

Much Produce Shipped By Rail From Beaufort

Due to dry weather the potato crop this year was the shortest it has been in several years, but nevertheless the 115 solid freight carloads of potatoes were shipped over Norfolk Southern tracks from Beaufort to connecting lines and thence to northern markets. This information was given out yesterday by Seth Gibbs, local agent. During the current season 33 solid refrigerator carloads of tomatoes were shipped from here. Next year unless weather conditions are unfavorable and the proposed crop falls short over 300 carloads of tomatoes will be shipped according to estimates of farmers who will plant tomatoes.

Cruise Aboard The Yacht John A. Nelson

The State Fisheries yacht John A. Nelson which lost its skipper at the death of the late Capt. Leonard W. Nelson, has made only a few cruises this summer with State officials aboard. A few days ago John Baskerville of Raleigh, and Lieut-Governor elect Wm. P. Horton and several others came to the coast and made a short cruise aboard the craft fishing for Spanish Mackerel. The yacht is temporarily under the command of Capt. Guy Gaskill.

A diet rich in vitamin A is said to effect a successful treatment of kidney and bladder stones.

Lightning speeds 28,500 miles a second.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

(Continued from page one) quiting many hours and days of arduous labors and sacrifices, Luther Hamilton has been at the helm of our party, leading it with a high quality of vigor and determination and wisdom in its various campaigns as to bring it always, save one, glorious victory and make of it, also, a more robust and cohesive political organization in our county.

We are not unmindful of the impulse which suggested the idea of retirement on his part. The time consumed by the duties of the office, time which could be much more personally and selfishly devoted to productive work; the sacrifices which must be made in such a position of responsibility, sacrifices of personal comfort and that measure of irresponsibility which all men enjoy, are enough to warrant retirement and complete effacement to anyone. We know, and this is the shame of it, that he has had to bear blame and oftentimes calumny for those disappointments which must come to men and women in the imperfect operations of our political system; that for the errors of commission and omission of the party he has had imputed to him responsibility, thus, as already said, we appreciate the motives which are in his heart. However, we make confession that in our country we find no one to take his place, no man who combines so happily in personality and integrity those qualities of wise and vigorous leadership and attainments for political organization as does Luther Hamilton. We, therefore, and this is a general we, representatives of the sentiments and deep desire of the loyal Democrats from Stella to Portsmouth, make this appeal to him to continue for another season, until another victory is won and for that service and sacrifice we promise him our gratitude and thanks and our continued loyalty.

(Signed)

- James R. Morris,
- Irvin Davis,
- Eugene Moore,
- W. M. Webb.

WATERFRONT

seems to be no immediate rest in the offing for me. The Beaufort News, as long as I am at the helm is going to come out each week with interesting and readable news. This week marks the 89th edition that has rolled off the Babcock under my editorship and management. There may be only a few more—there may be many more.

IT HAD NEVER occurred to me until he told me but it is probably true that a person can do more work in 11 months than he can in 12 months. If not more work, at least better work. So now I am planning sometime between this and another 89 editions to take time off for a breathing spell. Over half of the doctors in Beaufort have urged me to rest more than I have been resting, to get away from it all for a few days or even longer. These doctors are the ones who have been trying to convince me that a fellow can very easily work himself down to a nervous breakdown where he is not worth (if you will pardon the expression) a damn to anyone except the medicos—and not to them unless the fellow in question has an income—which I haven't or a health and accident policy which I do have.

LAST SUNDAY night I went to bed about 9 o'clock. At 11 o'clock or thereabouts I was still twisting and had a sort of sinking feeling and called Doctor Moore. When those sinking feelings come on some fellows, they think they are going to die. Maybe I felt that way and I could hear my heart beating—it seemed at intervals only. All imagination. Doctor Moore came up, felt my pulse, stethoscoped my chest and laughed. "Nothing wrong with your heart," he said. "Maybe you who read this have never had the same feeling, but before I called him I had those sinking feelings. I told him so. The next morning he blood pressured me and discovered that mine was below par. Since then I have been trying to follow his orders and take the pink medicine as directed and also lay in a horizontal position on a bed for a while each day after lunch. Still I have the sinking feelings. Maybe it is the vacation I need. . . . Maybe under the new set-up of The Beaufort News I will get plenty of vacation at some early date—and if I do all I can say is that I have enjoyed being your editor for awhile—and forgive me for talking about my health.

THE FIVE MASTED schooner Edna Hoyt of Boston is in trouble again. She is the last 5-master under American colors. This time she is long overdue at Boston on a cruise from Venezuela and the Coast Guard are searching for her, according to a story circulating at the Department of Commerce in Washington and published elsewhere in this newspaper today.

ABOUT SIX YEARS ago a radiogram from Diamond Lightship was relayed to me at Ocracoke. A 5-master was leaking badly off Diamond Shoals and the coastguard were needed. It was the coastguard who went to the vessel's aid that notified me, a Central Carolina news correspondent. It was the Edna Hoyt and she finally reached port despite the fact she had reported that she was leading at the rate of six inches an hour.

IN 1933 WHILE I was working on a Delaware River bridge a 5-master passed. She looked familiar and so did her name but at the time I could not place her. Two or three days later looking through my scrapbook I found the story I had written about her down at Cape Hatteras when she was leaking. At the time I wondered what would be her fate in the end. According to the Washington news dispatch she has in all probability gone to Davy Jones' locker, where many other fine sailing vessels have gone in other days.

THE SCHOONER "George W. Wells" first six master ever built, wrecked on Ocracoke Island in 1914 during a September gale. The location on the island, several miles northeast of Ocracoke village is today known as "Wells." She wrecked about five miles up the beach from where a British tramp steamer went into the breakers only a half hour before. It was a busy time for the Live Savers, in that vicinity, on that particular day. . . . The clipper ship Flying Cloud returning from the Orient with a cargo of silks, satins and Oriental pottery wrecked on Ocracoke Beach in 1854. . . . Almost at the same location in 1861 and barkentine Black Squall with Cuban sugar and circus horses on her manifest wrecked. . . . Less than 2 miles away the wooden Clyde-liner "Pioneer" wrecked during a July gale in the 80s and enough of her general cargo was cast ashore and salvaged to supply many of the natives not for a few days but for months.

MOST DISASTROUS of wrecks on Ocracoke Island was the foundering of the steampacket "Home" in 1837. She was bound from New York to Charleston (the latter at that time summer playground of the south) and over 100 persons were lost. Many of the bodies were buried in a common grave on Springer's Point. Several of those identified were buried nearby and even to this day cedar slabs mark their graves.
