

SALTER SERVED HIS SENTENCE

Eighteen Cases On Court Docket Tuesday

Bertie Salter, Broad Creek herman testified in Records Court on Tuesday that last week he came from a fishing trip wet, cold and hungry. His wife was not at home but attending a religious meeting of the Penecostal Holiness Church. He went to the church and asked her to come home and cook supper. She failed to come. He went back a second time to the meeting. As a result he was arrested and placed in jail. He had served four days when his trial came up on Tuesday. Judge Webb after hearing the evidence rendered a very wise verdict. Instead of taxing the defendant with court costs, he sentenced him to four days in jail, a sentence which had already been served.

The foregoing trial was the highspot of the Tuesday session which continued throughout the day. Other cases and their disposal follows: Capias issued for M. H. Pratt, to answer charges driving drunk. Defendant is in hospital so trial will be set at discretion of judge. Prayer for judgment and continued upon payment of the costs and the judgment in a driving drunk charge against Thomas Elliott.

The case against Roland Swain, charged with assault was continued. Louis Davis was found not guilty of operating a place of public nuisance. Charges against Mrs. John Willis for assault with a deadly weapon were continued. Prayer for judgment and continued upon payment of costs was the judgment in the case of Alfonso Ford, charged with driving drunk. Rufus Morris was found not guilty of trespass when he answered technical charges.

Rachel Horton plead nolo contendere on charges of assault with a deadly weapon and judgment was suspended upon payment of the costs. Charged with assault with a deadly weapon, Marion Best and W. T. Tilley were each bonded over to superior court under bonds of $200 each. On a public drunkenness charge against Best, judgment was continued upon payment of the costs.

A capias was ordered issued for Leslie Mann charged with larceny. Four months suspended sentence is handed Anderson Henderson, negro, charged with assault on a male.

Carteret Shares Intangible Taxes

The $434,324 authorized for distribution by the State Board of Assessments to counties and municipalities in the State as their share in the collection from classification tax levy on intangibles during last fiscal year, Carteret will receive $920,330, according to a report appearing in the News and Observer on Wednesday.

The Legislative statute specifies that counties shall use their part of intangibles "for the payment of principal or interest on indebtedness or expenses incurred on account of providing facilities and equipment necessary for the maintenance of the constitutional six year public school term."

To Attend Furniture Show In High Point

Jacob Miller

Jacob Miller, pictured above, leaves next Monday to attend the Southern Furniture Show in High Point. The local furniture dealer never misses the semi-annual show in the Guilford furniture city. While there he will buy the latest in furniture designs for his local firm. Since Mr. Miller came to Beaufort from Wilmington two years ago, he has made a host of friends, enlarged his quarters and conducted a very successful business generally. (Eubanks-News Photo.)

their Atlantic Beach cottage during the last week-end of this month. Various entertainments are being planned for them.

On the night of July 30 there will be a dinner for the distinguished visitors at the beach hotel dining room. Several citizens from the coastal section will be invited to attend, including State Representative D. L. Ward, of New Bern, and State Senator John D. Larkins, Jr., of Trenton.

The total jail population of North Carolina in 84 units was 6,888 on May 31, 1938.

FISHING & OUTDOORS

THE GOGGLE fishing stories went over big, and many people have stated they wanted to try this new kind of sport where an angler with spear in hand dives beneath the surface of the water and meets the fish on its own grounds. A Greensboro Daily News editor said it was a "hogfish" way to fish. He is absolutely wrong. It comes nearer to being real honest to goodness piscatorial sport than anything your columnist has ever witnessed.

WATERFRONT

(Continued from page 1) is all we have had so far this summer, there is nothing more attractive to a visiting tourist, (with possible exception of a bathing beauty) than a group of sailboats going to the windward out on the waters of a nearby sound. A batch of cups are offered the sailboaters who enter the competition, and a tip to prospective racers is to register now in Morehead City with John Lashley at the Puro Terminal Service station on Arendell street.

OVER AT FORT MAON a few days ago Bill Sharpe, the State's advertising expert had a bit of trouble convincing the caretaker that he was there on official business to make photos of the structure. The caretaker is to be commended for following instructions given him by his superiors and trying to get that dime out of each person who enters the Fort, but in Bill's case it was different. The caretaker's superior should have left some sort of instructions about being diplomatic, especially to persons on the same state payrolls. Anyway Bill with his attractive model Miss Rachel Piner was able to finally enter without paying the dime and he got some splendid shots of the interior... shots that are different because they have plenty of life, included.

THOSE KITTENS in the photo with "Miss Beaufort" have Swedish and Persian blood in their veins. The mother cat was Sandham, the father a thoroughbred Persian. Sandham was so named because the skipper of the Swedish steamship bearing that name had given her as a small kitten to Brantley, Brantley is my heir. We kept Sandham until she got "running out" notions in her head and then decided that an upstairs apartment was no place for cats and possibly kittens. We gave her to Mr. and Mrs. Haynes. Sandham is very proud of her kittens and she should be. They have some mighty important blood in their veins. The mother was the daughter of a Baltimore wharf out which became mascot aboard the Sandham and she found a litter of kittens while the Swedish ship was enroute to Morehead City from Rotterdam... somewhere out in the middle of the north Atlantic.

