THE NEW SOUTH'S COSTLY LESSON.

The new South is returning to the better side of the old South. The craze for money is wearing away. The good sense of good principle is resuming its hold upon the people.

CO-EDUCATION.

Mark the prediction! Within five years the door of every college in North Carolina which desires to prosper in its work will be opened to girls on the same terms as to boys. It doesn't matter what may be our view as to co-education, the demand for this system of education is growing and the University will not be able to resist it much longer. -North Carolina Teacher.

No one can doubt Marion Butler's loyalty to the order. -Roanoke News.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a number of years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has discovered that it is a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from ten drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case that is not cured. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address, F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, Ohio. Sold by all Druggists, at 75 cents.

A FINE SHOWING.

North Carolina's Commissioner of Agriculture states that there will be twenty-one fairs held in the State this year. His statistics also make a fine showing for the State. ANNE BISSELL.

By AUGUSTA LARNED.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I. I tell you how young Dr. Tibbels takes up his abode in Mrs. Bissell's village boarding house where, pretty Annie, a high school graduate, is an interesting figure. Miss Carver, another boarder, indulges in some opinions about the newcomer and Annie.

CHAPTER II. -Dr. Tibbels makes himself very popular in the household, a fact noticed and noted down, too, by Miss Carver.

CHAPTER III. -Miss Carver and Widow Herkaway, a gossiping village, discuss the doctor and Annie, and feel in duty bound to tell the young girl that the new boarder is already engaged.

CHAPTER IV.

Gran'ther Bissell was again pottering about the garden, and the doctor and Anne were trying over a new song in the parlor, when Anne half put down her dusting brush to play the accompaniment. Neither of them minded the broken key nor the horrible dissonance it made when they got into the full musical flow. Presently Mrs. Bissell came down from the attic chamber where the old man slept. She clung to the balustrade to steady herself and keep from falling, and tottered into the little parlor as pale as ashes. The doctor turned round and caught her by the arm just in time to save her from falling. He put her gently on the sofa.

"What is the matter, Mrs. Bissell?" he asked, "are you ill?" Anne rushed to her mother's side, and put her arm under her head.

"No," gasped Mrs. Bissell, "it isn't a faint or anything that I have eaten that has disagreed. Anne, my child, I've been robbed of my interest money, all my hard earnings and savings of a year, to meet the bill for the mortgage on the farm. The old man broke through the words that seemed to read her throat.

"What did I tell you, Mrs. Bissell?" she put in, quite uninvited. "Didn't I warn you that you was unsafe to keep any large sum of money in the house? Didn't I plead with you as a friend to go and open an account, and deposit your money in the bank?"

"Yes; you did," returned Mrs. Bissell, "yet you thought her fast dropping tears, 'but what's the use of bringing it up now? I distrusted banks after so many years' experience, and I thought it better to keep the money by me.'"

"Don't mind the old cat," whispered Anne, with her rosy lips close to her mother's ear, and her young, young head bent over her, "I'll take care of it. Tell us where the money was when it was stolen; perhaps we shall find it all a mistake."

Mrs. Bissell brushed away a few salt drops with the corner of her checkered apron.

"You know, Anne, how careful I've always been to lock up money. It was in the middle drawer of the bureau up in gran'ther's room, left hand corner, above the chest of drawers, under the winter bonnet. It was in a little shell casket that belonged to mother. I always kept that drawer locked, but I must have gone there in a hurry and forgot to turn the key. It was a wretched mistake. It is taken internally in doses from ten drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case that is not cured. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address, F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, Ohio. Sold by all Druggists, at 75 cents.

"That's the way you keep your money," sneered Miss Carver, but nobody minded her.

"You'll get it back, mother," said Anne very positively, patting the thin, whitened cheek. "Do you think it could have been Bridget?" she added in a reluctant whisper.

"I am sure of it, Anne," and Mrs. Bissell straightened up and looked at her with confidence. "Nobody else knew I kept my money there. Nobody else goes into that room except gran'ther. Of course it was Bridget, and it accounts for her strange actions this last ten days."

Fife Meeting.

A GREAT RELIGIOUS STIRRING IN CLINTON AND SURROUNDING COUNTRY.

Larger Crowds Daily Attending and Much Interest Manifested by All Ages and Classes.

Who would now know Clinton who knew it the week before the one just passed? The changes wrought by the past meeting are so many, so interesting, so marked, so thorough that one would scarcely recognize the old landmarks. Clinton and the surrounding community have been greatly shaken. We have just passed through one of the most far-reaching, religious seasons in the history of Sampson county. We have last week the impression Mr. Fife made on the community, and spoke of his opposition. But his opposition was blended into co-operation, and he has not only been recognized, but he has been recognized by the best feelings of all this section.

NO HYPOCRISY. Whatever it may please any one to say of Mr. Fife, whatever be the objection to him and his plans, there is one charge from which he stands acquitted - that of hypocrisy. When a man of the world, when foremost in almost every sin he always stood by his color. He went in with both soul and body, and the same can be said of him in religious work. He is what he is, and makes no pretension to anything else.

THE CHURCH RENOVATED. One of the special forces of Mr. Fife and
