Growers Of Produce May Organize Cooperative Market

COMMITTEE TO STUDY MUTUAL EXCHANGE PLAN

Would Help Little Farmers Receive Better Prices

Faced with extremely low prices for every variety of produce they have grown this year a group of 'little farmers' gathered in the Courthouse last Friday night and discussed the possibilities of organizing a cooperative marketing association to protect them during coming seasons. County Agent J. O. Anthony presided at the meeting.

Dr. C. W. Lewis and Pritchard Lewis, both active in the efforts of Beaufort Business Association to establish the Auction Market here talked freely of the lack of co-operation that had been given by the farmers, despite the fact that during the tomato harvest of 1937, the prices were held up to about two or three times what farmers are receiving for similar products now. Members of the non-active Carteret Mutual Exchange discussed the feasibility of reviving that organization to include the new organization.

A committee appointed to study the various angles involved in organizing a co-operative marketing association which will meet at an early date with J. O. Anthony, County Agent, and complete plans includes: Dooly Salter, Merrimon; Herman Merrill, Beaufort, RFD.; Roland Salter, Marshallberg; Cy Eubanks, New Bern road; Willie Laughton, Crab Point and Joel Davis, Newport.

DIVORCES

Until today, several absolute divorces, each granted on the grounds of two years separation, were ordered in the June Term of Superior Court which this week will close a two weeks mixed term under the judicial guidance of J. Paul Frizzelle, of Snow Hill, presiding jurist. Those granted divorces follow: Nannie P. Jones from George Jones; Lillian D. Murphy from Elmo Murphy; Iva M. Perkinson from Walter J. Perkinson; George W. Dill Jr., from Carrabelle Dill; William C. Fulcher from Lettie M. Fulcher; and, Polly Guthrie from Clyde Guthrie.

Fishing And All Outdoors

By AYCOCK BROWN

DOLPHIN, Amberjack, Bonita, Curo, Spanish Mackerel, Blues, Weakfish, Sheepshead, Kingfish (Sea Mulletts), Croakers (Hardheads) Sea Bass (Blackfish), Flounders and Channel Bass (Drum) are being caught in numbers by anglers who go after their favorite species in waters of and adjacent to Carteret County this season. The weather has not always been exactly favorable for offshore fishing, but when parties get out after them with the experienced boatmen and guides of Beaufort, Morehead City, Marshallberg, Davis and Atlantic, they always return to port with good catches.

SUMMER CERO started running down in Cape Lookout waters several days ago and during the past week some nice specimen have been landed. A fair sized Cero or medium weight tackle is about the sportingest fish that swims in nearby waters. And so far I have never heard of any Cero being caught with rod and reel north of Cape Lookout. I am not!

Few Criminal Cases On Superior Court Docket In Carteret

Few cases were on the criminal case docket of Carteret's June Term of Superior Court. Excepting the few trials covered in a story appearing in The Beaufort News last week only two or three other criminal matters came before Judge J. Paul Frizzelle. It was stated that eleven of a 12 man jury voted for acquittal in the case of Norwood Gaskill of Sea Level, who was held in jail for the grand jury on charges of rape, which was later changed to assault on female. After deliberating for several hours the jury could not reach a verdict so a mistrial was ordered and Gaskill was released under bond of $300 to appear at the October term.

Louis Guthrie who was given a 9-months sentence from a lower court back in 1937 started serving his term and escaped from jail. A

MARLIN HOOKED

News From Hatteras First Proof They Are In Waters Off N. C.

Two Blue Marlin, mightiest of all big game fish, were hooked by a party of New Jersey anglers along the western edge of the Gulf Stream about 17-miles off Hatteras Inlet late Wednesday and that, regardless of how you feel about it, is the biggest news for anglers to ever break along the North Carolina coast. Tom Eaton, formerly of Winston Salem, the man who pioneered in Gulf Stream fishing off Cape Hatteras, and liked the Outer Banks so well that he returned there to make his home and constructed a power plant which furnished electricity for several of the Hatteras stand communities, operates a commercial fishing enterprise and a boat line to England on the mainland, telephoned the story to his friends, the editor of this newspaper.