THE WORST scooping I ever had as a newspaperman was the time Lindbergh was forced down on Ocracoke Island at Hatteras Inlet, on his return from South America where he made the aerial survey of the present Pan American air route. The telephone lines were down between Hatteras Inlet station and Ocracoke station, so naturally I missed the story as the plane was downed some 14 miles away. But Victor Meekins, my friends on Roanoke Island who sheriffs for a living and edits a newspaper (and a good one) as a sideline did not miss the story. It was a terrible scooping.

BUT NOW I feel that I am even with Victor. Even though he is no longer an active correspondent for the State newspapers and press in general, he is a sort of director of news gatherings on his island. The news gatherer is Ben Dixon MacNeill who can get a by-line over a story in the News and Observer that no other newsman could ever get—and I wonder why at times. Anyway the biggest news in Dare County this year was the capture of a 439 pound blue marlin off Hatteras. That news was even bigger than the "Lost Colony" pageant. But Man-teo failed to get the story. It appeared in New York newspapers, on the AP and UP wires and throughout this state...but under a Beaufort dateline... And this State's coast has just begun to hear about that Blu Marlin. It is the beginning of a new era for sportsfishing along the coast of Carolina. Mark those words.

DR. PRYTHERCH (Continued from page one) rum) will make it possible for those engaged in oyster culture to combat the parasite and re-establish production on abandoned beds. The method is simple as the crabs or intermediate hosts do not migrate and can easily be removed from the beds by means of scrapes or dredges equipped with fine mesh bags. The beds are cleaned of crabs and other debris before they are planted with seed or adult oysters. The crabs, or intermediate hosts, are non-migratory and by eliminating them from the beds there is no possibility of reproduction of the parasite or its transmission to oysters.

The effect of the parasite on the adult oysters was studied by producing heavy infections in the laboratory and recording the movements of the shells and muscles on smoked drums. It was first discovered by Dr. Prytherch that spores found in dying oysters hatched in the intestines of the crab and released sporozoites which soon develop into large cephaline gregarines. The mature gregarines unite in pairs and after forming a cyst on the tail of the crab undergo reproduction forming 10,000 to 90,000 infective stages that after rupture may enter the oyster with the feeding current. In the oyster host certain blood cells become greatly enlarged after engulfing the parasite and interfere seriously with circulation in the muscle so as to apparently cause its paralysis by cutting off the supply of food and oxygen.

The gold medals awarded annually by the Academy of Science in five Southeastern States, including besides North Carolina, Georgia and Florida, are sponsored by Phipps and Bird, Inc., of Richmond makers of scientific instruments, with the purpose in view of encouraging scientific investigation, especially in anticipation of the annual meetings of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

Following the announcements of state award winners, a Grand Award is offered in the Southeastern States. The Grand Award winner is selected by a committee composed of scientists of the A. A. S.

Previous Gold Medal state awards have been given to Dr. F. G. Hall, of Duke University and Dr. John N. Couch of the University of North Carolina.

Dr. Prytherch, the 1938 winner, is a native of Binghamton, N. Y. He attended Syracuse University and later the University of Pennsylvania, where he received his Doctor's Degree for research in Marine Zoology. He has been director of the Beaufort Fisheries Biological Station since July, 1931.

LESLIE DAVIS

He is survived by his widow Mrs. Eldene Davis and ten chilren. They are: Evelyn, Kathryn, Marie, Janet, and Iris, and five sons, Clifton, Billy, Harry, Jordan and Robert. Two brothers, Alan Davis of Washington, D. C. and Stacy Davis (who was associated with him in the seafood business) but a resident of Harkers Island also survive. Mrs. Walter Yeomans of Harkers Island, is a surviving sister. Two aunts, Mrs. Tom Cortrette, Wilmington and Mrs. Denard Davis, Davis also survive.

The pall-bearers follow: Active Gehrman Hollanc, W. V. B. Potter, William Way, Will Arrington, Jack Parkin and Gordon C. Willis. Honorary: Graydon Paul, Ed Potter, Jack Neal, John White, Charles Manson, A. T. Gardner, E. L. Davis, U. E. Swann, Alan Mason, Newman Lewis, Sam Scott, Thomas Parkin, C. R. Wheatley, J. W. Mason, Dr. F. E. Hyde, Earl Mason, N. W. Taylor, I. E. Ramsey, W. H. Taylor and M. L. Davis.

A TRIBUTE.

To the good family of Leslie Davis and the many friends of Carteret County I wish to say a few words in brief.

"A Mother Shepard Has Fallen." On my arrival home this morning the news was like a thunder bolt from the sky, and I wept, which I shouldn't have done, because his work on earth is done and he is now with the redeemed of God, and my way of seeing it, no better man ever lived. I have been associated with Mr. Davis in a business way, for more than 20 years and I have never known him to do one thing wrong to anybody and East, West North and South, as far as he was known, he has that reputation. Mr. Davis was a living example and I wish more of us could exemplify that life, and now to the family; may God bless you and keep you and keep you mindful of him who has gone on before and some day when life is over may you be a united family in heaven where you can sing praises to God for ever more.
