Tax Dodgers To Be Dealt With

October Term of Superior Court convened Monday, the 19th, with Judge W. C. Harris, of Raleigh, presiding. Only about fifty people, in addition to jurors, were present for the opening. In his charge to the Grand Jury, Judge Harris reminded the members of their duty as a group having "more influence and power than any body that can be composed under law in the County."

"Because I find some do not know what they have to do, I made up my mind some time ago to impress members with what it means to be a member of a Grand Jury and what is expected of members." He spoke specifically of their responsibility in looking into the jail, County Home, school buses, and law enforcement helps of the Sheriff, making a personal appeal in each case. Would you be satisfied with the jail if you were innocent and held there awaiting trial because you were poor and could not give bond? Would you be satisfied with the County Home if you were old and friendless and it was your home? Is each school bus one that you would like to have your child ride on and each driver one you would like to see your child ride with? Is the Sheriff equipped as well as you would like to have him equipped if your house were broken into? He also cautioned them to look carefully into the offices in the Court House. To whom is the sinking fund loaned? What security, etc.

Regarding the much talked about list of tax dodgers, Judge Harris said, "The law is bigger than you or I. Persons may defy it but only for a time."

Judge Harris then went into details regarding procedure, reports, etc., reminding them of their duty in each case and finished by enjoining them to have courage to say so if things are not as they should be in any department.

GET FORMS NOW FOR ROOM REGISTRATION

Deadline For Filing Will Be November 15

Everyone renting property in Carteret County will be required to register each unit with complete information about each by November 15.

Registration forms may now be secured either at the Bank, the City Clerk's Office or the County Clerk's Office. These should be secured and filled out at once. After filling out the form, the landlord must remove the carbon paper, insert the form into an envelope unfolded, if he wishes, and mail to the Area Rent Office, New Bern, or turn in to the offices from which the blanks were secured. Do not mail the forms to Washington, D. C.

Examiner P. G. Lewis asked us to emphasize that those who rent rooms and have more than two tenants should use the blank for Boarding and Rooming House, those with two tenants or less, the blank for Apartments and Houses.

This is the registration of rooms, described in our issue of October 8, carried on under Judge R. A. Nunn, of New Bern, Area Rent Director, as the first step in stabilizing rents on property.

Fuel Oil Dealers Register In Oct.

Miss Alma Davis, secretary to the Rationing Board, advises that Fuel Oil Dealer Registration has been postponed until Oct. 27, and 28 because of lack of forms. The Government printing office is having a hard time keeping up with the demands of the multiplicity of Government boards and agencies. Consumer registration dates for fuel oil are not yet announced but will follow dealer registration.

Dr. Fulcher Injured In Auto Accident

Tuesday evening around midnight Dr. Luther Fulcher met with a serious automobile accident as he was driving east on the Morehead-Beaufort Causeway. He was taken to the Morehead City Hospital by ambulance where it was found that he was suffering from lacerations and a fractured pelvis. Gordon Mason, who was in the car with him, was unhurt.

Dr. Fulcher lost control of his car, it turned completely around, ran into a light pole on the opposite side of the road, and cut it completely off. The car appears to be but a twisted heap of junk.

Dr. Fulcher's Office will be open as usual for patients receiving insulin and other treatments.

Current Magazine Carries Story Of Civil Air Patrol

Collier's Magazine for October 24 carries a story about the C. A. P.'s that is of interest. J.D.B. Under Wing Talk says:

The "Convoy Cap" may not have the speed, fire power and viciousness of the Dieppe umbrella of fighters but the CAP, which is Civil Air Patrol, has distinguished itself as the protecting eyes of the coastwise and Gulf coast shipping. And now with the coastal patrol operating daily and well organized in the war against submarines off the U. S. coasts, the CAP is entering a new phase for the wings, groups and squadrons of civil airmen for inland operations.

Any naval officer will say today that the CAP has accomplished just what it started out to do. It has relieved many of the regular service planes of both the Army and the Navy for other duties. Civilian members of the patrol have taken their small planes, which at one time might have been referred to as putt-putts, and turned them into a vital protective weapon. Their only fire power is the .45-caliber service revolver of the pilot. But the ash-can depth charge that is attached to the belly of the small plane, in addition to the searching eyes of the two-man crew, is enough to keep the enemy subs down under or away from the coastal combat zones.

The men flying these coastal patrol planes, day in and day out, up and down the coast many miles out to sea, feel they are accomplishing a real mission. Most of them are of the overage type for regular military service. But on their runs, they play tag or hide-and-seek with the preciously laden cargo ships in the convoy. They chat back and forth over the radio with the ships. As one group finishes its mission of 100 miles or more, another group of CAP planes takes over.
