The Cyrriculum Includes Marketing, Scrubbing and Eating What Is Cooked. A cooking school that is a cooking school has just been opened in Gothenburg. Sweden. It is an annex of the girls' part of the public school system there, and every young woman whole graduated must learn all that the practical cooks in the annex can teach. The cooking course is a part of the senior year curriculum and includes twenty-four lessons. Twelve of these lessons are theoretical. The rest are practical. Ten of the practical lessons of two hours each are devoted to instruction in the most popular meats and vegetables. The girls are obliged to peel potatoes, skin onions, pluck and stuff chickens, spit roasts and the like. They put on the kettles, feed and reguup generally after all is done. Three lessons of two hours each concern exclusively the preparation of bouillon. toast and rice water, barley soup and other similar dishes for ill persons.

The young women are instructed in classes of five, and each group prepares successively every dish in the course. The cooking is done mornings, the cooked dishes are served for the dinners of the pupils and teachers, and every girl is obliged to eat what she has had a hand in preparing, or go without. During the afternoon each student writes a description of how and what she cooked, and appends suggestions as to epicurean improvements that have occurred to her mind since she finished the dish. These reports are read and corrected by the instructors, and at the end of the course the girl who cooked best and suggested the most palatable innovations in the process will get a gold medal.

The course is unique in two particulars. All the girls must go to market with the instructors very early and buy all the stuff to be used in the kitchen. Every Saturday is given over to housecleaning. All the girls must then get into their old gowns and gloves, twist up their hair in tight little knots without a friz in front or a fringe behind. and knuckle down to scouring the floor, washing the windows, polishing the brass and cleaning the walls.

The Gothenburg experiment is new. If it proves successful other cooking annexes to public schools will be opened had not voted for the only to-day, it is ex-Gov. ("Calico sun." In other Swedish cities.—New York
