JOHN J. WILLIAMS, FORMERLY OF CHARLOTTE, VISITOR TO CITY

John J. Williams, formerly of Charlotte, but for the past three years a citizen of High Point, spent Sunday and Monday in the city, meeting and greeting old friends and relatives. Mr. Williams is a printer by trade, and is connected with The High Point Enterprise. Formerly he worked on both daily papers of Charlotte, at various times, and was for many years the Charlotte News for fifteen years. He stated to The Herald that one must be away from Charlotte a short time to really know how rapidly the city is growing.

Mr. Williams is deeply interested in the proposed school bond issue and talked interestingly of the schools of the Queen City. He was a member of the city school board that selected the first public school with money obtained from the sale of city bonds.

The former resident of Charlotte was greeted cordially by members of the Charlotte police force, at it was during Mr. Williams' administration as a member of the Police, Fire and Health Board that the city policemen were given the 8-hour day.

It is among the working people, however, that Mr. Williams' large host of friends are found. He was active in organized labor circles here for years, and recalls the time when "the faithful few" kept the charters hanging on the walls, until the workers could be educated to the fact that in organization alone lay their salvation as wage earners.

Some day some Charlotte citizen is going to send up to High Point and bring this Charlotte man back home "for keeps." High Point is a town, as small cities go, but Mr. Williams belongs to Charlotte, the city he helped to build, and Charlotte is going to have him again, if the aspirations of many leading men of this city mean anything at all.

S. S. HOME VISITATION DAY NOV. 23 MINE OWNERS PROSPER.

LONDON, England, Nov. 14.—Organized miners are publishing remarkable statistics in defense of their demand for higher wages. It is shown that while profits last year jumped 236 per cent, wages were advanced but 17 per cent. This wage advance is based on the amount paid during that period. As the number of men employed increased during the year, the miners show that the true increase in wages was but 5.18 per cent.