In on the hooking, the first official hooking of blue marlin off North Carolina where anglers for years have been hoping to be the first to sight, hook or land one of these big game fish were Hugo Rughefurd, a member of the United States Tuna Team and his brother John Rughefurd of Allamuchy N. J., and Emile Eggiman of Spring Lake, N. J. They were fishing from aboard their twin-Kermath powered cruiser, Mako II, equipped with outriggers. Lloyd Styron, veteran Hatteras guide was with the party. For bait they were using whole Spanish Mackerel on regulation marlin tackle.

The party had first come to Hatteras last November on a sort of prospecting trip, liked the lay of the fishing grounds and then returned several days ago to start their fishing expedition. On six days out they saw no marlin but they continued to fish for them. They are experienced marlin anglers. Hugo Rughefurd has caught or fished for them in Bimini, Cuban, Florida, Tahitian, New Zealand, Philippines and Nova Scotia waters. He knows his marlin and that is why fishing columnists on New York and Miami newspapers were waiting for his story. And here is the story:

The first fish struck and was

Art Colony Head Talks To Rotes

Gregory D. Ivey, head of the summer art colony here which is composed mostly of advanced WCUNC students was guest speaker at the Rotary meeting on Tuesday night. He gave an interesting account of the progress that has been made by the state-owned Woman's College art department since it was established in 1935. He also was high in his praise for Beaufort as a summertime location for an art school.

INMATES WILL BE PLACED IN PRIVATE HOMES

Because they think it will mean a great saving, Carteret County Commissioners at their regular June meeting decided to close the County Home for the Poor just as soon as suitable arrangements can be made to properly care for the inmates. Just how the proposal will go across with the citizenship of the County is not known, although there have been some comments, relative to the proposal. It was pointed out at the meeting of the commissioners on Wednesday June 8, by representatives from the Welfare Department that at the present time there are only seven inmates of the Home and that arrangement can be made through Old Age Assistance to board these inmates in private homes, a system which is said to be used satisfactorily in several of the counties of the State at a great saving to Carteret.

The resolution dealing with the proposal follows: "Whereas, it has been called to the attention of the Board of County Commissioners of Carteret County, that the County Home can be closed and the inmates cared for by Old Age Assistance or other means at a great saving to the County, Now, therefore, be it Resolved, that the County Home, be closed when suitable arrangements can be made to properly care for the inmates of the Home." One of the objectors to the proposal is Capt. George Lewis, superintendent of the County Home for the past several years. He contends that there are in reality 13 persons being taken care of at the County Home. It looks like 13 is going to be unlucky for somebody.

Following the Wednesday meeting on June 8, the commissioners adjourned until the following Monday, at which time they took up a

We feel sure our people want to do more than this for such an urgent need, so we are making another appeal. Funds will be received by Dr. Hyde, Mrs. M. E. Bloodgood or at the Beaufort News Office.

Covering The Waterfront

By AYCOCK BROWN

IT WAS A real pleasure for me to meet Mr. and Mrs. Lindsey Howland of Charlotte who arrived in town a bit thirsty Sunday evening. On Monday morning it was a real pleasure to show them the various and sundry sights of Carteret County. Lindsey is an Associated Pressman from the Charlotte Bureau. Being a sort of legman for the AP it was only natural that he look me up when he came to the coast. Most newspapermen do look me up when they come down here, because during the past 10 years I have had an opportunity to serve them at one time or another when news is breaking on the coast.

ONE THING hard to get across up state is the fact that Carteret County not only is important as a commercial fishing center but also as a produce farming area. I wanted to impress Lindsey so we rode out on the Atlantic Road and saw the tomatoes being harvested and later the three packing houses here from which a hundred or more solid car loads of tomatoes have been shipped during the past two or three weeks. But I figured Mrs. Howland would be interested in seeing some
