Seafood Problems Aired At Meeting

Sub-Committee Make Decisions Relative To New Laws

SHRIMP TRAWL RULE ENACTED BY BOARD

The State Board of Conservation and Development completed its midsummer meeting in Morehead City on Tuesday and the fishermen along the coast of North Carolina are still in the dark as to what measures will be taken to either prohibit large scale operations in behalf of the small fishermen or permit new regulations which might mean that purse seiners can take food fishes in their nets and do large scale trawling in coastal waters. One matter, however, was settled. It was the ban on shrimp trawling in waters of the Cape Lookout area between Whale Creek on Shackleford and Cape Lookout Point.

The delegation from Harkers Island numbering almost 200 fishermen headed by Earl Davis had requested that the ban on shrimp trawling be extended to the Virginia line. But the distance of 10-miles on which the ban has been placed seems to be, from evidence presented, to be the principal shrimp trawling territory. Someone who was in favor of trawling made a remark following the ruling that the Harkers Islanders would be the first to appeal to Capt. John Nelson to permit trawling, once shrimp in large numbers 'struck in at the Cape.'

Davis showed that the fishermen and his fellow citizens of Harkers Island are well organized by their ap-

Covering The WATER FRONT

By AYCOCK BROWN

SENATOR JOE Robinson, Simie O'Neal and myself were sitting together in Capt. Bill Gaskill's dance hall on Ocracoke Island one night during the summer of 1932 watching the islanders and visiting vacationists go through a square dance set. I told Senator Robinson if he would dance one set, I would have the material for an Associated Press Dispatch, which I believed would make front page from coast to coast. At that time and for many years during the latter part of his life the Senator from Arkansas was P-1 news, regardless of what he did to make material for a scribe. I remember Senator Robinson's cheerful reply as if it had been only last night. He said: "If I went through one of those dance sets, as much as I would

UNITED STATES SENATOR

ALTHOUGH THERE HAS BEEN no let-up in committee consideration of new farm legislation, labor standards, Federal reorganization and numerous other matters, in preparation for Congressional action once the proposal to reorganize the judiciary is out of the way, the latter measure is now the highlight of widespread interest. As this is being written, opponents of court changes are presenting their case. By the time this is published a vote in the Senate may be near.

Butterfly Escapes Cantaloupe Prison

When Bill Wells cut a cantaloupe in half here this week a butterfly with a wing spread of one inch flew out. Mystery surrounded the event until a tiny hole no larger than a pin head was discovered in the rind. Then it was assumed that a larva or worm had bored its way inside and did not have time to get out before changing into a butterfly. Anyway it was one of those believe it or not stories. The editor saw the butterfly sliced cantaloupe and the hole which had been bored from rind to center on melon. Bill is visiting his relatives, Mr. and Mrs. Fred King on Moore street here.

Eighth Foreign Vessel Arrives

The eighth foreign vessel to arrive at Morehead City Port Terminal since that development was completed last November arrived on Tuesday morning. It is the Greek S. S. Leonidas N. Condylis. At Morehead City she will take on approximately 6,000 tons of scrap steel for shipment to Japan. Due to extreme temperatures loading operations are not being carried on during the head of mid-day. Loading crews start working at 3:30 which will be the schedule until the mercury drops considerably. Skipper of the vessel is Capt. Nicholas Marathas. The Condylis is the seventh vessel to call for scrap here.

Depicting A Coastal Legend

"Longing"—A Painting By Jesse A. Giles

The story of Virginia Dare, first white child of English parentage born in America became international news this year as a result of the 350th Anniversary Celebration now underway on Roanoke Island. The above photograph is of an oil painting by Jesse A. Giles, talented Washington, N. C., artist inspired by Virginia Dare and her Indian lover. He has attempted to show her in the painting as a lonely English maiden dreaming of the return of her people. This dream of their return is indicated by a square rigged ship, worked faintly, into the cloud formation. At the same time Giles the artist, wished to show that she came from a race of doers as well as dreamers and that she influenced Croatan with her strong individuality. In order to avoid the necessity of making a series of paintings to show this, the artist has suggested it in the design of her dress and in that of the Indian. The dress is simple and practical; the fruit of intelligent thought. As to the Indian, instead of the plucked pate and semi-circular apron shown in early drawings, one sees long hair and deer skin pants symbolizing the strong influence she is said to have had over the Croatans—in the poetic legend of The White Doe, verse written years ago by Sillie Southall Cotten around the legend of Virginia Dare handed down from generation to generation.

While the locale of the painting is Roanoke Island, where the Celebration is now being observed—there are many people along our coast of Carteret who have a different version of Governor White's attempt to colonize the new world back in the 16th century. On page three of this edition begins a serial story by Melvin Robinson of Atlantic which gives a different version on the "Riddle of the Lost Colony." This story is published by permission of the author. It first appeared in the Magazine section of The Virginian Pilot.

Interesting Beaufort Houses

The Sam Thomas House

Above is shown a sketch of the Sam Thomas house near the western end of Front Street. The sketch by Miss Georgia Neal is the second in a series which will be published in The Beaufort News. The architecture of this homeplace is similar to several of the older homes in Beaufort and the nearby rural area. The Sam Thomas House is said to be over 150 years old.

East Carolina's Most Courageous Citizens Feted At Banquet Here

Unfavorable Weather Kept Many Firemen Away From Convention; Highspot Was Address By State Fire Marshall Sherwood Brockwell

Many towns were represented by their most courageous citizens, the volunteer fireman, at the quarterly meeting and banquet of the East Carolina Fireman's Association in Beaufort fine community center auditorium building on Tuesday night. Despite the unfavorable weather existing throughout the east Mayor George W. Huntley gave a welcome address to over 150 delegates, and the two hour session was marked by a number of interesting talks.

