Fishing And All Outdoors

By AYCOCK BROWN

GUEST COLUMNIST this week is Walt Seifert, feature writer for Central Press, with headquarters in Cleveland. Walt accompanied your columnist and a group of out of state writers on a cruise in the Gulf Stream off Cape Lookout and Cape Hatteras a few days ago. Being published in papers from coast to coast this week is his interview with J. Hammond Brown, dean of all fishing columnists in the East, an interview which took place while we were aboard the patrol boat "Hatteras" ploughing through the blue waters of the Gulf Stream in the "Graveyard of the Atlantic." His interview which appears under the caption "Fish Tales" follows:

By Walt Seifert
Cape Hatteras, Oct. 10.
SANDWICHED between tussels with Atlantic monsters off this celebrated "graveyard" of lost ships, we interviewed J. Hammond Brown of the Baltimore American, dean of salt water fishing editors, on the how-when-where of Atlantic coast fishing. Let's let "Ham" tell it himself:

"THE AVERAGE fresh water angler dreams of the day when he will drop a line in Atlantic waters. Limited in funds, he wants to know whether he can be assured of a good catch at moderate expense. The answer is that he can, provided he follows the following chart of seasons and the places where fish run.

"ATLANTIC FISHING along the eastern American coast opens the second week in April off Hatteras shoals, Oregon inlet and Cape Lookout with channel bass (drum) and bluefish. Rockfish and striped bass start in June, and by the end of the month the famed Chesapeake bay strippers are hitting well.

As Result Carteret Observers Make Front Page

When the Anti-aircraft and Air Corps Exercises started on Monday morning the first "enemy planes" reported approaching the coast were sighted by Capt. Fred Gillikin's observer at Cape Lookout Coast Guard Station. They were sighted at three minutes to four o'clock, official starting time for the observers to be on the lookout for planes.

The planes, huge bombers, did not pass over Beaufort, however, but stayed over the sea until they were west of Atlantic Beach. A minute or two after 4 o'clock the huge flying fortresses traveling at a rate of 250 miles an hour were sighted and reported by the observer at Newport. From then on civilians all along the route from the coast to Fort Bragg sent in FLASH messages that "enemy ships" were coming.

Up at Fort Bragg General Gardner, commanding the Coast Artillery Anti-Aircraft unit observed the approach of the planes on a huge board map. As each observation station would report, a light appeared on the map at that point. On the first day the defense unit would probably have been the winner of the exercises. But on Tuesday the huge bombers from Langley Field succeeded in reaching Fort Bragg and practically captured the post.

Civilian observers throughout Eastern Carolina are doing a good job. In Carteret County, FLASH MESSAGES have been sent in by observers at Cape Lookout, Newport, Marshallberg and Harlowe and other places, according to County Key-man Wm. H. Bailey. The exercises will continue thru October 15. In many Eastern Carolina towns tonight, orders will (Continued on page 8)

Senator Reynolds Could Not Attend Our Carteret Fair

On Decoration Day when he made the principal speech at the American Legion exercises here, Senator Bob Reynolds told his friends that he would be back in October when the Carteret Fair was presented. Senator Reynolds attended the Fair a couple of years ago and practically stole the show from Wilno, the human cannon ball, Suzie, the educated chimpanzee and other attractions.

But the Junior Senator of North Carolina could not keep his promise and be here this year. He is in the Mayo Clinic at Rochester, Minnesota, receiving treatment for an ear ailment. But he did not forget the Legionnaires. In a telegram received on Monday by T. E. Kelly, manager of the fair, the Senator said:

"Appreciate greatly your invitation but regret exceedingly that circumstances will not permit my accepting of your hospitality this week. Best wishes for a most successful Legion Week and regards to you and the boys."—Robert R. Reynolds, U. S. S.

John Hill Given Fireman's Job At Federal Building

Quite a number of persons sought this job. It was necessary that applicants take Civil Service examination. Only three applicants passed the examination, according to Postmaster W. H. Taylor. They were: John Hill, Robert Gray and Bert Clark. Final selection was up to the postmaster. He selected Hill, who is now official fireman of the new federal building.

For 42 Years He Has Owned Knife

In 1896 Chairman W. P. Smith, at that time employed in the D. S. Sanders Hardware Company here bought a pocket knife. The local hardware firm had bought it from Finley Roberts & Company, of Baltimore and they had imported it from the makers, Joseph Rogers and Sons, Sheffield, England. The unusual part of the story is that Mr. Smith has carried the knife for the past 37 years, practically every day. Once it had genuine buckhorn handles with a blade in each end. Today the handles are almost worn away, and so are the blades, but it is still a good knife and Mr. Smith prizes it very highly.

