BIGGER AND BETTER CARTERET FAIR OPENS HERE MONDAY

MANY ENROLLED IN PRE-SCHOOL PROJECT HERE

Recreation Offered For Beaufort's Children

Perhaps the most far-reaching single project being carried on by the WPA Recreation is that of the enrollment of the Nursery and Pre-School children in a regular daily program at the American Legion Hut during the past week, according to Rev. L. D. Hayman, pastor of the Methodist Church here and interested observer and leader of much youth work now under way in Beaufort. It is the first such unit for Beaufort to be sponsored by the WPA.

To date 30 children have been enrolled, coming from the homes of Beaufort and nearby neighborhoods. Other children will be added from time to time and a canvass is now underway to acquaint the parents of the project.

"While the term 'recreation' generally is construed to imply matters which have to do with the play-life of a community, this is not true altogether with the WPA recreation", said Rev. Mr. Hayman. Not only is the nursery work, literally, more than play, but the matter of interesting adult life in both the play and educational development is now under consideration.

The nursery work is daily except Saturday and Sunday, being eligible to children from the ages of four to six. They gather at 9:30 each morning and remain for two full hours at The American Legion Hut.

WILDFOWL gunning this year should be better than in the past seven years. It was 1931 that the first "blank" season was registered for gunning off the North Carolina coast. Biological Survey officials at first did not seem inclined to believe the reason there was a scarcity of wildfowl, was because of the depletion of eel grass from the bottom of our coastal sounds.

REVIEWING some clippings at mine published in various newspapers back in 1930-31, the argument which arose about geese, brant, and ducks dying off North Carolina's coast, seemed primarily between a correspondent and biological survey officials. They would not admit at first that this condition which was later to re-

WHERE DID THE EXPRESSION "KICK THE BUCKET" COME FROM?

THIS expression originated when a man named Bolsover literally kicked a bucket out from under him in order to commit suicide. He climbed onto a bucket, slipped his head into a noose on one end of a length of rope, tied the other end to a rafter above his head and kicked the bucket away thus strangling himself to death. Someone took up the expression and popularized it into present-day slang.

Congressmen Hope To Solve Seafood Industry Problems

Evidence Is Presented By Those Engaged In Industry

Congressional inquiry into the decline of commercial fishing off the coast of North Carolina generally brought on some convincing evidence and suggestions at a meeting in Morehead City on Monday, where representatives of the industry and Fisheries officials appeared and testified. Quite a few versions of what is wrong with this once great industry along the coast was voiced, and as a result of the Morehead City meeting and the meeting held in Belhaven on Tuesday it is hoped that Federal aid of some sort will be established.

Heading the Congressional Committee at the hearing was Rep. S. O. Bland of Newport News, Va., chairman of the Committee of Fisheries and Merchant Marine. Representative Lindsey Warren, a member of this committee and

MUCH INTEREST IN REVIVAL AT METHODIST CH.

Louisburg College President Gives Good Sermons

The Evangelistic services which began in Ann Street Methodist Church last Sunday evening, continue with marked interest and attendance. Rev. Ed. Earnhardt, President of Louisburg College, is the guest preacher for these services. He was before the people of the Methodist Church four times Sunday; three times at Ann Street and in the afternoon at North River Chapel where he preached a convincing sermon on the Bible as his subject. Preaching to packed houses on Sunday and with goodly crowds morning

Almost One Million Pounds Caught Recently

While it is impossible to get an exact figure due to the various methods in which they are handled, it is a safe bet to say that nearly 1,000,000 pounds of fish have been taken in nets off the Central Carolina coast during the past 10 days. And in the face of all of this there has been no market glut, the prices have held up excellently, and the demand has been good.

Largest catches have been made by the mullet haulers on the beach On the beach of Bogue Island and Shackleford and also along Core Banks, Ocracoke and Hatteras Islands, mullets have been taken in the greatest numbers in years. Last week-end the large roe-mullets struck in and these big silver morsels, lined with golden eggs, have added more silver to the pocket.

New Coast Guard Station Assured For Ocracoke Is.

On a visit to Ocracoke Island a few days ago the editor of The Beaufort News learned that the residents there were worried about plans for the building of a new Coast Guard station to replace the antiquated structure now serving the crew. Building of the Station would mean the expenditure of many thousands of dollars. It would give employment to many of the islanders.

It seems that news had reached the island that plans for the construction of the new building were postponed indefinitely. Upon his return to Beaufort, Editor Brown personally contacted Representative Lindsey Warren, to determine the exact status of things. This was on Monday when the First District representative was in Beaufort on a visit. Upon his return to Washington he wrote the editor of this newspaper as follows:

"On September 28 I received a letter from Admiral Waesche stating that contracts had been let for certain necessary dredging and bulkheading at Ocracoke, preparatory to the erection of a new combination station building. It is my impression that the dredging has been completed. An allocation of about $110,000 has been set aside for the work at Ocracoke."

The foregoing is proof that the work will be carried out as planned and Ocracoke will get a much needed new combination station building.

Woolard Newsstand Open For Business

Woolard Newsstand, the little lemon colored structure located at the corner of Craven and Front Streets, adjacent to Mathis Cafe is now opened for business. In this newsstand he will sell The Beaufort News, Ledger Dispatch, Baltimore Sun, Baltimore Sunday American, Atlanta Journal Philadelphia Inquirer and other papers. Later George Woolard the owner expects to carry magazines. At this newsstand he will also take subscriptions for The Beaufort News, Carteret's oldest established newspaper. Anytime customers do not find Woolard in his stand, they are invited to take their choice of papers and leave the money—a sort of self-service honor system he has established.

Free Acts, Prizes And Many Fine Exhibits

Carteret Fair, sponsored by Carteret Post 99 of The American Legion each year since it was established will be bigger and better than ever this year, according to T. E. Kelly, treasurer and general manager of the event which opens at the Graded School Athletic Field on Monday. One of the reasons it will be bigger and better this year is because the Art Lewis Shows, one of the largest midway attractions in America, with its 15 feature rides and 13 shows will be presented as the main attraction.

Another reason it will be 'bigger and better' is because in Exhibit Hall (the school Gymnasium) there will be an increased number of agricultural, home and school exhibits. Arrangements have been made to take care of the largest variety of exhibits of any former Carteret Fair, said Manager Kelly. In addition to exhibits merchants and firms of Morehead City and Beaufort have rented booths. Exhibit Hall will be under the management of Mrs. Phil Thomas and Mrs. S. E. Hayne.

WE SAILED from Morehead City late Monday night for Whistle Buoy at the edge of the Gulf Stream off Cape Lookout. Our idea was to catch fish, first some dolphin, around the Whistle Buoy, and then troll up the Gulf to Hatteras Inlet and base there for a couple of days while exploring waters of the Diamond Shoals area, hunting marlin. But our ideas did not go across.

FIRST OF ALL we got a late start from Morehead City. We did not even stop at Cape Lookout, which is the center of all fishing waters on the coast of Carteret.
