A Winged Diver of the Sea.

A more expert diver even than the cormorant is its white relative, the gannet. The breeding haunts of this bird are limited to a few stations, all of which net. The breeding haunts of this bird are limited to a few stations, all of which are on the Scotch coast, except one on Lundy and one in Kerry. The largest colony on the island, called Sula Sgeir, near Lewis, is estimated to number 300,000 birds. The gannet lives on fish and the quantity of herrings consumed amnually by the united efforts of the birds on the five northern stations exceeds the entire take of the whole fishing fleet of Scotland, and is said to fall little short of 1,000,000,000. The gannet moves South in the autumi, and in the winter months along our Southern shores. When in pursuit of its prey it poises in the air like a hawk and, falling with a force that strikes up the water all round it in a cloud of foam, it disappears for some seconds below the surisce. By floating a fish upon a small plank the bird is often killed by the fishermen, who use its flesh merely for bait. Not noticing the plank the gannet swoops down upon the fish, drives its beak deep into the board and breaks its neck with the shock. Gannets are often taken in the herring nets, sometimes at extraordinary depths. As many as ninety have the herring nets, sometimes at extraor-dinary depths. As many as ninety have been brought up one time in the mesher f a single net.—London Nove.

Handsome Africans.

The Bangalas are a fine race physically, oeing tall, powerful, and splendidly formed, with features by no means of the negro type; the women are the hand-tomest I have seen in Africa. Their somest I have seen in Africa. Their dress is scanty, consisting for the most part only of a waist cloth for the men and a short kilt of woven grass for the women; but men of high degree often wear mantles of dressed goat or other skins. They cicatrize their arms, shoulders and busts in patterns by cutting the skin and injecting some irritant. Sometimes the result looks very well; but in other cases the process is not successful, and raises huge unsightly lumps of flesh.

The Chief of Iboko, when I arrived.

The Chief of Iboko, when I arrived, was an old man over 80—his age was reported by some to be 84, by others 86—who had lost one eye in battle and possessed fifty wives. He was over six feet in height, with a fine, well-developed figure, and but for his dirty white hair and shriveled skin, would have passed for a man of half his age. He was much attached to Captain Coquilhat (named "Mwafa" or the "Eagle" by the natives), and never understood anything without consulting him. The scene just after our arrival at Bangala, when, "Le Roi des Bangalas" being announced as we were all sitting over our afternoon coffee, Mata Bwyki entered, wearing his royal hat of leopard skin and attended by several of his wives, and enfolded Captain Coquilhat, gold-spangled uniform and all, in an ample bear s hug, was really worth seeing.—Blackwood's. What a Dunce!

I suffered with fever, hot head and foul breath,
With stomach disordered—was sick unto death.
I bore it a week—surely I was a dunce—
Then I took a few "Pellets"—they cured me at once.
What a dunce, indeed, to neglect such a remedy and suffer a week, when quick relief could have been found in Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets.

THE LAND OF EXILE.

George Kennan's Trip to Siberia—His Story to Appear in The Century.

HE CENTURY MAGAZINE has inspired a number of important enterprises—the Great South papers; the articles on South America (the War Papers, which increased its circulation by 100,000; the Life of Lincoln, for the serial publication of which Mesara. Nicolay and Hay, formerly private secretaries to the President, are now receiving $50,000; these, and many others. But of all its enterprises and serials none will surpass in interest and in far-reaching results the papers on 'Siberia and the Exile System," the publication of which has just begun.

Mr. Kennan, who writes the articles, had spent a number of years in Siberia before The Century people started him off to explore the country in their interest, and what he expected to do was to prove that the exile system was not as terrible as it had been described. Knowing that he held views favorable to them, the Russian Government gave him every facility for a thorough examination of all the prisons and mines of Siberia. The Minister of the Interior furnished him with a circular letter which admitted him everywhere, allowing him to travel with exile parties and to make the acquaintance of hundreds of "liberals."

