THE REAL TEST

In doing what you do to-day Think not on what the world will say;

The world is much too busy In dwelling on its own affairs To bother with your little cares— The cares that make you dizzy.

Pursue your daily round of life, Whate'er it be, of joy or strife, Of pleasure or of sorrow; All outer verdicts clean forgot, Concern yourself alone with what You'll think yourself—to-morrow!

Salter Pathers To Build New Church

Although the only church in Salter Path community was completely destroyed by fire a few days ago, the residents there will not be long without a house of worship, it was stated here on the weekend by a resident of the fishing village. Plans were to start rebuilding the church this week.

The people of the community who obtain a livelihood solely from the water of the nearby sound and ocean will undertake to rebuild the structure. Insofar as The Beaufort News has learned the people have not sought outside help to rebuild the church. That is typical of the people of the community who have for the most part lived among themselves for generations, asking no outside help. The old Methodist church, constructed about 1900 at a cost of $2,000 was destroyed by fire a few days ago, catching from flames in a patch of grass which spread. Most of the men in the community were on the beach fishing at the time.

JAY-CEE NEWS

—BY— Walter Morris

Board of Directors of Junior Chamber of Commerce met last Monday night and give a vote of thanks to the citizens of Beaufort for their unusually large attendance at the Beaufort-New Bern game. If we can make that great showing at every game the Jay-Cee's are sure that athletics at Beaufort High will greatly improve.

The office of the Junior Chamber of Commerce has moved from its temporary office and is now permanently established at the Library. In addition to the listing of rooms and apartments the Jay-Cees are requesting all white or colored people who are interested in obtaining work in homes please apply at the Library. This new undertaking is to be called Domestic Help Bureau. Anytime the citizens of Beaufort would like to take care of their children the desired person may be secured thru this Bureau.

Persons wishing to list rooms may contact the Jay-Cee listing bureau by calling Miss Joslyn Stevens at 521-1 which is the new telephone number of Carteret County Library.

Many Institutions Sponsor Boy Scout Troops In America

In a recent survey of sponsoring institutions in the East Carolina Council, it was discovered that churches sponsored more Packs, Troops and Senior groups than any one other institution. Of the 130 units of the East Carolina Council, 52 are sponsored by churches, or 40 percent. The following churches are sponsoring units: Presbyterian, Methodist, Christian, Church of Christ, Episcopal, Catholic, Baptist and Universalist.

Civic Clubs were next in point of service to boyhood through this great movement, with the Rotary Club leading the way. Civic Clubs sponsor a total of 31 units. These clubs include: Rotary, Kiwanis, American Legion, Civitan, Lions, Womens Clubs, Ruritan. Sixteen Parent-Teacher Associations sponsor Troops; thirteen schools, both elementary and high schools, sponsor Troops. Other institutions doing their bit for youth at present are: Salvation Army, Masonic Lodges, Fire Departments, Manufacturing Mills, Orphanages, Training Schools, groups of citizens, and one town.

Even with the above fine record of obtaining institutional support, the Council realizes that there are hundreds of churches and civic clubs and others who could sponsor Troops or Packs if given an opportunity. The Council is placing two additional men on the Executive Staff this Fall so that every church and institution in the area comprising East Carolina Council will have an opportunity in the development of youth thru the recognized youth program of the United States. Only the Boy Scout Movement is chartered by Congress to carry on the training for citizenship and development of character through a well-rounded program of activities.

Coast Guard To Use David Lawrence Boat

ELIZABETH CITY, Oct. 1.—A 50-foot yacht, owned by David Lawrence, prominent Washington newspaperman, has arrived in Elizabeth City to be overhauled at the local Coast Guard depot. The yacht will see service with Uncle Sam's inland fleet of patrol boats.

Dressed in the drab cloak of war paint, Lawrence's boat is one of four here for minor repairs:

The CG-4347, a picket boat, and the Coast Guard cutter 440 are on the ways now. The CGR-589 and the CGR-584 will be overhauled later, Chief Oatsman (L) Walter G. Etheridge said.

Lawrence's yacht is among the hundreds of yachts which have been drafted by the Coast Guard since hostilities abroad began.

Sinclair Repairs Local Oil Wharf

A number of new piles have been driven at the Sinclair oil dock here during the past week. This dock is located at the foot of Craven street on the harbor. The additional pilings will make the pier more substantial for the large number of menhaden boats that tie up there during the winter months. The menhaden fishing season is expected to be underway in full sway at an early date.

Ocracoke C. G. Only Tarheel On Cruise To Azores Islands

Lum Gaskill of Ocracoke Island was the only North Carolinian to volunteer for a cruise to the Azores Islands recently to bring back refugees from the war-torn countries of Europe. He was stationed at the Marine Base in Norfolk on July 6, when there was a call for Coast Guard volunteers to make the Azores cruise aboard the Agorab, former Moore and McCormick cruiser which has been taken over for government use. Six Coastguardsmen were needed to operate the small landing boats.

After no one had volunteered after two days, except Gaskill, the remainder of the men at the station drew straws to see who would be among five more men needed. The cruise started July 6 and terminated on August 16. Gaskill was then transferred to Little Creek, Va., C. G. Station. He said that their trip to the Azores was more or less uneventful, except that the vessel he was aboard brought 522 refugees back to America.

Monthly Payments Of S. S. Benefits Now Due On First

Beginning with the September check, monthly payments of old-age and survivors insurance benefits will reach beneficiaries one day later than before, according to an announcement made today by George Jeffrey, manager of the Social Security Board office in Wilmington. "We make this announcement," Mr. Jeffrey explained, "so that people who have been receiving benefits will not be worried because the September check did not come on the day it would otherwise be expected."

State College High School Day On October 25th

RALEIGH, Oct. 1.—State College's third annual "High School Day" will be held Oct. 25, date of the night football game with Newberry College, William H. Blue of Carthage, president of the senior class, announced today.

High school seniors throughout the State soon will receive invitations to the event, which the college seniors are sponsoring. Any school bands that can come will be welcomed also, Blue said.

Visiting pupils will register at the College Y. M. C. A. and receive complimentary tickets to the State-Newberry game in Riddick Stadium. Seniors in the college will take their guests on tours of the campus during the afternoon, with the hundreds of laboratories, shops and classrooms being open for inspection.

Special invitations will be mailed to high school senior classes this week, Blue said. Meanwhile, teachers wishing to arrange for groups to visit the campus were invited to write him at State College Station, Box 5251.

The fast-growing State College campus provides many interesting sights for visitors, particularly youths interested in technological training. Every effort will be made to show all of the visitors any features in which they might be interested.

QMC Badge of Honor

A badge of honor and one designed to symbolize the Quartermaster Corps, a wheel bearing 13 stars surmounted by a flying eagle with a sword and key crossed and superimposed over the wheel, is singularly indicative of the tremendous scope of activity of the corps.

When you see the wheel-and-eagle insignia on an officer's collar you see a story in symbols—a story of highly diversified work done by the Quartermaster Corps.

The 13 stars represent the 13 original colonies and the eagle brings to mind the entire country. Since George Washington's army, the Quartermaster Corps has been an integral part of the nations armed forces.

The wheel stands for transportation, interpreted as the wheel of a wagon, a train wheel or a wheel of the motors used in the Army, or it may signify the steering wheel of a steam vessel. For the transportation problems in the entire Army are the problems of the Quartermaster.

The sword is symbolic of military supplies. The supplies handled by the Quartermaster include food, clothes and materials for maintenance. The key depicts the care with which the Quartermaster Corps guards these supplies and suggests the warehousing of goods.
