself friendly and use the great influence of the office of Governor on behalf of the furtherance of the project should he be nominated? Maybe his attitude in that Legislature explains why practically all of the Eastern members who served with him are now opposing him. Our Eastern Representatives say that "the Doctor" would not vote with them on matters vitally affecting the Eastern section of the State.

Something else: What manner of man is this who has lived in North Carolina long enough (12 years) to familiarize himself with the history of the State and her institutions, and who in one breath praises the State for her great progress and wonderful institutions and in another breath berates and derides the leadership that has made her great? Dr. McDonald daily is doing this very thing. He praises the benefactors and denounces the benefactors. He is like the proverbial drowning man, grabbing at the floating straw.

And who is Mr. Hoey? For years he has been recognized as the most outstanding private citizen of North Carolina. For 30 years or more he has fought the political battles of his party, and he has contributed generously and lavishly of his time, efforts and great influence towards the building of a great commonwealth. His life-time earnings are invested in North Carolina. His family, family history and family traditions are rooted in North Carolina. He is a great lover of his State. He has never failed to show his faith by his works. All that he has, his good name, his property, his family, his splendid record and his hopes for a greater and more prosperous North Carolina, and his unselfish desire to add further and more substantially to the greatness of his State and the happiness and contentment of his people, all are involved in the success or failure of his administration as Governor. From the record it appears that Dr. McDonald has only a political ambition to satisfy.

Clyde Hoey says:

"It would be a great tragedy if North Carolina did not join with the Federal Government in providing security for old people in need. I covet for our State the satisfaction of being instrumental in ministering in this substantial way to our old people and crowning their old age with the richly merited tribute from a grateful people."
"A State which requires its children to go to school and provides them with free tuition and free transportation should complete the program by providing free text books in order that all children might have all their books for every day of the year, thereby giving the poor an equal opportunity with the rich."

"I am in favor of removing the sales tax from meat and bread and other necessities of life, including meals purchased at cafes, and look forward to repealing the tax altogether whenever that can be done without crippling the schools, denying the old people their just deserts, and putting the tax back on land. The merchants of the State should select a Committee of their own to confer with the Governor and Budget Commission in working out a new method of levying and collecting the sales tax, in order to make it less irritating and troublesome."

"I do not believe that the farmers and property owners of the State should be saddled with another $10,000,000 tax load."

"The State Highway Commission should use the surplus it has on hand to put the County secondary roads in first class condition and should properly maintain them throughout the year."

Dr. McDonald speaks daily of "kicking out" certain State employees. He never yet has said whom he proposes to "kick in" in their place.

Finally: Under the present operating system Carteret County last year received from the State for the support of its public school system the sum of $101,376.85. Prior to the time of the adoption of the present policy these actually was talk of the necessity of having to close our public schools in the county. The teachers could not get their money. They were having to accept scrip, notes and other evidences of indebtedness, and were constantly embarrassed on account of their inability to pay for their board and rent. To have provided through the old system of taxation on property for this same $101,376.85 it would have been necessary for the taxpayers of Carteret County to pay an additional levy of $1.06 on the hundred dollar valuation and the County would have had to collect every penny of it. This, of course, would have been a hopelessly impossible undertaking. The governing authorities of Carteret County, through the assistance of the State authorities, have exhausted their every effort to make the tax burden in the County as light as possible. A reference to your tax receipts for the past several years and a contrast with receipts for former years will show the results had. Can we afford to take a chance on having the present system repudiated and done away with and adopt the wild dreams of a candidate whose policy inevitably would lead us back to the old "land tax" system and other evils that so long we have been trying to escape?

In my humble opinion Carteret County has nothing to lose but much to gain in supporting the winner, Mr. Hoey, in this contest. I earnestly urge our people to rally to his support on July 4th.

W. M. WEBB,

County Campaign Manager for Clyde Hoey. I fully subscribe to and endorse the above:

T. C. WADE,

County Representative in the 1935 General Assembly and former County Manager for Sandy Graham.
