It has always been our endeavor and always will be our endeavor to so conduct our store in every part of it, that each and every customer who comes here to trade will experience nothing but the utmost satisfaction. Satisfaction in the way our services is conducted. Satisfaction in the quality and style of goods. If there is one thing above another that we exert ourselves over it is to secure from the manufacturers only such goods as we know will give our customers absolute satisfaction. It is on such lines, as these—on the motto of absolute satisfaction in every deal—that we solicit business.

Mr. Newlin appreciates visitors so that they can see what he does, and what he can do. He requests every business man of our town to drop in and see what he has. It will pay you to do so.

The Social Club.

The fact that Burlington is now assured of a social club for the young men of our town, should make every citizen glad. Because the married and young men of our town who have homes where they can spend their happiest and purest hours know but little, if anything of the task of spending the few leisure hours that come to those who are not so fortunately situated. Besides the young and married men of our town should have a common meeting ground for social intercourse. It is not convenient every time and especially not at all times for the man who has a home to throw it open to friends let alone strangers. This club means that our town will have a place where banquets can be held. It means the taking of many of our young men off the corners of the streets at night. It means that the men of our town will spend those nights there, rather than in Greensboro or some other city.