Representatives from the following towns which make up the association were present: Ayden, Belhaven, Beaufort, Farmville, Greenville, Kinston, LaGrange, Morehead City, New Bern, Clinton, Robersonville, Washington, Williamston, Goldsboro, Raleigh, Pinetops, Faison, Wilson, Rocky Mount, Plymouth, Snow Hill and Bethel. Vernon Guthrie, former chief of the Morehead City fire department and president of East Carolina Fireman's Association presided. High spot of the evening was an address by State Fire Marshall Sherwood Brockwell of Raleigh.

Response to Mayor Huntley's friendly speech of welcome was delivered by Chief Dick Joyner of Farmville. He was high in his praise for Beaufort and its environs, especially the community auditorium building and center which he had been shown over by Philip Ball during the afternoon.

The banquet served by the American Legion Auxillary of Beaufort was pleasing to everybody's appetite. Baked beans, sugar cured ham, string beans, sliced tomatoes and shrimp cocktails featured on the menu. A detail of men from Beaufort's fire department served the food.

First speaker on the evening program was brilliant Presbyterian theologian (Continued on page eight)

Edgewater Club May Become Negro Resort

One Shuck Covered 56 Roasting Ears

One shuck covered 56 miniature ears of corn pulled from a stalk in the garden of Corbet Davis of Davis early this week. The freak was brought to town and left on exhibit at the County Auditor's office. It is the most freakish roasting ear brought to town so far this season. The ear consisting of many ears looked more like a bunch of bananas than something which had been grown in a cornfield. Each of the miniature ears contained many grains and were almost perfectly formed. Maybe Mr. Ripley will pick up the story.

RATTLESNAKE OIL MAN SKIPPED BOND

Sixty One Bottles To Be Sold: Huntley's First Court

Bill Griffin charged with public drunkenness and disorderly conduct failed to show up for trial in Mayor Huntley's court on Monday night. As a result the Town has a black satchel containing 61 bottles of rattlesnake oil which he had put up as bond for appearance and which will probably be offered for sale now since the defendant has skipped. Bill Griffin in court circles Monday night was spoken of as 'the rattlesnake oil man.'

It was Mayor Huntley's first court. He was sworn into office last week succeeding Bayard Taylor. Whether there was more loose liquor around last week-end or whether the habituals were merely trying out the new mayor was not determined, but there were a larger number of defendants up for trial than in several weeks. In most cases judgment was suspended upon payment of the costs, but Mayor Huntley warned each defendant that if they were re-arrested they would automatically matriculate for five days street duty without being brought to court.

Judgment was suspended in the cases of Mary Chadwick and Ethel Pigott, charged with being disorderly and fighting. Floyd Hill, George Turner, George Johnson, Charlie Phillips, Luke Johnson, Walter Joyner, Ike Simmons each were taxed with $3.45 costs for being drunk and disorderly. On a similar charge against Walter Guinn, judgment was suspended. Charles Gillikin drew a suspended judgment for parking too near a fire hydrant.

CABARET NIGHT

Atlantic Beach Casino will be transformed into a Cabaret on Friday night July 16—the first cabaret of the season at the fast growing Carteret resort. Tables have been placed at convenient locations to the dance floor and dining and dancing will be featured. There will be no cover charge for the occasion. Many persons who have planned to attend the cabaret and see the floor show which will be presented as a feature attraction along with the music by Jimmie Livingston and his orchestra have already reserved tables for the occasion.

Samnanger Salt Is Being Ground

The Southern Salt Company of Norfolk has purchased the remainder of the salt at Morehead City Port terminal and it is being ground and prepared for shipment by their local agent Hugh Hill. This salt was the first foreign cargo to reach the new Morehead City Port Terminal. It came to Morehead City aboard the Norwegian S. S. Samnanger last November. Approximately 900 tons remain in the transient sheds there. If the demand for salt remains steady the Norfolk firm will bring another cargo to the transient shed and a regular industry in this commodity will be established at the new port development.

New Owners Plan To Open Resort By August 15

SIMMONS WILL RECEIVE $125,000 FOR PROPERTY

Swanky Edgewater Club on Bogue Sound, four miles west of Morehead City may become the swankiest Negro resort along the Atlantic coast if plans revealed here yesterday by Mark Mohler materialize. The club property will be sold by its owner F. M. Simmons to Mohler—or the interests he represents—for $125,000 under the terms of a sales contract filed with Register of Deeds Irvin W. Davis Wednesday.

Of the total amount $6,250 has been paid down on the property and Mohler will assume control of the property when the balance of the down payment of $18,000 is paid, the News and Observer was informed last night by F. M. Simmons from his home in Berwyn, Md., where he was reached by long distance telephone.

From an authoritative source it was reported that Mohler represents a group of wealthy Negroes who will attempt to develop the property as a resort for members of their race. It was revealed here yesterday that preliminary plans are to expend upwards of $25,000 for immediate improvements to include the construction of bath houses, tourist cabins, and concession stands with the possibility that the formal opening of the resort will be not later than August 15. Plans are to operate not one but several excursion trains each week from cities throughout the east to the resort.

News and Observer editors were skeptical at first about the story but continued on page four

Fishing And ALL OUTDOORS By AYCOCK BROWN

FIRST UNITED STATES Senator to catch a dolphin in the Gulf stream off the North Carolina coast was Senator Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas, whose death in Washington yesterday made front page news through out the world. He came to the North Carolina coast in 1932 along with Congressman Warren and Senator Bailey and for several days they fished off Ocracoke and Hatteras in the blue waters of the Gulf. Well I remember the Arkansas Senator telling me that he had fished all over the world, but he had found none better than off the coast of North Carolina. He came to the Carolina coast frequently for the sportsfishing... sometimes for channel bass... (Continued on page five)