As Mr. Kennan relates in his preface in the May Century, the result of all this inspection was to make him change his views completely, and he has returned to America fully convinced that Stepniak and Prince Krapotkin and other nihilist writers have not drawn with too strong colors their pictures of the horrors of the life of a Russian exile. In these papers, beginning with the May Century, Mr. Kennan will describe his journey. In the May number he crosses the Russian frontier. In June he visits the very interesting forwarding prison at Tiumen, George Kennan's Trip to Siberia-His Story to Appear in The Century.

HE CENTURY MAGAZINE has inspired a number of important entryrises, the

In rooms built to accommodate forty men, 160 were sleeping. 'I breathed as little as I could while I was there," says Mr. Kennan, "but every respiration seemed to pollute my very soul, and I became faint from nausea and lack of oxygen. It was like trying to breathe in an underground hospital-drain."

Mr. Kennan's articles are torn out of the copies of The Century which enter Russia; they, as well as Mr. Kennan himself, being now on the Russian black-list. But other countries are reading what Mr. Kennan writes. The articles are being translated into Polish, and they are appearing also in the organ of the Russian liberals at Geneva. Even a Dutch newspaper published on the Island of Java is reprinting them in fourpage supplements.

May to Bell.

Dear Bell: I'll write you a short letter To say I'm wonderfully better: How much that means you ought to know, Who saw me just one month ago—Thin, nervous, fretful, white as chalk, Almost too weak to breathe or talk; Almost too weak to breathe or talk; Head throbbing, as if fit for breaking, A weary, ever present aching. But now life seems a different thing: I feel as glad as bird on wing! I say, and fear no contradiction, That Pierce's Favorite Prescription Is grand! Why, I'd have died without it! Ma thinks there's no mistake about it. It's driven all my ills away; Just come and see! Yours ever, Max.

The presence in the city of Mr. Lee Mapano, a Japanese, whose nose furnishes him the means of carning a livelihood, Mr. Mapano being a smeller of teas, recalls the fact that in Japan the nose is the only feature which attracts attention. The nose determines the beauty or the ugliness of a face according as it is big or little. This is probably due to the fact that difference in noses constitutes about the only distinction between one Japanese face and another. The eyes are invariably black, the cheek bones high and the chin receding. In Japan a lady who has a huge proboscis is always a raging beauty and a reigning belle. There are few large noses among the natives, and lucky indeed is he or she upon whom nature lavishes one. In all Japanese pictures representing supposably beautiful women the artist turns himself loose on the nose.

CATARRH.

A New Home Treatment for the Cure of Catarrh, Catarrhal Deafness and Hay Fever.

Catarrh, Catarrhal Deafaess and Hay Fever.

The microscope has proved that these diseases are contagious, and they are due to the presence of living parasites in the liming membrane of the upper air pessages and enstachian tubes. The eminent scientists, Tyndall, Huxley and Beale, endorse this, and these authorities caunot be disputed. The regular method of treating these diseases has been to apply an irritantremedy weekly, and even daily, thus keeping the delicate membrane in a constant state of irritation, allowing it no chance to heal, and as a natural consequence of such treatment not one permanent cure has ever been recorded. It is an absolute fact that these diseases cannot be cured by an application made oftener than ence in two weeks, for the membrane must get a chance to heal before an application is repeated. It is now seven years since Mr. Dixon discovered the parasite in catarrh and formulated his new treatment, and since then his remedy has become a household word in every country where the English language is spoken. Cures effected by him seven years ago are cures still, there having been no return of the disease.

So highly are these remedies valued that ignorant imitators have started up everywhere, pretending to destroy a parasite, of which they know mothing, by remedies the results of the application of which they are equally ignorant. Mr. Dixon's remedy is applied only once in two weeks, and from one to three applications effect a permanent cure in the most aggravated cases.

Mr. Dixon sends a pamphlet describing his new treatment on the receipt of stamp to pay postage. The address is A. H. Dixon & Son, 304 King street west, Toronto, Canada.—