Judge Frizzelle Of Snow Hill Will Preside

A mixed term of Superior Court for Carteret County is scheduled to begin in Beaufort next Monday morning. Judge J. Paul Frizzelle, of Snow Hill will be presiding jurist.

While the majority of cases on the criminal docket are of a more or less minor nature, there might be a murder trial or two before the week's term is completed. Whether a murder case or two will be featured during the week will depend upon action of the grand jury.

At least one person, J. W. Watson, of Stella, is under bond on a charge of homicide, as a result of the killing of his son. His case may be reviewed by the grand jury it was stated by the Clerk of Court and if a true bill is found, he must face trial.

If the murder case is heard, it is likely that few of the civil actions on the docket will be reached during the one week term.

SHOW PEOPLE ATTEND SHOW

Midnight Jamboree Proceeds Go In Benefit Fund

When show people attend one of their own midway attractions in large numbers—that is news. But it is not news to the Art Lewis Shows where once each week after all patrons have left the grounds they present a Jamboree Benefit. Last night, or rather this morning, at 1 o'clock, was Jamboree time on the Art Lewis midway here. Nearly 200 show people attended. Only two outsiders were in the audience. They were T. E. Kelly, treasurer and manager of the Carteret Fair and Aycock Brown, editor of The Beaufort News. They were the guests of show executives Braden, Morency and Rogers.

BEAUFORT HIGH LICKS BURGAW IN FIRST GAME

Play New Bern In New Bern On Friday

Beaufort Highs came through with flying colors at their opening game of the gridiron season here last Friday when they defeated Burgaw High with a score of 7 to 6. From all aspects it looked as if Beaufort would go down the field with more flying and winning colors during the current season.

Team material this year is heavier than it was in 1927, when the locals did not make any record to brag about. The youngsters in the lineup are taking considerably more interest in football and are going through some fine workouts and scrimmages each afternoon.

Tomorrow the team goes to New Bern to meet the strong eleven of the high school there. Many local fans believe the Beaufort boys will bring home the bacon in that pig-skin event.

Principal Miller announces today that three other games have been definitely scheduled for the season as follows: Williamston High in Beaufort, October 21; Plymouth at Plymouth on November 4 and Morehead City at Morehead City on November 23, October 28, November 11 and November 18 are open dates for the local team.

Frank Murphy Is Paddling Canoe To Miami, Florida

Frank Murphy, former tool factory employe in New York City, wanted a vacation and a change of scenery. His hobby was paddling a canoe. So on September 1, he left New York City on a southern cruise through the Inland Waterway.

Near Delaware Breakwater, in Delaware Bay, a few days after leaving New York, misfortune struck the paddler when his canoe overturned. He swam to safety but the canoe drifted away. Two days later a fisherman found the canoe and brought it into the same port where Murphy was stopping. Repairing the damage that had occurred, Murphy started South again. (Continued on page 8)

Covering The Waterfront

By AYCOCK BROWN

I WAS TEN years late meeting F. Percy Morency, secretary and treasurer of the Art Lewis Shows. As a result of the delayed meeting the entire course of my life was changed. Some of you folks who read this column will recall that in 1928, (after I had been fired from the paper I am now editing) I became publicity director of Atlantic Beach which opened that year. George Huntley was manager and Jack Lyles was manager of amusements.

JACK WAS a pretty wise guy. He had foresight enough to sign a year's contract. I did not. During late August Jack said he could fix me up with Johnny J. Jones Greater Shows which would be going to Cuba that winter, leaving Jacksonville during the late autumn. In the meantime there was a month or two of political writing in my career. I became an Al Smith propagandist. I managed somebody or other to save about $100 which I lost on the man I was boosting for president. That $100 would have taken me to Jacksonville and Cuba and no telling where. (Continued on page 8)

What's the Answer?

WHY DO YOU GET A LUMP INSTEAD OF A DENT WHEN YOUR HEAD IS HIT?

YOU do, but only for a second or two. As soon as you knock your head against something the brain rushes an extra supply of blood to that spot, filling and distending the blood vessels. At the point of injury, portions of blood cells plus other body fluids leak through the walls of the blood vessels, causing a congestion which raises the skin into a bump.
