Herbs Give Zest To Many Winter Dishes

Raleigh Oct 14—Spring is in the kitchen all winter for those fortunate people who have an herb garden in a window box or even in a few flower pots.

Basil, chives, summer savory, sweet majoran, thyme, and parsley are a few of the herbs that can be grown indoors through the winter, said Cornelia C. Morris, extension marketing specialist at State College.

These herbs, she added, will add zest to many a winter dish, parsley, for example, can be used fresh or dried and its flavor combines well with egg, meat, and vegetable dishes.

The clove-flavored leaves and flowers of basil and the young tender leaves of chives lend a delicate flavor to soups, stews and salads. Summer savory, often called European mint, is popular for meat and poultry dressings.

Sweet majoran, a native of Mediterranean countries, is much sought by people who come to America from

Game Protectors Urged To Stay On Toe To Prevent Early Quail Shooting

Game protectors in every county in the state have been instructed to stay on the alert throughout the dove shooting season, which opened September 15, to see that dove hunters do not shoot some quail while hunting for doves, according to Commissioner John D. Chalk of the game and inland fisheries division of the Department of Conservation and Development.

these regions and are found of the pleasing odor and aromatic taste of this herb in soups, meat pies, and dressings.

Herbs grown in a window box do best in a south window where they can get plenty of sunlight. They should be planted in good soil. A good soil consists of one part well rotted cow manure and three parts good garden loam.

The ideal soil has its foundation well rotted sods. Add the rotted manure, some sand, and a very small quantity of bone meal. Mix this soil thoroughly and screen out any lumps that may be in it.

A window box should be at least eight inches deep. A layer of small broken stones over the bottom will facilitate drainage. One or two holes in the bottom will permit surplus water to drain out.

Narrative Report Of County Agent

By MARGARET E. CLARKE Clubs For Women

During the month of September the majority of Home Demonstration Club Women realized that the packing of a school lunch was a chief work, thus 114 women in 12 Communities studied "Quick Breads for School Lunches" a summarization demonstration of a correctly packed lunch being given after each Method demonstration. A collection of approximately 250 copies of The National Geographic Magazine donated by Mrs. W. P. Smith, Beaufort, was distributed among Club members. Members are creating magazine exchange units in their individual communities. Total number of magazines distributed during the month were 340.

The County Council met with 16 present representing 7 Clubs. Officers who are to serve for the ensuing two years were elected and definite plans for the County Fair and Fall Achievement Day were made. Thirty three women entered the Fall and Winter Garden Contest.

are cooperating with the division 100 per cent and are careful to confine their shooting to the birds that are in season, Commissioner Chalk said. But there are some hunters who seem unable to resist the temptation to blast away at quail when they scare up a covey while hunting doves. Accordingly, the game protectors have been instructed to check the bags of dove hunters very carefully.

were issued from this office and 280 bulletins and leaflets were distributed. Annual leave of four days was taken by the Agent. One day was spent in New Bern in Conference with the District Home Agent and State Extension Specialists in planning the 1938 Home Demonstration program for 4-H and Women Club members.
