Wholesale Vaccination.

Everybody at the White House including President Wilson, members of his family, aides, clerks servants and domestics, about 150 in all are to be vaccinated as a precaution against smallpox. Though there have been a few cases of smallpox discovered in the public buildings of the national capital it did not become known until today that the parents of a domestic employed at the White House had become afflicted with the disease. Dr. Cary Grayson, one of the naval aides, immediately began an investigation, and by nightfall most of the people living in and about the White House had been innoculated.

The Editor Of Appeal To Reason A Suicide.

The Editor of Appeal to Reason of Oklahoma City gives a detailed story of the leading facts in the life and suicide of J. A. Wayland, editor and owner of the Appeal to Reason the leading socialist organ in America, and tells why he committed suicide. The facts are these:

J. A. Wayland was a man fifty seven years old and in his office was a stenographer seventeen years old with all the hope that life could offer to a girl so fair and young.

Year after year Wayland preached the doctrine of free love and the abolishing of the marriage vows and the relation of men and women should be free under all circumstances.

After hearing years of reasoning like this, this young lady grew into womanhood and was deluded by the deception of this vile wretch and his confederates. A few months ago the fact was learned that she was soon to be a mother and, J. A. Wayland the father of an illegitimate child. In his effort to conceal the crime he sent her to Aurora, Missouri to a supposed sanitarium where she was taken in charge by his companions, and in stead of letting nature take its course a criminal operation was performed that carried this once fair woman to an untimely grave without hope.

In his desire to conceal his acts his confederates attempted to convey the body to Canada for burial. The officers learned of the attempt and the crime committed and J. A. Wayland rather than be exposed wrapped the drapery of his couch about him and took his own life with a pistol shot.

Eugene Debs in words of misrepresentation says that he died a martyr to socialism. If this is a fair sample of socialism its doctrines and its harvest we are fully satisfied that time has arrived when man must fight desperately to ward off and overcome if possible such vile beliefs, teachings and acts. It may be best that J. A. Wayland is dead and gone but the price for his departure is too great.

Saved Baby's Life.

Spartanburg, S. C., March 24.—From near Campobello there came tonight a story of the rare presence of mind shown by a three year old girl, the daughter of Mrs. Samuel Petty, when her mother, holding a nine-month-old baby in her arms, fell into an open fire place. As Mrs. Petty was nursing the baby she was overcome with vertigo and pitched forward. The little girl the only other occupant of the house at the time caught the baby, who was not severely burned.

Mrs. Petty's head struck an andiron. When she recovered consciousness her eyes were both burned out. Carrying the baby in one arm, the little girl with her other hand led her blind and staggering mother to the home of the nearest neighbor, who lived about a quarter of a mile distant. Little hope is entertained for Mrs. Petty's recovery.

Story of Eye Witness

Kansas City, Mo., March 24.—C. C. Davis of this city, who was in Omaha when the tornado struck, today told of the desolation wrought. "I was crossing through the storm zone" he said, "and saw bodies being carried out of the ruins. Frame houses were wrecked and porches of stone and brick dwellings were torn away.

"The worst thing about it all, except for the dead, was the helplessness of the sufferers. Hospital and ambulance services was far below the requirements and doctors had more than they could do.

The motor car companies carried dozens of injured to doctors home. No one could hire a motor car unless it were wanted for some one injured.

"Many private motor cars helped in the work."

Manager The Gould Estate Desperately Shot By Dog Trainer.

Greensboro, March 25.—At 2 o'clock this morning a large posse of officers, including the High Point night force and two bloodhounds, a number of Randolph county deputies and sworn citizens who had volunteered their services, were reported still to be in Randolph county searching for Lert English, who shot and desperately wounded John Armstrong, manager of the hunting preserves of George Gould, yesterday afternoon at Archdale.

The posse, who went on the search at nightfall, were thrown off the track by John Lee Lowe, a brother-in-law of English, who told them the man they wanted had gone to his (Lowe's) home near Archdale and would give himself up. The officers immediately went there and learned that their man had not been there. They lost no time in securing a warrant for Lowe, whom they placed, under arrest as an accessory after the fact.

English, who is a dog trainer and hunter, and who knows almost every inch of ground in the section where he is in hiding, is supposed to be attempting to make his escape through Randolph county to some railway line. From High Point were Chief of Police Ridge and Officers Stone, Welch and McGhee the entire night force.

At 2 o'clock this morning Mr. Armstrong was reported to be speedily sinking, and little hopes were entertained for his recovery. Apparently he could not survive the delicate operation required and for which Dr. Stokes from Salisbury was rushed through the country by automobile.

The shooting of John or "Jack" Armstrong, was reported as a cold blooded affair, and occurred at Archdale at 5 o'clock, a little village three miles south of High Point. The contents of a pistol were emptied at Armstrong, who tried to escape behind a tree. One bullet struck him in the small of the back.

Mr. Armstrong, with one of his men, was at Archdale in an automobile, when they met English near the little store in the central part of the village. Armstrong got out of the automobile and the two talked for a few minutes, supposedly about a lease. Apparently nothing unusual was between them.

The report was that English suddenly, and without any warning, whipped out his gun and began firing. Mr. Armstrong made a futile effort to escape, but one of the bullets struck him before he could find cover. English then made his escape. The wounded man was hurried to High Point, where he was given medical attention. The physician attending him stated that he was in a desperate condition. The wound was of such a nature that Dr. Stoke of Salisbury, was called to perform the difficult operation by which it was hoped the man's life could be saved.

So far as is known no effort was made to prevent English from escaping after the affair. Officers from High Point got on his track with Randolph county officers after night. The High Point bloodhounds were reported at 11 o'clock last night to be on the trail of English in Randolph county.

The shooting occurred just about a quarter of a mile from the Guilford county line.

O Ye Tears!

During a Bible lesson the teacher was trying to explain the parable of the tares. "Can any of you tell me any person who is like the tares?" She asked.

A little hand shot up from the foot of the class. "Well, Tommy," She said, "what person is like the Evil One?"

"Please, ma'am," replied Tommy, "my mother."

"Why?" asked the teacher, in astonishment.

"Because," answered the boy, "my mother's patched trousers, 'she sews tears.'"

Besides a heart stricken husband, father and mother she leaves one brother Mr. Kelly Davenport a photographer located at Durham. Besides these one bright little boy of only two summers and an infant girl of only a few days of age are left motherless. The infant has been taken by Mrs. Matthews a sister of Mr. Moore who lives at High Point who will care for it and give it the tender care of a mother.
