

AUCTION! AUCTION!!

On Thursday November, 4th 1909, at 10 O'clock A. M., We Will Sell at

AUCTION IN THE TOWN OF BURLINGTON

70 SELECT RESIDENCE LOTS 70

"1 Six Room House in a beautiful grove." this property is about ten minutes walk from post office and adjoins the property of D. H. White and J. A. Isley and Bros. Burlington needs no word of commendation from us, for her strong banks, well established manufacturing interests, tobacco markets, mercantile establishments etc, etc, speak for themselves. Real Estate is the basis of all wealth and unimproved town lots as an investment stands at the head of the column. Considering the close proximity of this property to the business section of Burlington, it should appeal to both the home seeker and speculator. Come out to the Sale and share with others the profit to be derived by buying these Lots at your own price for every lot offered will be sold to the highest bidder regardless of price. The Central Loan & Trust Co., with a capital stock of Fifty Thousand Dollars will insert in every deed a guarantee to refund to every dissatisfied customer at the expiration of 3 years the full amount he paid for his lot with 6 per cent interest on same. This guarantee means that you are sure to get interest on your investment, it means still more, for if we did not feel sure that this property would double in value we would not make such liberal offer, such as has never before been made by any one selling property in this section. This is not a game of chance but a dead certainty.

$50 WORTH OF SILVER WARE WILL BE GIVEN AWAY $50

You do not have to buy a lot to have a chance at the Silver Ware. Ladies especially invited. Terms, 1-3 cash, balance in 6 and 12 months with 6 per cent interest. Remember that Thursday November 4th is the day, and 10 o'clock is the time and that Burlington is the best town in the county. Music by the band.

News Over the State

William Morgan, who served a term in the federal prison for counterfeiting, died at the county home in Forsyth county last week after a long illness.

A charter was issued last week for the Farmers' Union Wholesale and Retail company, Wadesboro, for dealing in farmers' supplies generally. The capital is $25,000 and a long list of incorporators.

Fayette Hodge, colored, was fatally shot last week in East Spencer by Brinkin McKinzie, also colored, who made his escape. It was the old story of a crap game in the woods and a shotgun did the work when the game went wrong, and the entire load took effect in the abdomen of Hodge, who is expected to die.

Peter Cates, the little negro boy whom Judge Sykes allowed to take a whipping two weeks ago and go to Sunday school in lieu to the roads has failed in his catechism and was sentenced to the roads a year each in four cases of larceny.

Mr. Lee Sands, of Pinnacle, R. F. D. No. 2 Stokes county, and who resided near Volunteer, committed suicide October 16th by shooting himself. The deceased had been in declining health for some two years, which evidently preyed upon his mind and prompted the rash act.

Near Round Peak, Surry county recently, Mr. Andy Cockerham, aged 80 years, and Miss Bettie Moore, aged 20 years, were happily married. After the ceremony the couple drove to their future home on the farm of the groom.

Two prisoners made their escape from the jail at Plymouth recently, one held on the charge of larceny and the other for burglary. Their escape was made with an axe which was no doubt gotten to them from some friend on the outside.

While crossing Livingston creek, a stream not 20 feet wide, in a small boat at Cronly, near Wilmington last week Joe Phillips, Archie Bryant and A. Y. Andrews, three young negro men, were drowned by the capsizing of their craft.

The North Carolina State Hospital Commission last week perfected arrangements to open the colony building for epileptics and other new buildings connected with the Central Hospital for the Insane for patients within two weeks.

The condition of Kope Elias, of Macon county, who suffered a stroke of paralysis at Asheville Monday night of last week is reported more favorable. He was removed to the Biltmore hospital, and while he is seriously ill, there is a possibility of recovery.

Solicitor Jones Fuller, of Durham, last Wednesday sent his commission back to Governor Kitchin, thus resigning from the active duties of his office, which he has filled for the past 14 months. It is expected that the governor will make his appointment at once.

Announcement is made that D. L. Arey, for years one of the largest whiskey distillers in the South, will at an early date erect and operate a cotton seed oil mill in Salisbury, provided he can get the raw material with which to run the business. It is said that the plant will cost $50,000, and be one of the largest in the State.

It is learned that the proposition to vote $250,000 in bonds to build a railroad from Jefferson to the North Carolina line to connect with the N. & W. Railroad at Abington, Va., was defeated. The election was held Saturday the 16 instant.

Judge Pritchard last week signed a decree to the effect that the Seaboard Air line receivership will end November 4th, when it will be turned over to the railway company in accordance with the plan of re-organization which has been approved by the stockholders.

The proposition to bond Ashe county to the amount of $359,000 to assist in building a railroad into the county from Virginia, which was voted on last Saturday failed, the people expressing themselves at the polls as being unwilling to place so heavy a burden on themselves.

Suit was begun in the Superior Court of Anson county by McJendou and Thomas, attorneys for Geo. Standback, a negro boy, who alleges that he was injured by the explosion of a torpedo at Marshville, September 11, and asks the Seaboard Air Line Railway for $2,000 damages. Standback was working for the railway company at the time and was badly injured.

L. L. Tilley, a young man of Durham county, has been admitted to the bar after a remarkable career. He is now twenty-eight years of age, and entered school eight years ago, when he could not read. Nevertheless, he has gone through the high schools, graduated from Wake Forest College, and took his bachelor of law degree, which could not be conferred on account of a law making it impossible to award two degrees at a single graduation.

Magic Campaigns.

New York Press.
Why is it that as soon as a man becomes a candidate for public office he becomes a villain? It seems almost against the law nature that this should be the case—that all candidates are villains. And yet we see by a diligent attention to campaign speeches that this is a fact. Every speech is devoted to proving that some candidate—generally every candidate except the speaker—is a villain. For a period of a few weeks we read of nothing but of painted devils—ugly, impossible monsters which have all the romantic charm of genii or hobgoblins from the middle age. Heroes (or rather villains) of melodrama suddenly become sober realities. We rub our eyes with amazement to find that our lurid and extravagant dreams about the devil and possibly other figurations of evil have been realized in commonplace actuality.

Another thing adding to the magic of it all is the suddenness with which these villains—bursting like a guilty butterfly from an honest chrysalis—return at once (after the election) to their chrysalis state of innocuous decency. It is like a jack-in-the-box, popping in and out. An honest citizen one moment and a villain the next. It is really too simple. Put away the puppets, children. Gargoyles are all well enough but business. We don't refer to the business which this display of gargoyles is supposed to further, but to the real business of living, which is different from lying about your rival or even making a fortune.

James Ward a well known printer, met a tragic death in High Point last Friday, while helping to unload a large imposing stone, at the depot. It slipped from its mooring and knocked him down. In falling the stone struck edgewise on the unfortunate man's breast, mashing the body in a horrible manner. He lived about one hour.

Vudor RE-ENFORCED HAMMOCKS

THE KIND THAT LAST and look well while they last.

The bed of the Vudor Re-enforced Hammock is woven extra heavy in the middle—where the wear comes—a patented feature found in no other hammock. The extra heavy cording at head and foot is put on under tension, insuring equal distribution of weight over all the cords. These cords are fastened to the bed of the hammock by means of hardwood spreaders and strong cord anchorages.

The colors used in Vudor Re-enforced Hammocks are sun-fast and practically fadeless.

Vudor Re-enforced Hammocks come in many handsome designs and color combinations and in various styles ranging in price from $2.25 to $8. Call and see them.
